At this time and especially before the beginning of his exciting campaign, Abraham Lincoln was often saying, "I do not desire the presidency. I will not be President. I will not run," and many similar words, and but for the fact that Mary Todd took him in hand from the walls, when the same was in peril, Dolly Madison has done nothing remarkable. She ruled the capitol with fashion's rod. Harriet Lane won international prominence during her reign by her beauty alone. Should the names of these ladies shadow that of Mrs. Lincoln?

REPLACE that missing tooth at once unless you want to be in the "old woman class."

When an actress is cast for the part of a witch or a coarse old hag she covers a tooth with black wax to give the appearance of an empty space.

Age and ugliness are characterized by missing teeth.

There is no beauty in a smile unless it discloses a good set of teeth.

The fourth tooth from the front seems to be the most delicate one, judging by the number of mouths from which this tooth is missing.

If the root is not decayed it is an easy matter for a dentist to make a good inlay and attach it to a perfectly matched porcelain tooth.

If the tooth has been pulled out, the next tooth can be painlessly devitalized and a gold inlay made, strong enough to carry a false tooth.

Don't wear a gold tooth in your mouth. It is offensive and disfiguring.

You may not always be able to alter the shape of your teeth, but you can have white, well polished teeth with a little trouble.

Never fail to clean your teeth night and morning.

Don't use water that is too hot or too cold.

Use tepid water and a fairly stiff tooth brush.

Perfectly healthy gums are essential to the well being of the teeth.

When you clean your teeth bestow as much attention on the backs of the teeth as on the fronts.

Particles of food lodge in crevices of back teeth especially, and if allowed to remain set up decay.

At first sign of tartar forming remove it by application of powdered magnesia or have it removed by a reliable dentist.

See What the Missing Tooth Does to Your Looks.

WHAT beauty there is in a smile unless it discloses a good set of clean, healthy teeth?

There is no excuse in these advanced days of scientific dental surgery for marring the pleasure of the beholder by the absence of one of them. And it is an extraordinary fact that about one-third of the people in the world have an ugly space near or in the front of their mouths where a tooth has been.

Surely they cannot see their own mouths or they would waste no time in having a tooth placed in the empty space.

I have made it my business of late to observe the teeth of every one I come in contact with. And the board walk area of Atlantic City is a great panorama of humanity, offering lesson after lesson to those who seek for knowledge of people and customs.

I see many young girls with fine, healthy front teeth, and their smiles disclose a lacking tooth on one side or the other, and in many cases on both sides.

The fourth tooth from the front seems to be the most delicate, for that is the one which is lost first by the majority of people apparently. The offending member gives trouble, decays, looks bad, and the dentist is consulted. He at once observes that the decay has destroyed the tooth, and another one must replace it made of porcelain. Where the root is not decayed it is an easy matter to make a gold inlay and attach to it a perfectly matched tooth.

When the tooth is pulled out the next tooth can be painlessly devitalized and an inlay can be made of gold, strong enough to carry the false tooth which is necessary to fill the empty space.

There are people foolish enough to go without a tooth simply because they are prejudiced against anything new. But this was really nothing in the calculations of their stories upon how they lost "that missing tooth."

There are also people courageous enough to wear whole gold teeth, as if it were a visible proof of their prosperity. Nothing is more offensive looking nor more disfiguring to the mouth than a gold tooth, unless it be the empty space where a tooth has been.

When an actress is cast for the part of a witch or a comic old hag she takes black wax and covers a tooth with it in order to make it appear as an empty space instead of a tooth.

Teeth play a greater part in this life than the majority of people realize. In the first place, they are absolutely necessary to digestion, and digestion is the secret rule for health, the first rule being cleanliness.

There can be no beauty without health. Therefore the teeth are of double value, first, as masticators of foods preparatory for entrance into the stomach, and, secondly, for their individual beauty, which is absolutely necessary to the completion of a perfect woman.

If you have a space anywhere near the front of your mouth go at once and have a tooth put in the opening, unless you are ready to be in the old woman class.

Don't be fooled by your husband's approval of your neglect. He does not like to see it, no matter what he says about it. Men often procrastinate to save pain and money. In this case suffer a little pain to enhance your appearance.

You may not always be able to alter the shape of the teeth or the way they are set in the jaws, but you can have white, well polished teeth with a little trouble. Regular cleaning, night and morning, using a good dentifrice, will make them white and clean.

The water used for cleaning the teeth should not be either too hot or too cold. Tepid water is best, and a small, fairly stiff toothbrush chosen, but the bristles should not be too hard or they will irritate the gums, and perfectly healthy gums are essential to the well being of the teeth. When cleaning the teeth bestow as much attention on the backs of the front teeth as upon the fronts, and even more care in cleansing the back of molars, as particles of food are more likely to lodge in their crevices than in those of the front, and if left in the mouth will set up decay. At the first sign of any tartar forming upon a tooth remove it by an application of powdered magnesia or have it removed by a reliable dentist.

A reliable dentifrice can be bought at a price that is prohibitive to no one.

To whiten discolored teeth mix together half an ounce of finely powdered pumice stone and one ounce of precipitated chalk. Use this powder twice a week until the teeth become white, then use once in six weeks. (This powder must never be used more than twice weekly.)

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

NAMELESS: You did not tell me whether the brown spots were moles or what they were. Are they small or large? Will you please write to me again and tell me more definitely what they are like. I cannot give you a remedy for removing spots unless I know more about them. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

MRS. W. N.: Salt baths are most invigorating for the nervous woman. Sea salt or common salt may be used for the bath. After bathing in this warm salt water the body should be rubbed down brisk with a rough bath towel. If you are nervous I would advise you to consult a physician. Don't worry and get out into the open air as much as you can.

HELEN: I am sorry, but I cannot give you a formula for a permanent eyebrow darkener nor can I give you the name of one which may be purchased. The eyebrow pencils are best for darkening the eyebrows, but, as you say, they do rub off. There is an eyebrow darkener on the market that is sort of a water color. I cannot give you the name through the column. This is excellent for darkening the brows and is inexpensive.

with little more than a military training. He was only a junior lieutenant when the news of his mother's death reached him.

Archibald's early years occurred in an office through which he passed. In the army, there has been nothing of the academic type. He has worked and studied and learned and observed and done as duty to him was without forswearing the pleasures of the world. He has been successful on account of his ability, but he would have been very far from successful if he had not been so successful in his work and his character as a person of profound and intense sympathy.

BEGAN AS LIEUTENANT.

He began as a cavalry lieutenant and was the best of his class among his comrades. He was a very good horseman, his thorough in his behavior to the senior officers as any police subaltern. No order was too small, and he carried out the same with the most exactitude, and when he heard his young comrades grumbling would merely say:

"What do you expect? Orders are orders."

Going later into the infantry, the army was not so kind to him, and he found service in the cavalry as the most dignified time in his life. He was proud to ride into a new campaign at the end of his squadron, and he was generally in the regiment that the officers his generation had the best time of all. He was eligible to a high degree at none the less so after his marriage with Princess Zita of Parma, who is just as well liked as her husband.

ficers' wives and not as an army officer. She called upon the wives of all the officers senior in rank to the archduke instead of waiting for them to call upon her. She took the greatest interest not only in regimental affairs but also in the people of the country districts in which the regiment was stationed. In one of the small garrisons in Galicia she became greatly beloved by the Jews. She went out among the people there and talked to the children and gave the little gifts such as no officers' wives had ever done before.

PARIS Aug. 15 — Mille Lise Berté, popular light comedy actress, has contracted for a society periodical that she has had to wear each day in the year. The magazine calculates that, estimating the price of each piece of headgear at $100, she will cost $34,600 a year. Mille Berté is being de-

SOCIETY

OF SUMMER DAYS AND SUMMERING PEOPLE SUZETTE WRITES

WHAT rich women may do in these days is a subject very full of interest. Foremost with them all is the slogan that they "oppose war as one woman." In New York City they are planning a Great "Peace Parade" as one way of rousing the peace sentiment to a pitch of enthusiasm. One of the leaders of the smart set who attended the European conventions early this year said of the wealthy women whom she met there:

"I know how strongly they feel the awfulness of it all, she said, for at the international convention in Rome last spring, to which I was a delegate, they passed one resolution after another against war. They have absolutely no feeling against each other and while they are patriotic, oppose war as one woman. I do not know whether we can do anything to assist them just now, but I know they would welcome any attempt on the part of American women to stop this awful carnage."

The New York committee of women has decided to arouse other women to make peace demonstrations. It was finally decided to appeal to Mrs. Percy Pennington, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and to Mrs. Frederick Schoff, President of the National Council of Mothers, before giving any advice affecting women outside New York city.

Mrs. Pennington of Texas is well known in our bay regions. It was at the great meeting in California that she was made President of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, a place which she has held with honor ever since.

The National Council of Women is sending out letters all over the country urging leading women everywhere to unite in a great effort for peace. Meantime preparations go on in New York for one of the greatest peace demonstrations by women the world has ever known.

The war of today is not due to the smartness of three larger countries, and the women if they could would have prevented it. This has not always been true of the past.

The war of the Spanish succession, in which the great Duke of Marlborough played a brilliant part, was said to be the outcome of a glass of water at a ball at the Tuilleries in Paris. One of the court ladies had expressed a wish for a drink of water in the ambassage of the British and Spanish Ambassadors, who hastened to get it for her. Returning each with a tumbler they found the fair bird had flown and was dancing with a French statesman. The English diplomat accidentally, it is presumed, brushed against the Spaniard and upset the glass he was carrying. The ridiculous incident influenced the jealousies of the nations and turned the balance in favor of war.

Women are wiser today, and one of the countries of all Europe coming most rapidly to the foreground is Spain—with its wonderful record in art, history and literature.

Many things are done by wealthy women in the name of charity. In Greenwich this week they conducted a vegetable and fruit market in a lot on the main street, and made $105 for charity. I saw the produce on their own gardens. They wore pink and blue sunbonnets and aprons and passers simply couldn't refuse to buy. They had warned merchants not to put in their usual Saturday stock of green groceries. To add to the variety some women sold animals. One woman contributed a 500 Persian cat. One hears that the venture was a business success.

It is amusing to read that the experiment was planned by Mrs. William T. Rockefeller, and of course the Rockefeller's always score "a business success."

But for "charity" they might have easily contributed the money instead of selling the "Persian Cat."

Many of the wealthy women of the East this year are running their own motor cars, and making in them exceedingly difficult trips. With the ever changing chauffeur the motor car is a problem and the athletic woman of today is answering this question for herself by having to run her own car, should the occasion require it. A wealthy New York woman is starting this week for the Coast with her husband. Her car will carry a complete camping outfit, and Mrs. Seaman will do all the driving of the car entirely across the continent.

Mrs. Seaman is one of the fast increasing number of women who not only drive their own cars, but take the entire care of them. She drives an air-cooled car of 1910 model, and not only has she driven the car every minute that it has been driven, but she also has done all the repair work on it. Occasionally when there are some adjustments to make she runs her car into a repair shop and makes the adjustments herself, while the repair men look on with admiration.

Among those whose skillful driving is a matter of comment among their friends and of admiration as well, are Mrs. P. E. Bowles, Mrs. Albert Elliott, Mrs. John Dean, Mrs. Bernard Ford (Marion Miller), Mrs. J. H. Dieckmann, Mrs. John J. Valentine, Mrs. Wickham Havens, Mrs. Edward Lugs, Mrs. Brandon Brady, Mrs. Harry Knowles. Electric machines are guided bravely over our many hills and the drivers are in almost every case well known women of our smart set. They have judgment and are very cool in emergencies and they are able to eliminate distances by the splendid fashion in which they have made the electric machines truly their own.

"MOTHER GRUNDY" IS NO MORE.

A rumor, which no doubt will prove to be true, pervades the land that "Mother Grundy" is no more. Edgar Salus says so, and he really ought to know. And all because the old lady stood for so many time-worn traditions—nearly all of them relating to women—and she persistently refused to look down the future. Now we are told that the defeat of Mrs. Grundy came from two of went careering over highways and byways, where a chaperon was too fat to follow and Mrs. Grundy lost to view.

In the ballroom, though the polka had gone, age had rendered the waltz respectable. Moreover, though girls rode, they did so with less grace, perhaps, but with the same modesty that characterized their grandmothers.

Then, one day, some one invented the turkey trot in San Francisco and poor Mother Grundy was turkey trotted into the background. And philosophers tell us that it is due to the tango that old lady Grundy has been pushed from the face of the earth—has influence to give, and one who her—she is among "the old things that have passed away."

WE LIVE IN AN AGE OF GIVING.

This is an age of giving. Every one has learned to give something. The women of the smart set give unique prizes for bridge. No traveler goes away without a collection of gifts that rejoices her heart. No traveler returns without bringing gifts for her friends—a pretty fan, some gloves, silk stockings, a fancy waist, such as one may buy only in Paris or Vienna, and, best of all, a collection of veils, from motor scarfs up or down.

One sends gifts to a young girl when her engagement is announced, and she has many gifts for her home when she is married. And in these later days we go a step further, we send plants for the new garden.

Recently there was "a garden tea" in a new home, and each guest brought or sent a plant. Sometimes the hostess arranges the plants as she wishes in her garden, or on the wide verandas or loggias, or upper balconies, and sometimes they are massed together in what is known as "The Friendship Garden," and in that way they are immensely color-are very observant, and the wedding guest was able to send many impressions to her friends. She tells them that the dresses were beautiful, for it was a lace wedding. And of course the bride was very much like our own brides, in the conventional white satin. Caps, bewitching caps, sometimes quite simple, sometimes elaborate, have been the correct thing for brides for the last year or two over here, the face either very lightly veiled or left uncovered.

The gowns of the elder women were all trained, even at this morning wedding. The hats were with rare exceptions of the broad-brimmed sailor shape, the smartest being made of black velvet. One or two beautiful black lace caps worn over white lace some long white lace coats. Among the guests black and white gowns were very general. White shadow lace and black taffeta made the most charming costume.

The bridesmaids' hats were all black, black velvet in most instances, broad-brimmed with a single flower on a light ribbon.

Of the five bridesmaids no two were gowned alike, thus allowing each girl to wear the costume most becoming to her. And that shows the wisdom of French women, who never allow an unbecoming color scheme to make them positively ugly. And in these notes we have the latest "wedding news" from Paris.

MILADY'S GARDEN AND HER LOVELINESS.

Visitors to California notice the wonderful complexions of the women here and they say that across the bay it is due to the outdoor life, to the hills which the women have to climb and to the influence of the fogs. On our side of the bay we have the fogs as well and the outdoor life, and many women spend hours in the gardens. There are the new gardens for the many new homes and the old gardens, the flowers of which, nodding anew every summer, are old-time friends. They furnish the beginnings for many of the newer gardens.

The lovely garden of the John Springs in Northbrae is now coming into bloom and shines in a wonderfully colorful fashion against the strong background of the hills. And the Mark Daniels' garden in the Thousand Oaks is attracting great attention.

In Burlingame they are preserving every tree and shrub native to the hill slopes and planning the garden with all this as a motif. The Templeton Crookers are to have a wonderful Italian garden, and the Kohls are to have an Elizabethan garden. As of course the wonderful lawns, the splendid turf lawns are the glory of English country homes, and a well-known woman traveling there recently asked an old gardener to tell her the secret of the "beautiful English" turf that she might have a lawn like it.

"Well, ma'am," he replied, "you must begin to make it three hundred years before you are born, if you want it like this."

Mrs. Requa's garden leads Piedmont because of one thing—the Requa's planted their trees nearly forty years ago, and of course no other new growth is going to catch up with that. Old Father Time is always on the side of the trees.

The Bowles place is remarkable for the most opposite places on the earth—from Denmark and from San Francisco.

The Queen of Denmark got on a wheel one day, blossomed off like mad and changed the face of the earth—that part that was bounded by social conventions.

It was at the lady's summer court in the Baltic, through the wide leavings of which the selectest princesses and the least exclusive princes lounged, that the deed was done. The young royal followed suit. Photographs were taken of the scene.

emerged in shop windows. At sight of them London went mad and New York went madder. So runs the world away.

The queen, meanwhile, had put her wheel aside. Imitation is flattery's most odious form. None the less, while the mania lasted, girls and men ful and the garden is full of the loving thoughts of friends.

People are exchanging seeds and slips and plants in a most generous fashion, and truly the spirit of giving seems to be in the air.

The members of the smart set in many ways live up to the message of the poet.

"Not what we give, but what we share."

NOTES OF PEOPLE

Notes of people one knows are always most interesting and among the many items of interest today are the following news notes of the hour:

Mrs. Prentice Selby and Arthur Selby took the Norway cruise in the Princess Louise, together with Mr.

and Mrs. Schilling, Miss Elsie Schilling, Miss Beatrice Simpson and Walter Schilling.

Mrs. A. Simpson, the mother of Miss Beatrice Simpson, has been at Tehama attending to her extensive farming interests. Mrs. Simpson devotes her time and personal attention to her business affairs ever since her husband's death. She has had a delightful visit to Yellowstone Park and is now with her sister at Los Angeles until October 1, when she will return to her home on Vernon Heights.

A very charming family, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Helm, of Fresno has occupied her home for the past summer.

A cable from Miss Beatrice Simpson says Mr. and Mrs. Schilling, Miss Elsie Schilling, Miss Beatrice Simpson and Walter Schilling are at Copenhagen for the present, "fine and happy."

EXPOSITION BOARD OF WOMEN BUSY.

It seems to be definitely settled that the Exposition will open its doors just the same, at the appointed time, whether there is a war or not. For one thing has to be done—things have gone too far now for any plans to be changed. So the members of the Women's Board are to be very busy indeed carrying out the plans which they have formulated for the coming autumn.

Mrs. Frederic Sanborn, the acting president of the board, who has been abroad all summer, has returned to her home in San Francisco, and will again take charge of affairs pertaining to her Exposition work. Mrs. A. C. Posey, who has been away for a few days, will return to town on Monday, and she has many plans for the development of her work in the country. Alameda counts promises to be of great assistance in Exposition days, under the forceful and able leadership of popular Mrs. A. C. Posey.

MRS. JOHN HAMPTON LYNCH WILL BE HONORED.
Among the complimentary affairs of the autumn will probably be those given for Mrs. John Hampton Lynch (Lucy Moffitt), who has come to the coast to visit her mother, Mrs. James Moffitt of Piedmont.

Mrs. Lynch's home has been for years now in the East. It was formerly in New York, but Mrs. Lynch is devoted to country life, and the Lynchs have a magnificent estate in Ridgefield. Mrs. Lynch is a wonderfully interesting young matron—beautiful and very intellectual. She has been an ideal mother in a large family circle. Among her relatives here are James K. Moffitt, Dr. Herbert Moffitt, Mrs. John Francis Smith and Mrs. E. R. Folger. Mrs. Herbert Moffitt is now at Tahoe, where she has been spending the summer with her children. Mrs. Moffitt is expecting to entertain Mrs. Lynch for several days in her Tahoe home.

MILITARY STYLES FOR MILADY'S TOILETTE.

It is quite wonderful how dominant features of the day's news begin to find themselves represented in the fashions of the smart set. For instance, in famous Atlantic City the resort has had the war fever during the week.

The trend to military styles is already noticeable in the boardwalk costumes. The men are going in for a new straw cap that is now replacing the regulation straw and Panama hats. It has a distinct military cut, with a sharp dropping brim in the front only. The new headgear comes in finely woven straw. The figures are more sharply defined in the early fall attire for the men. The upturning German mustache has replaced the lip decorations waxed straight

Canoe coasting made a strong bid for popular favor this week because of the high rollers resulting from heavy storms at sea. The frail craft appeared in droves, shooting in on top of the breakers from as far out as the ends of the piers clear into shallow water. They acquire tremendous speed from the run of the waves beneath them and the sport provided excitement of the most thrilling brand for both passengers and onlookers.

And apropos of canoe coasting, it is being introduced at Santa Barbara, the first canoe having been taken down there this summer by Mrs. Isaac Requa. The Misses Amy and Sally Long are expert swimmers, and they take their canoe filled with young people almost to the raft, where they overturn it, and all swim to the big raft. Or they come in on the crest of a big breaker, which lands the canoe high and dry on the beach. Canoe riding is a favorite amusement at Waikiki, the beach at Honolulu. One of the Oakland visitors in Honolulu this summer is Miss Marie Bonthron, who is a guest of Miss Bertha Young. The Youngs have a lovely summer home on the beach at Waikiki.

GOWNS AND WEDDINGS ARE SOCIETY TOPICS.

With invitations out for leading September weddings, the subject of gowns to be worn comes prominently to the foreground.

At the Martin-Bromwell wedding the guests will come from Ross, from San Francisco and from the east bay cities, and the afternoon wedding will be wonderfully colorful and picturesque.

The weddings of the Wheeler girls across the bay will also be elaborate affairs, so it is safe to say that wedding will constitute the leading social dates of next month.

A well-known American woman was fortunate enough to be invited to a most important wedding in France, where the daughter of a well-known

Skin Without Wrinkles Now Easy to Have

There's no excuse for any woman having wrinkles now. It has been found that a simple mixture of aloe vera and witch hazel has a remarkable action upon the deepest wrinkles, no matter what their nature, whether caused by wear, habitual frowning, a debilitated complexion or the ravages of Father Time. This mixture removes wrinkles which cannot be removed by any other means.

It is amusing to read that the experiment was planned by Mrs. William T. Rockefeller, and of course the Rockefeller's always score "a business success."

PROTECT YOUR COMPLEXION

Every woman who spends the summer at the seashore, in the mountains or at some fashionable watering place should take with her a few bottles of

to improve and beautify her complexion and protect her skin from the burning sun, bleaching winds, and damp night air.

The surest guarantee of its perfection is the fact of its having been in actual use for nearly three-quarters of a century. It cannot be surpassed for the relief of tan, pimples, freckles, and other blemishes of the complexion.

Owing to the fact that a great number of people were not able to see "The Spoilers" last week, the management has decided to extend the engagement of that picture another week. The picture will be run on the same schedule as last week, in the afternoon at 1:30 and 3:30 and in the evening at 6:45 and 8:45 o'clock. The orchestra will play during each performance.

Some and defied in the supreme work of Kathryn Williams, as the great hearted heroine. The picture is a masterpiece of dramatic art.

Thomas Santee, who has pleased long and young, revealed himself masterfully in the character of the villainous and cunning—remarkable differentiation that has won for him the sympathy of the spectators.

Bessie Egan, who has achieved distinction in both Canada and America, gives a singularly sweet and playful performance in the character of the innocent girl who is the object of the villain's desire.

The picture is a masterpiece of dramatic art, and the management has decided to extend the engagement of that picture another week. The picture will be run on the same schedule as last week, in the afternoon at 1:30 and 3:30 and in the evening at 6:45 and 8:45 o'clock.

ORPHEUM

The Orpheum management promises an extra fine piece of resistance this week when the famous grand opera star, Miss Daly, from Hammerstein's, former of the Royal Opera, Boulevard, will offer selections from her favorite roles, "Madame Butterfly," "Carmen" and "La Boheme." Although an American girl, Miss Daly has been on the stage practically all of her life, having danced with her mother when but two years of age. The selections will be sung in costume, and will be a large drawing card from among the music lovers.

A comedian of excellent reputation, with work along original lines, Edmund Hayes comes to the Oakland audience this week with a big supply of new stuff. His vaudeville vehicle is a satire of his own called "The Piano Movers" and is new screen after another. The situations are absurd and the lines above the usual run, while the act moves along with a good punch.

A team composed of Duffy and Miss Lawrence does a song, patter and dance act, which is refreshing and airy to the communities. They will offer a magnificent musical comedy called "Springtime," full of catchy tunes and fancy steps.

The blackface comedians, Dave Kramer and George Morton, have added to the peculiarities of the darker into as laughable a 15-minute skit as one would care to see. Aside from the rooster stuff, the team possesses good voices and do some good singing and clogging.

Ward, Bell and Ward, the tale of dancing gymnasts, give a remarkable show in solo and ensemble work. Adeline Bell enjoys particular prominence with the act with her fine dancing. The act is billed as "Under the White Top," because they picture a portion of their circus performance, and take us into the ring with them in their feats of gymnastics.

A number of brand new rag time songs will be offered by Eileen Stanley, known as "The girl with the personality." She is a hold-over for the week and has made a decided hit during her first run with this ever-popular syncopated music.

The Whirly Lewis Quintette will offer an entire change of program for the benefit of the music lovers who have attended their act during the past week.

The Austrian whistler, Fred Kornau, will offer new work for his second week, and the usual run of exclusive Orpheum pictures will be shown, but an unusually fine bill.

After an engagement extending over a comedians and their associates will discontinue their merry-making at the Tenth street playhouse until October 4, when the company will return to inaugurate another season of musical comedy. Immediately following the close of the theater the members of the aggregation will disband for the six weeks' vacation. During the resting period the Columbia will be entirely renovated and redecorated. Several alterations are contemplated that will greatly add to the comfort and convenience of the patrons. The producers could not have chosen a more appropriate bill than that which will serve as the closing vehicle for the clever players. "The Mardi Gras" is a continuation of ludicrous happenings. There is not a dull moment contained in the piece from curtain to curtain. There are several cleverly conceived comedy scenes in which Mike and Ike hold full sway and a number of humorous complications that involve the other members of the cast. The adventures of the Irishman and Hebrew are most humorously pictured in the forthcoming production.

WHAT WELL DRESSED WOMEN WILL WEAR

BY

AKES, July 25. — An imaginative mind might be reminded of the dreary days of 1870 in Paris today. Here are the barricaded streets of the Commune and the ruffled skirts, tight bodices, roses on the shoulder and tiny caps of the days when Eugene led the fashions.

The dressmakers are responsible for the latter condition and nature is responsible for the former condition. The fearful storm which acted upon the Paris streets like an earthquake, and made realistic those terrifying pictures in encyclopedias of great chasms yawning in the earth with men and beasts falling in labeled earthquakes, has still left its mark.

Taxi-cab drivers are earning bountiful fees because they make the excuse that the taxi must go round and round to get out of the way of the barricades and dangerous sections. There is no way in.

ask you whether you would rather be killed or pay fifty centimes extra, for no matter how good or bad your French is, with such reasoning as this he has the best of the argument.

So, as in the days of 1870 when Paris had her enemies within and without and every street was barricaded with wood and stone, and secretly dined in ruffles and roses, it is now.

There are far more ruffles and roses of the other great American cities. Not until one has been to the fashionable Paris white water fountain at night, does one realize how strong is the grip of the flounced skirt and the fitting bodice.

ALL BODICES ARE SLEEVELESS.

When the first sleeveless bodices were brought into fashion last February, it was a question as to whether or not women would wear them. Women do wear them. They wear little else. Sleeves are almost unknown in the evening, even in theater and restaurant gowns, but there is a marked change for the better in the high line of the material under the arm which runs well up to the arm's eye.

The influence of Orientalism last winter and even through the first part of the summer gave us that naked expanse of the arm which is not pretty and would never be made artistic on the stage in an Oriental play.

The 1870 bodice is cut under the arm, has a very long waist line and a strap over the shoulder which is cut in one with the bodice itself. That is, it is not an apron strap, and the armhole is outlined in the regular way. The bodice does not so in a straight line across the chest as the modern, but is shaped in and out to the middle of the waist.

There is very little of it. With the single exception of not showing the skin beneath the arms, it is not more modest than the bodices we have worn for two years. It has an extreme décolletage in the back, and as a V-shape in front is always a difficult line to manage, the modern woman has the appearance of being very little dressed above the waist.

There is slight lining to any bodice. A bit of silk above the waist serves quite well. The rest is tulle. It would take a prodigy in mathematics to calculate the amount of tulle, or silk not that has been expended in women's clothes this summer.

When the idea first came out everyone said it was too extravagant to last, but evidently women have found the money with which to indulge in this caprice for there are countless gowns of the fabric.

While one was counting up the yards of tulle used in gowns it might be interesting to try to number the roses. So many have been sold that they are offered on the sidewalk at reasonable prices in front of the large shops. This does not keep women from wearing them. They are fastened over frocks as in the days of 1870; they outline the décolletage of the bodices, they hang in cascades from the girdles, they cascade up the draperies of the skirt.

They are not used on hats as much as on gowns, although one could find blossoms in chapeau hats placed on flat Empire hats of glittering black chiffon.

Sleeves Are Almost Unknown on Evening Gowns, Says Miss Rittenhouse, Writing From Paris

TWO BEAUTIFUL GOWNS DESIGNED FOR HOT WEATHER DAYS BY BERNARD AND PAQUIN

SIMPLICITY IN SUMMER FURNISHINGS

Few American housekeepers would care to carry the art of elimination in household decoration so far as the Japanese, who have nothing in many of their rooms except a couple of cushions and a chrysanthemum in a bamboo pot, but it is none the less true that simplicity is the greatest charm of any room, if it be allied to a sense of beauty.

This happy combination is usually obtained in the houses of the white residents in the tropics, and still more so in the homes of the Japanese. As a house is to be comfortable in a tropical climate, it must be furnished simply and sparingly. Out of this necessity there arises some beautiful effects in furnishing and decoration which ought to be studied and copied by American women.

noted for comfort and charm. They always attract the enthusiastic admiration of the tourist, and yet the women who create them go to work in the most simple fashion.

Take the drawing-room of an English or an American woman living in India. It is a large, airy room, with several big windows, which are either undraped or only hung with small gauze curtains. The floors are uncarpeted, but their dark mahogany or cedar is beautifully polished. A comfortable cane lounge, with many cushions, is placed near a window. A small tea table or two and a few easy wicker chairs complete the furniture of the room, the entire cost of which is less than a tenth of the sum usually paid for the drawing-room equipment of a middle class American home.

Now comes those decorative touches which add such a charm to any room. A tall stand, with a large drooping fern upon it, is placed behind the lounge, and at the foot of the lounge a young palm, with its sweeping dark green folds, conveys a sense of peace and repose. The room is usually darkened by a green lattice veranda and green jalousies. Nothing makes a room so pleasing to the eye as a well-shaped, soft, green light. This is so easily obtained that the little trouble it gives is well spent.

Only palms and ferns assist this atmosphere and look really well. Other green plants, although, perhaps, beautiful in themselves, take away rather than add to the general effect of an artistic drawing-room. There is a tendency to over-elaboration in the floral decoration of many American homes.

A Delightful Tent--Reduced

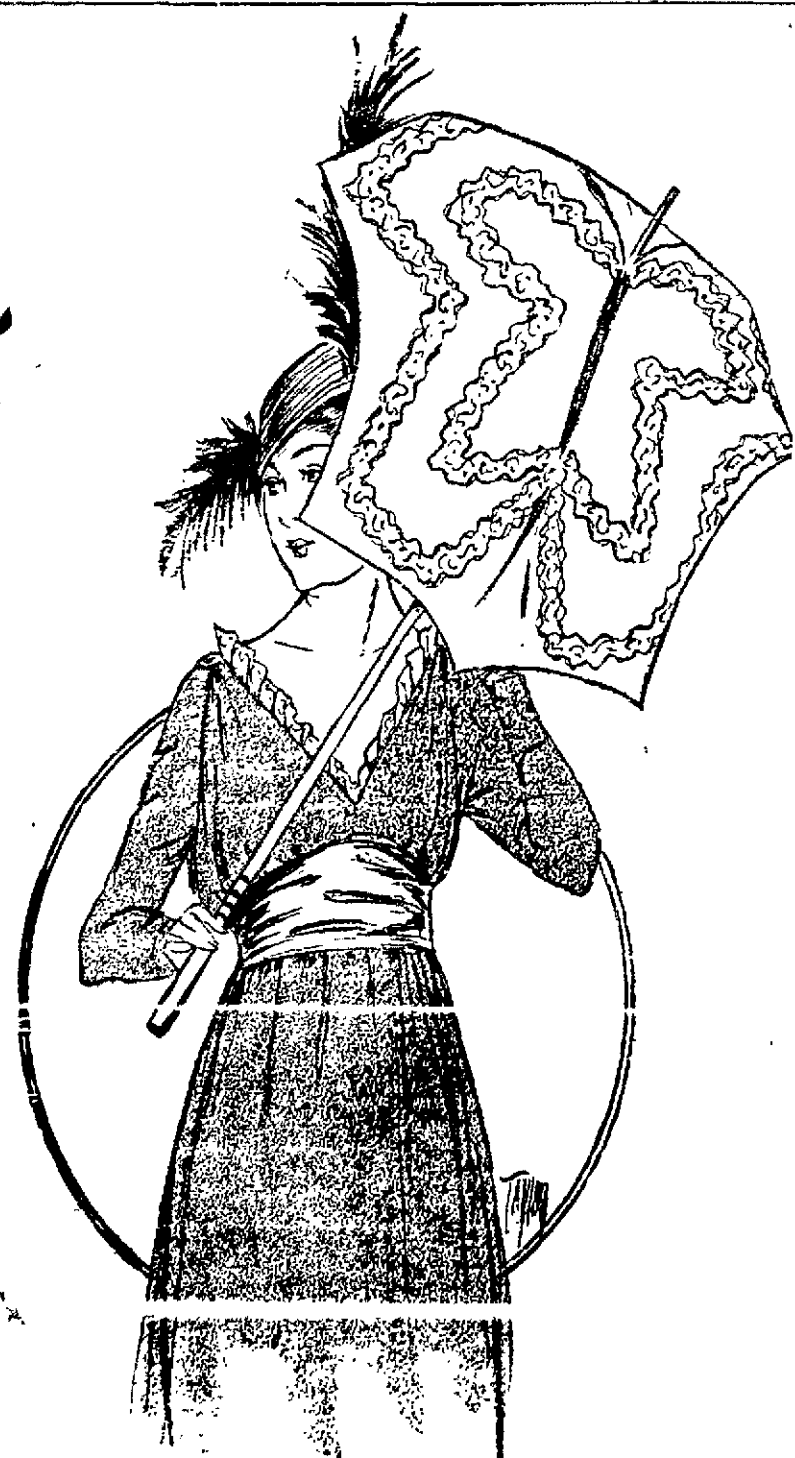

Some of the stores are selling out their camping supplies at reduced prices. One big store has offered for about a hundred and thirty-five rollers a tent that usually sells at a hundred and fifty. It is twenty feet long, and nine or ten feet wide. There are three rooms, a central living room, and a section at each side for beds. Each end accommodates two cots. There are windows, well screened, and two doors with screens, and there is an awning for the sunny side of the house.

An additional bed to go with this or any other camping outfit costs nine or ten dollars. It consists of a cot over which is a waterproof cover with screened sides and flaps to cover them in case of storms. The cot has substantial legs that hold it well above the ground, and inside it is as cozy as a little tent.

Odd Sort of Note Paper

For the woman who seeks the unusual in note paper there is the double sheet with an inch-wide flap turning back from the second sheet over the first, from top to bottom. On this flap is an initial, an inch and a half high, and much elongated.

THE ORIGINAL BUTTERFLY SUNSHADE

that are worn with black tulle gowns trimmed with jet. One rose is worn somewhere about the costume at every hour of the day. The woman who placed a large single crimson blossom at the back of a low necked blouse was probably too extreme; maybe she had read that one of the famous rich New York women had worn a tremendous ornament of diamonds and emeralds swanlike down the back of her neck instead of the front; but whatever the reason she carried the idea further in eccentricity than any other woman does.

The fashionable spot is to place the rose against the neck on the left shoulder, and it is rather artistic when added to the middle back of a high Bernhardine.

THE NEW LONG COATS.
On the new long Russian coats with the belt around the hips, a huge flower is placed in front of the belt, and on evening gowns there is usually a rose on the left shoulder strap.

The long tunic pleated at the waist line and hanging over a short narrow skirt has developed into a new coat, which is being ordered by many Americans and will probably be widely worn in September over there as it is here in July.

The coat is usually made of blue serge or of white gabardine. There seems to be little choice between these two colors and fabrics from Rome to Copenhagen. So much material is used in the coat that one would think, logically, that the price would mount much higher than the price asked for the short coat of the spring, but a tailor is not logical; therefore the price remains the same, although there is exactly four times the amount of material used in this coat as in that one.

It has broad shoulders with right sleeves and side pleats that start at the bust line and continue almost to the shoe tops where the coat ends. There is a wide belt well below the waistline, and a skirt with a hip yoke from which hang side pleats that are drawn into narrower dimensions at the foot-line.

In Paris, if it is in dark blue, there is often a white waistcoat with a high standing collar, and the broad belt is trimmed with round silver buttons. If it is in white serge the belt is often of corduroy as well as the waistcoat, and the buttons are huge pearl ones that have colored lights in them.

This suit is quite becoming to the average figure, but on the stout woman it is utterly impossible. The yards and yards of material used make her appear three times her normal size, and this is a tragedy that prevents the short dress days.

Among the novelties introduced here is a cape and waistcoat combined. I saw an immensely good-looking one the other day at the coiffeurs, where one sees all the best looking clothes in Paris if one manages to strike there at the right time.

There was a long waistcoat of white corduroy that reached almost to the knee, showing a marlin shirt-waist with a high rolling collar, and attached to this at the shoulders, and swinging well away from it, was a pleated cape of black and white striped worsted. It was lined with white satin and finished with a collar of black velvet that did not come anywhere near the neck.

To sum up the situation so far in Paris it is ruffled skirts, slim bodices, high collars on street gowns, extravagant long coats, circular hip yokes on skirts, narrow hems and the most fanciful shoes that women have ever dared to put on.

IN THE SHOPS

FOR THE SMOKER.

A new possession for any smoker of cigarettes is a small and efficient cigarette-making machine. It takes the form of a small nickel box with a hinged cover and a screw in one end. When you open the box you see a depression just the size of a cigarette, running the length of the box. Into this you press some tobacco. Then you close the cover and turn the screw a few times until the tobacco is pressed into a compact little roll. You open the cover and insert over the tobacco roll the edge of a cigarette paper. Close the box again and turn the screw until all the cigarette paper has disappeared within the box—and the cigarette, after the customary moistening to keep the paper flat, is finished.

THE WOMAN GARDENER'S NEEDS.
There are many women who like to work in their gardens and their wants are well met in the shops. There is the gardening outfit consisting of a cincham parasol and sun bonnet to match. There is the gardening basket in many guises, containing shears and trowel, water-cord and other gardening implements. And now there is a pair of hedge shears of light weight, for a model, designed especially for woman's use.

A CUSHION FOR THE TRAVELER.
There is a small patent leather case, which measures seven by four inches and costs eight and a quarter dollars, that contains comfort for any traveler. Opened it reveals a folded, silk-covered rubber cushion which can be inflated with air without difficulty. It makes traveling whether you be sitting in a steamer chair, or on the cushioned seat of a motor or railroad car, twice as comfortable as traveling without it.

WICKER FOOT STOOLS.
Simple because the woman of today is unacquainted with the foot stool, which is desired not a comfortable stool on which to rest her feet. Modern footstool demands the foot stool, too, on which its daintiness may be displayed. The wicker foot stool is a sensible choice for summer. One of the round design, with four legs and a solidly woven top, costs three dollars, but others less expensive can be bought in shops that make a specialty of wicker ware.

FIRE-PROOF GLASS PERCOLATOR.
There is a new percolator on the market and it is unlike the old sort. It is made entirely of glass. It costs five dollars to the size that holds four cups of breakfast size. There is a small glass which holds the water. The advantage of this percolator is said to be the absence of metal which, according to some coffee enthusiasts, might give an unpleasant taste sometimes to the coffee cooled in it.

A TWENTY-FIVE CENT CASE.
Twenty-five cents is the price of a week-end bag that seems as capacious when its size is considered—as the wonderful bag that belonged to Mother Robinson of story-book fame. It is a cruet-like bag, rubber lined, and it holds a wash cloth, a tooth brush and various small sundries such as soap and cold cream that are needed in the simplest toilet.

FOR THE SUIT AND THE SHOES.
Ninety-nine cents is the price of a pair of folding shoe forms and a folding coat hanger; they are packed into a crash case. So for less than a dollar the traveler can be assured of wrinkleless coat, smooth skirt and well-shaped boots.

TO KEEP THE BABY IN.
There is a most convenient little pen on wheels in which to keep a baby. The pen can be folded and packed into a stout canvas bag so that it can be taken about with you when you travel. It is made of wire netting, finished in silver, and mounted on white enameled metal frame, and it rolls on rubber-tired wheels. There is a wire spring in the bottom, and on this a mattress. The baby can be put in the little wheeled pen and pushed about without inconvenience to himself or the fatigue that comes from much lifting to his nurse or mother. And he is safe, for the sides of the pen are so high that he cannot fall out.

LAND FROM STEAMER; GET MARRIAGE PERMITS

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Two happy pairs landed from the Aquitania and hurried to the municipal building to get marriage licenses as the last chapter in a dual romance in which both brides-to-be had to be met, wooed and won during the five-day voyage.

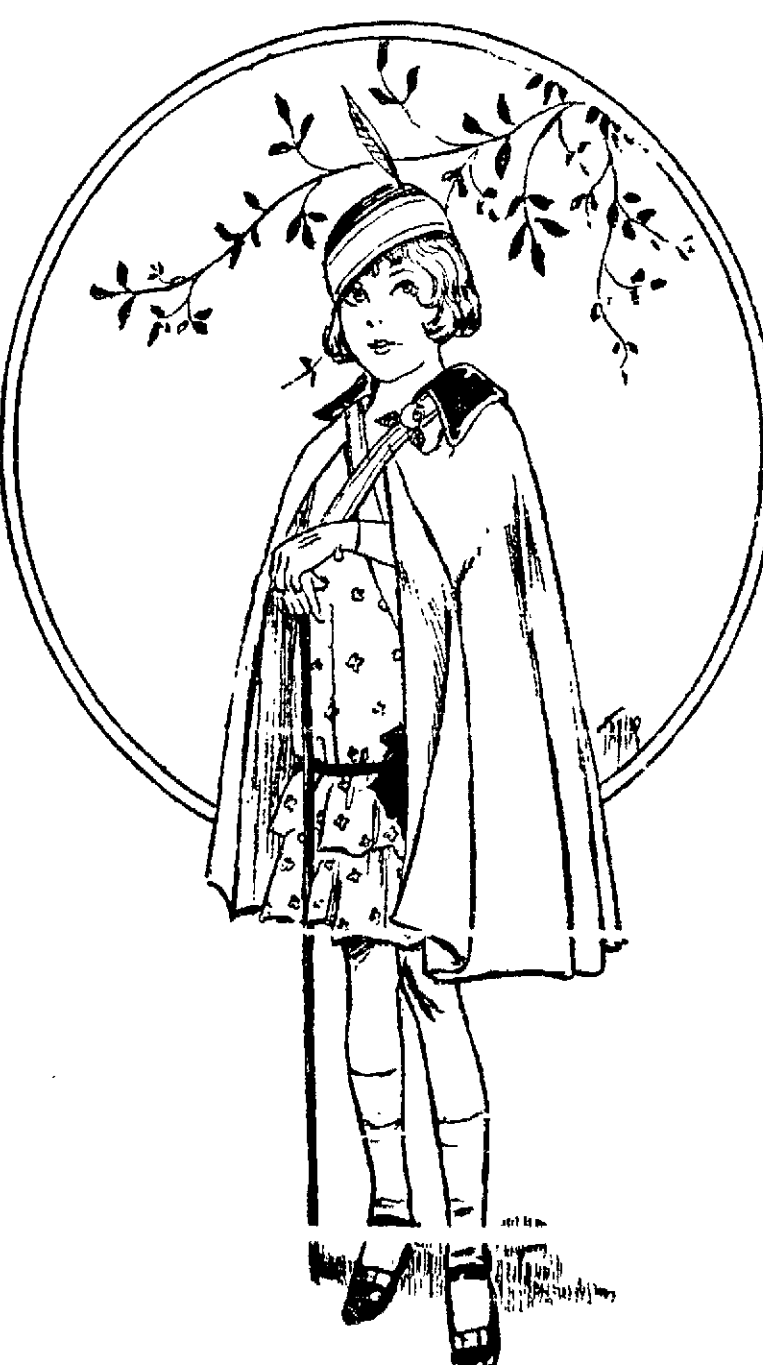

Both pairs pleaded with Captain Turner to waive the ancient Scottish law, permitting sea captains to perform the marriage ceremony, but he declined, saying that as the Aquitania was a fast ship they could wait until it docked.

Miss Paula Fien, 35, Santa Barbara, Cal., was returning from a visit to relatives at Dresden when she met and became engaged to William Thum, of Brooklyn, on board ship.

CHEMIST SNEEZES AWAY RADIUM WORTH $25,000

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 15.—A chemist working over a receptacle containing $25,000 worth of radium temporarily lost control of his sneeze. When he recovered $25,000 worth of radium was gone.

CHILDREN LIKE MODISH CAPES, TOO

EVEN the little girl feels at home in a cape. This one is made of white gabardines with a black velvet collar.

GOSSIP FROM SAN FRANCISCO WEEKLIES

Filmy Witticism,
As They See It

At the opening performance of the Princess Theater players at the Columbia appeared Corporal Peter Peshon of the Board of Censors. He was there to see that the Muse of Comedy behaved herself. Now Corporal Peter Peshon is no private. He has had wide experience of the drama. In the movies, and he has proved himself sensibly tolerant, though he has seen dramas which he has had cut down by tape measurement. Now he had heard of the rumors about the Princess players. Somebody had informed him that the Blinn repertoire was streaked with the bluest of bluests. So he was on the alert. He sat through "Hail Karl" without a blush. He saw nothing wrong in the play but the Jap. The only bad taste he could find was the young woman's. Then came "En Deshabille." This comedy startled him a bit. When the man in the pajamas got into bed, Corporal Peter Peshon frowned a little. Though he's no playwright, when he saw the lady taking the pins out of her hair he began to imagine the drift of the thing. But when he found they were respectable married folk, he went outside to cool off. In the lobby he met Manager Melville Marx and the Chronicle's critic, Wally Young. "What do you think of the show?" asked Mr. Marx.

The censor of films observed that there was nothing wrong with it, but he could see where "that French play" might be toned down a little. "Of course it's all right," he said, "but the lady in bed, if that could be cut out, it—"

"That's right," the Chronicle's critic interrupted, addressing himself to Marx, "cut about two hundred feet out of it."

The most enterprising press agent could not have done better by the Columbia than Chief of Police White did when he expressed his doubts about the propriety of the Holbrook Blinn playlets and asked the Board of Censors to attend the opening performance. As soon as the Chief's action was announced in the papers eager patrons of the art theater began besieging the box office in Geary street. Despite the fact that the war news monopolized the first four or five pages of the papers, and that this item of theatrical information was hidden away where it had to be looked for, all our best people and a great many not quite so good, immediately hurried downtown to reserve seats for the premiere. Everybody had the same thought—there must not be a second night, or the second night's performance might be as innocuous and stupid as a powdered version of Les Contes Drolatiques. The Board of Censors constituted a factor of unknown value in the theatrical equation. They might censor, and they might not. Why take a chance? "Two seats for the first night please, and as near the stage as possible!"—Town Talk.

Chicago Vendetta
Transplanted Here

To do Chief White simple justice, it must be mentioned that he was fully aware of the precious advertising he was lavishing on Messrs. Gottlieb and Marx when he intimated to them that it might be necessary for him to put the lid on the Princess plays in the interest of public morality. "Gus" White is broad-minded, and endowed with a sense of humor that makes him humanly tolerant. I doubt whether in his heart of hearts he takes the Board of Censors very seriously or is anxious to see their functions extended to include the censoring of legitimate drama as well as film plays. But Chief White felt compelled to act. Esprit de corps urged him on. The Chief of Police of Chicago had taken the trouble to wire the Chief of Police of San Francisco that the plays produced by Holbrook Blinn and his associates were immoral, indecent, obscene, naughty, wicked, demoralizing and subversive of public order. I do not pretend to quote his very terms, but Chicago's Chief of Police feels strongly on the subject, and no doubt he used even stronger adjectives than these I have set down. Holbrook Blinn happens to be that functional black beast, his pet aversion. On Holbrook Blinn and all his works and pomps and plays and players the Chicago Chief of Police has declared a war of extermination. He has sworn a vendetta of horrendous import. Naturally our "Gus" could not ignore the warning served upon him by a distinguished colleague. So, though he knew his interference would cause the Columbia on opening night, he felt compelled to take action. To give him his due Chief White smiled good-naturedly when Mel Marx gravely thanked him for his interference and told him that it had packed the Columbia to the last row of the gallery for the first time in its history. Marx thanked the Chief in the lobby before the show. Of course the Chief was there. It would be a cowardly Chief of Police who would hesitate to risk his own morals at a performance to which he had despatched Corporal Peter Peshon and the rest of the Censors.

San Francisco is the first city the Princess Players have visited since their memorable experience in Chicago, so this engagement has given the Chief of Police of the Windy City his first chance to strike at Holbrook Blinn. Chicago is a very cultured city, but it is not without the taint of provincial puritanism. The fig leaf is highly regarded in Chicago as a buckler of morality. This may seem strange to those who remember that eminent authorities like Gertrude Atherton and Mrs. Fiske have declared Chicago to be the center of American culture, but let us remember that centers of culture know their Emerson and have a proper disdain for an enslaving constancy. Cultured Chicago received the Princess Players with eyes modestly downcast and minds troubled by doubt. They had heard about the productions from adventurous men who had risked their immortal souls by visiting the little Princess Theater in New York. So they resolved not to dally with the chances of damnation. The Chief of Police is the guardian of Chicago morals, and he sent a policeman to a rehearsal of the Princess players in such a scandalized state of mind that Holbrook Blinn was told he must be packing. So there were no Princess plays presented in Chicago. But before he went his way Blinn took occasion to say what he thought about the Chief of Police. He has a pretty facility of police vituperation, has Hal of our town. He knows the secret of compounding verbal Greek fire. If he wrote his indignation on blue litmus paper, the paper would turn red. The castigation he gave the Chicago Chief was a triumph of literary expression. It was published far and wide, and held the Chief up to considerable scorn. He's smarting from it yet. Hence the vendetta. Happy the man who can advance the cause of morality and prosecute a private revenge at one and the same time!—Town Talk.

Moral Spasms
of San Francisco

We of San Francisco are perhaps not so cultured as the Illuminati who dwell

And perhaps we are not less moral. So we may view with complacency the little storm of scrupulousness that has been stirred up over the Blinn engagement at the Columbia. We have known these storms before. They are periodical in their nature, and do neither much good nor much harm. There have been many occasions in our creditable theatrical annals when plays have been protested. The censors have been called out in force before. You cannot have forgotten that "The Blue Mouse" was suspect, and that two detectives passed on "The Girl from Rector's." Indeed, it is not so long since the movie censors, by way of diversion perhaps, attended the first production of a Paul Armstrong melodrama of eugenics at the Alcazar. Yet, with the exception of Saint Morse's Passion Play (which received the countenance of the saintly Archbishop Alemany but offended the tender susceptibilities of certain Methodist ministers), I cannot recall a single instance when a play was actually suppressed by official action.

I have not forgotten "The Turtle." "The Turtle" would seem unduly respectable if presented today, we have so broadened our ideas in these matters, but at the time of its production it gave every community it came into the most violent of convulsions. There was quite a flutter about it in San Francisco as soon as it was advertised for presentation at the California Theater. The people of the McDonough estate threatened to break San Francisco's lease on the theater if he dared to house its unexpurgated nastiness. So it was a very stupid and unbecoming "Turtle" that crawled onto the California stage on the opening night. A packed house was disappointed; the expected salacity was absent. "I wouldn't take Little Egypt to see 'The Turtle,'" said Ashton Stevens next morning, and went on to explain that he wouldn't insult the original ringleader of the Midway Pleasure by asking her to sit through its deadly dullness. The second night the California didn't hold a corporal's guard. "The Turtle," you see, was censured by the landlord, not by the police. The nearest the police ever came to interfering with a play, so far as my recollection goes, was when they served notice on Manager Kurtzig of the little Columbia in McAllister street that White's "Salome" would not be permitted if the Dance of the Seven Veils was indecorously executed. But they might have saved themselves the trouble. Letta Jewell, San Francisco's first Salome, was still so Mary Garden. When she got through unwrapping her seven veils there was still so much chaste muslin swathed about her body that—my memory is not playing me false, I think—even Herod showed considerable disappointment!—Town Talk.

Is in Evidence

There is no reason why we should be unduly humiliated by these spasmodic outbreaks of pseudo-morality. They are not confined to small, isolated communities like ours. They are as old as recorded history. Let us remember always that the cult of the fig leaf began in the Garden of Eden. Adam and Eve were the first Puritans! There were thin-lipped, dour Greeks who shook their heads over the nudities of the Gymnasium; Romans who found matter for criticism in the unveiled marble Venuses the sculptors delighted to chisel. History is full of the censoring of plays, books, pictures and statues. Savonarola flourished, not in Chicago but in Florence. Paris was always a liberal city, yet even in the early going days before the Revolution the censor was a busy little cup of tea. Has not Anatole France preserved for us the figure of M. Nicodemus, the president of the Purity League of Paris at the beginning of the eighteenth century? You have of course read that veracious book wherein Jacques Turpin preserves the opinions of his dear master the Abbe Coignard, so you remember the day M. Nicodemus bustled into the bookshop of M. Blazot in the Rue St. Jacques and complained that a volume of Ronsard in the window was open at the frontispiece which displayed the figure of a woman clothed only in her hair. "The end that I pursue," explained M. Nicodemus, "is to outdo in niceness in the matter of modesty the regulations of the Lieutenant de Police." And that is the end every Anthony Comstock of them all has pursued before and since. "We have," exclaimed M. Nicodemus, "fixed six hundred vine or fig leaves on the statues in the King's park." The rebuke which Abbe Coignard administered from his point of vantage at the top of a ladder where he was devouring a volume of Casiodorus, is good for the busy-bodies of today, so I shall quote it: "Seeing that objects have no meaning for us save by association of ideas, in placing vine leaves and fig leaves on statues, you transfer the quality of indecency to the leaves; so that one can no longer see vine or fig trees on the countryside without conceiving them as sheltering some indecency!"

About a year ago when Lady Dealess was appearing at the Palace of Music in London she was assailed by fig-leaf fanaticism headed by the good Bishop of Kensington. The Bishop was so wrought up over Lady's performance that he wrote a letter to the Times about her, and demanded that her act be suppressed. George Bernard Shaw rushed to her defense, and some of the remarks he addressed to the episcopal puritan are worthy of the pondering of the San Franciscans who want to fig-leaf our drama. The Bishop, he said, "is proceeding on the assumption that his conscience is more enlightened than that of the people who go to the Palace Theater and enjoy what they see there. If the Bishop may shut up the Palace Theater on this assumption, then the Non-conformist patrons of the Palace may shut up the Church of England by turning the assumption inside out." Furthermore, said Shaw, "if such individual and sectarian standards were tolerated we should have no plays at all, for there never was a play that did not offend somebody's taste." Are our souls to have no adventures because adventures are dangerous, he asked. "Carry that an obvious step farther and the Bishop of Kensington will be gagged because he might at any moment utter false doctrines favored this move, and Messrs. Ewing, Ish and Baum naturally inclining to stand by the Guns and Stay with the New Park.

To the Ewing-Ish faction, the Re-opening of negotiations with "Ed" Walters for the use of Recreation Park is a sour pill to take. However, the Ewing lease on Recreation Park has still some time to run, and it is not likely that it will come back to Valencia street for just a short spell of time until general business and prosperity conditions re-adjust themselves. It will be recalled that Walters was eliminated as a stockholder in the Oakland Club two years ago, but quickly countered by securing an option on Recreation Park in this city, when the Ewing lease would expire in 1915. For Ewing to continue there, Walters asked an exorbitant lease rental. Then Messrs. Ewing and Ish built the present splendid and admirable plant at Geary and Masonic avenue.

Chaffing Prexy Wheeler
Is Merry Game

The Bohemians who attended Dr. Shields' grove play had a great time chaffing Benjamin Wheeler about the troubles of his friend Kaiser Wilhelm. The president of the University of California might have enjoyed his stay in the Bohemian Grove much more if the war talk (which divided interest with "Nec-Natama") had not turned so persistently on the apparently desperate condition of the German army. Everybody in Bohemia knows that Benjamin is a great friend of Wilhelm. He always refers to that august personage as "my dear friend the Kaiser," and it is pretty generally understood from his conversation that when Wheeler is in Berlin he calls the Kaiser "Bill" and that the Kaiser reciprocates by addressing him as "Benjy." So the Bohemians made a point of putting Prexy Wheeler on the defensive. They were loud in their praise of Belgian prowess. They read in his hearing dispatches stating that the German gunners exhibited poor marksmanship, and that the German commanders showed lack of initiative and enterprise. They wondered why a fighting machine like the German army should have invaded Belgium without victualing itself properly. In fact they lost no opportunity of baiting Wheeler. And he satisfied their expectations by attempting to explain. His stay at the grove was one long exposition of German strength, one continuous explanation of German reverses. Whereas his tormentors laughed gleefully in their sleeves. Which serves to remind me that shortly after the conclusion of the Balkan War, President Wheeler wrote for the Literary Supplement of the New York Times a review of Alfred H. Fried's book "The German Emperor and the Peace of the World." This review which bore the name of President Wheeler was headed "The Mailed Fist; a Flimsy of the Imagination, Says a Pacifist." The heading goes a little further than Prexy Wheeler goes in his article; yet the article is strange reading in view of what has happened during the past three weeks. "Germany cannot wait for any further annexations of European territory," writes Wheeler. "It cannot afford to disturb the present balance of races and creeds." Also: "Germany wants first of all quiet and order in Europe." There will be no war—unless Britain, under the long strain of her suspicions, should entreat herself at some unfortunate moment to the guidance of extremists who believe in striking before Germany attains her full naval strength. . . . To the outside observer it is the chief wonder that the people of Britain have been so slow to recognize that the Emperor is their best friend in Europe." These quotations seem to indicate not only that Prexy Wheeler is not endowed with prophetic gifts—a circumstance that doesn't surprise—but also that he lacks the discretion which might have prevented him from setting down his dogmatic assertions where they could be used to encourage him. But his condition is not so bad as Starr Jordan's, for Jordan was caught in the tangles of war while preaching universal peace.

The much wanted land extends through what is known as the Holiday Farm. When Mr. Astor learned that the village sought the land so as to open a new approach to the railroad, he opened negotiations for the purchase. He finally closed a deal, and today it was announced that he had offered the land to the village without price.

The gift was accepted, and with the aid of Mr. Astor the village officials will begin the work of laying out a highway.

A somewhat similar instance of public-spiritedness was given at Napa, by our San Francisco millionaire Adolph Spreckels. The road between Mr. Spreckels' fine stock farm and the town was in wretched condition, and no money in the county treasury to make the repairs. Mr. Spreckels built a fine road at his own expense and about every motorist who visits Napa knows how good the road is, for the Spreckels farm is one of the show places of Napa—Wasp.

Generous Millionaires,
Are Some of 'Em

Vincent Astor has presented to the village of Rhinecliff, N. Y., a strip of land to be used by the village as a highway leading to the New York Central station.

The village tried to buy the property several months ago for highway purposes, but the owner refused to sell for less than $25,000. The village could not afford to pay this and the project was given up.

Society Leaders as Grand Jurors

Is the federal grand jury getting into society? Or is society getting into the federal grand jury? Probably it's the latter way. A new federal grand jury has just been impaneled by Judge Dowling, and in the list are Harry Simpkins, Gus and Will Taylor. I need not mention that these are very important society men. Gus and Will Taylor are important in themselves, socially considered, and tremendously important as the husbands respectively of Helen and Edna Hopkins. In the list they appear as Ironmongers, not as society men. Harry Simpkins is listed without occupation, simply as "Harry Simpkins, University Club." That of course is a residence, not an occupation. Harry Simpkins is a capitalist, and doesn't have to work for a living. On his social importance I do not have to dilate. There was a time when many thought he would marry Jennie Crocker, but he didn't. There three men will lend tone to the federal grand jury. If it meets at night they are sure to attend in dinner coats, which will impress the other jurors and amuse Judge Dowling who never wears a dinner coat in his life. Indeed, I don't think Judge Dowling ever condescended his menly bosom within the limits of a "holled shirt." He prefers a hickory shirt for all occasions. Harry Simpkins and the two Taylors will find the Judge's hickory shirt very interesting. As for most work, they will find that interesting too, no doubt—as interesting, let us say, as summing. They are to serve till November, which means that they are going to miss some of the winter's festivities. Doing one's duty to the State involves sacrifice, you see.—Town Talk.

Ewing Park
a Plain Liege

The new Ewing Park, out in the Richmond District, has proven a veritable Liege.

The Seals have lost money since the Remove out there, and the whole Pacific Coast League Circuit has not taken out of this city one half of the money pulled down in seasons past. The Berrys, the McCredes and the others are inclined to blame it on our beautiful New Park.

The mysterious Conclave of the League Moguls at the St. Francis Hotel on July 28 was about this very thing. The daily papers said not a word of the Real and Innermost reason for the Conference; so we'll serve you the News, though a little belated. The Up-shot of the Conclave is that Negotiations are now pending, with a fair show of success, which will lead to a Return, for this Season

When he gave Max the appointment to the commission he thought he was rewarding a zealous, disinterested patriot, but so the story goes, somebody has told him that when Max was making the fight for civic purity it was on a cash basis—something like a thousand a month. If such was the case the Mayor is deserving of rebuke on having picked out at least one business man to give verisimilitude to the profession of a business administration. I asked one of the newspapermen who reported the hearing how he accounted for this, and he said, "I guess the priests and the rabbis were too busy ministering to their flocks to have any time for this particular matter of uplift." I shouldn't be surprised if he was right.—Town Talk.

The Seals will shortly have a new infielder. His name is Bob Jones and he is the third-sacker who has been playing with Ogden in the Union Association. The Seals had the first claim on the club and, as Jones is well recommended, decided to call him here at once. Comiskey has an option through the sale of Doc White to Venice last fall, and can take any man out of the club he wants. In the recent proposed trade between Oakland and Venice, Klepper was figured as part of the deal. Jogian was willing to give Klepper, Litch and Elliott for Pruiett, Hettling and Mizze. The deal fell through because no arrangement could be made which would strengthen the Oakland infield.—Wasp.

Adding to School
Department's Plans

The Oakland recreation department proposes to appoint an official story teller. "A storyteller for children has long been desired in the playground work," says George Dickie, superintendent of playgrounds, "and will add greatly to the efficiency of the department's work among the children. Story telling is an art in itself, and is a source of much entertainment and education when carried on in a systematic way among the young folks." This form of municipal vaudeville might very well be supplemented with official instruction in the tango and the hesitation waltz.—News Letter.

Lifting the Lid
In San Francisco

So the police commissioners have decided to permit dancing in some restaurants one night a week! Is this a concession to the spirit of San Francisco that Mayor Ralph loves to prate about? And whereabouts in the decalogue do we find the night that need not be kept like a Connecticut Sabbath? Mysteriously are the irrationalities of the current dispensation at the City Hall. Apparently, dancing in the philosophy of this dispensation is not an unholy pastime. It is tolerable, but like everything else in this day and generation it must be regulated. Terpsichore must not be given her head, else she may run amuck with her tambourine and use her garland of flowers to catch souls as susceptible as the average San Francisco citizen.

Curiosity Satisfied
In Doctor's Grove Play

There must have been great curiosity among the eight hundred and sixty Bohemians who were present at the lush grove to see how Dr. J. Wilson Shields would acquit himself as a playwright. As I did not see "Nec-Natama," I am not a very good judge of its merit. Even if one was uneducated the most of realizing a drama from the printed page, one cannot do full justice to its worth by merely perusing it. In the reading, I must say, it is impressive. "Nec-Natama," the author tells us, means Comradeship, and Dr. Shields found his theme by imagining the condition into which an Indian tribe would be plunged if love was banished from their midst and hate took possession of their hearts. As the doctor's purpose was the inculcation of a moral lesson by means of symbolism, he took what liberties he pleased not only with Indian character but also with nature. We are to suppose that among these primitive people love held dominion until one day a white man who had been saved miraculously from the stake, succumbed to the charms of the Hate Woman, whereupon the cycle of hate began, to continue until a captive maiden inspires the Hate Chief of the tribe with a pure passion, thus teaching him self-restraint and restoring the reign of love. From the nature of the theme "Nec-Natama" is beautiful rather than strong. It is sentimental rather than true. But it lends itself to picturesque treatment, the end no doubt that Dr. Shields kept in view. It is a carefully written play. Many of the speeches consist of chopped-off phrases that must be effective on the stage in conveying the laconic style we associate with Indians; but the reader finds his pleasure in the more elaborate speeches written in the metre of "Hawahia," and in the songs. Dr. Shields' songs read very well indeed; they prove him, not a poet indeed but a graceful versifier. The best recitative is that in which the High Priest tells the story of the coming of the White Man to the wood and the evil events that followed. The best lyric is "The Song of the Trees," it is good to read, and it must have been very effective when sung. "Nec-Natama" is not to be numbered among the best of Bohemia's grove dramas, but it is a worthy performance, and there is no reason why Dr. Shields should plead in extenuation that he is a physician, not a writer.

The consensus of opinion in Bohemia seems to be that "Nec-Natama" disappointed expectations. "Too much dialogue, and not enough action" is the way I have heard a number of Bohemians sum it up. All agree that the stage effects were very beautiful, particularly the cancanes which flowed down the mountainside to splash into the pool on the stage. The electric lighting of the water was incredibly contrived and excited enthusiasm. The music of Ula Waldrop I have heard described as "too sugary." It is significant that at the Sunday morning concert Wallace Sablin was given an ovation when he arose to

This Inky War

Admiral Mahan is a wise prophet, who attaches a useful and competent string to his prophecies. He refuses, now that the matter is in the way of immediate test, to commit himself on the moot question whether the dreadnoughts and super-dreadnoughts are junk, chiefly dangerous to their own crews, or are really effective engines of war. On the other hand, H. G. Wells has burned his dreadnoughts behind him, and says he would just as soon go to sea in St. Paul's Cathedral as in one of these modern monsters. Then, again, in this inky war of the experts, there is another ingenious proponent who is writing for the papers, and declares that the warlike influence of a fleet may be chiefly "static and noiseless." This perhaps is a form of moral support afforded by a fleet bottled up in harbor and afraid to come out for fear of being attacked by the submarines.—News Letter.

As to Jackling
and His Plans

The grand bachelor apartment for Corporal King Jackling that includes an entire floor of the new St. Francis wing is nearly completed. But will it be a bachelor apartment? That remains to be seen. There is just a chance that Jackling may take a bride into its luxurious ease. A bachelor is never a confirmed bachelor until he's dead, and as Jackling is very sure you never can tell when he'll marry. Jackling is in Alaska just now on his splendid yacht, Cyprus, and there are guests aboard, for he's a great entertainer. It happens that among the guests is Mr. E. B. Braden, a member of the Pacific Union and the Claremont Country Club. His daughter hasn't made her debut yet, but she's immensely popular on both sides of the bay. Incidentally she is receiving a great deal of attention from the Copper King. Decidedly, it is in order to ask whether Jackling will enter his new hotel home as a bachelor or as a benedict.—Town Talk.

Effect of the War on Trade and Industry

The temporary halt in trade, owing to the European war, cannot last long and must be succeeded by a period of unexampled activity in business and industry. Europe must be supplied with the necessities of life and with millions of men divorced from productive activities and consuming great quantities of food and munitions of war, this country will necessarily be called on to supply the lack. For the moment, transportation by sea is halted, but this is a condition that cannot continue. We may look for decisive battles shortly to determine the command of the sea.

Already the influence of the prospective demand for the great staples has been felt by the market. The price of sugar has in the past week marked a sensational advance, which more than neutralizes the tariff reductions. How important the Hawaiian sugar planters and too best sugar people consider the buoyant upward movement of this staple may be gleaned from the fact that the advance of the last five days is more than double the amount of protection removed from the industry on March 1, 1914. This reduction of the sugar schedules, when it went into effect on that date, cost the beet growers and the Hawaiian cane planters $50 a ton.

Mrs. Sharon's
Hands

The tea rooms of the Palace and St. Francis are the rendezvous for the returned smart-setters these days. At the Palace during the tea hour Tuesday a handsome young army officer remarked to his charming companion that he liked the idea of marriage but that the idea of resistance for him consisted of the hands of Mrs. Frederick Sharon. Naturally I studied Mrs. Sharon's hands. The son of Mars was right. They are unusually fine hands. They are as exquisitely shaped as the hands of a Phidian Venus and as white as lilies with rose-tipped finger nails. They are graceful hands that flutter like petals. And they are expressive hands, the revealing signs of a charming personality. They are hands for a painter to delight in; hands that only a poet like Austin Dobson could fittingly celebrate. I am grateful to the soldier for calling my attention to Mrs. Sharon's hands.—Town Talk.

Experimenting
In Oakland

The University of California proposes to institute an interesting experiment in Oakland in the way of a preparatory school to fit students for the university. This will be a sort of laboratory in which the children will be the subjects of experiment in methods of pedagogy. The plan is undertaken at the invitation of the Oakland Board of Education and the school authorities will cooperate in the establishment of the University School at Forty-eighth and Webster streets, designed for the purpose of secondary or high school education.

It has long been the desire of the department of education of the University of California, of which the director is Prof. Alexis F. Lezine, to supplement the work given in the theory of education with actual laboratory practice in a secondary school designed especially for this purpose. The State Board of Education requires a certain amount of teaching experience which will now be gained by students of pedagogy. It is hoped, in large part in the new university school in Oakland. It will be operated under the supervision of the University of California, with Professor C. E. Rush, of the department of education, as principal, and will be conducted as a secondary school. Malcom Whitmans to Desert Local Society

It is said in Burlingame that as soon as Malcom Whitman recovers fully from the operation for appendicitis, he will return to New York, and that means the loss to local society of his exceedingly popular wife. Mr. Whitman is very loyal to the East and in several respects it has advantages over our Wild and Woolly West, where society is composed of as many heterogeneous ingredients as a boarding house stew. Anything from scraps of roast beef to discarded collar buttons are likely to be found in the mixture—or mess, if you prefer the term.

Many exceedingly conventional people also have grown here in Old World communities like the hurly-burly and catch-as-catch-can style of our Wild Western Smart set. To a blasé cosmopolitan, it is an amusing novelty like a dinner of corn beef and cabbage after a diet of broiled chicken and frogs legs, or like champagne orgy. Some Eastern people, however, take a long time to become acclimated in the Far West. They retain their New England ideals and revolt against the letting down of the bars and the letting in of everybody who can increase the gaiety of an occasion and reciprocate with liberal hospitality, regardless of ancestry, education or the Ten Commandments.

Mr. Whitman's attack of appendicitis was very sudden. He was playing tennis in the afternoon and the same night he was under the knife at the Adler hospital. Being an athlete and the possessor of a fine constitution there is every hope that he will soon be around again in perfect health. Meantime, Mrs. Whitman is his most devoted nurse and is refusing all invitations to social affairs. The solicitude for her husband recalls the fact that her sister, the late Mrs. Harrison, was one of the most devoted of wives. Mr. Harrison is the Lieutenant Governor of the Philippines, and by all accounts, a notable misfit for the important position.—Wasp.

This reduction of the sugar schedules, when it went into effect on that date, cost the beet growers and the Hawaiian cane planters $50 a ton.

The protection afforded by the Dingley tariff aggregated $595 a ton for the Hawaiian and domestic products, and the revision lopped off about $60 per unit fixed May 1, 1916, as the effective date for free sugar. With twenty-two months of protection by a duty amounting to a little more than 1 cent a pound before them, and raw sugar steadily declining, small wonder that the sugar people feel jubilant.

Shortly, the Panama canal will be open for trade, so that California products may be cheaply laid down in European ports. For years the export of dried fruits, canned goods, wine, barley, wheat and beans have formed a large portion of the exports of San Francisco to Germany, France and the United Kingdom, the distribution of these products being effected from these centers to other parts of the continent. During the year 1913 San Francisco exported domestic merchandise to England aggregating $7,959,609, to Ireland $555,000, to Scotland $34,000, to Canada $3,322,000, to Australia $3,525,000 to New Zealand $15,000 to British India and other British possessions about $550,000.

California this year has an exceptionally large barley crop, and it was expected that half of the crop, estimated at 550,000 tons, would have been shipped to Europe, but the breaking out of war necessarily will change the destination of all that portion except that now on the sea, and very little of that is of new crop. While the exports of wheat have been diminishing in recent years, there will be a renewed demand now because of the Russian wheat crop being retained at home for their own use. This will naturally increase the price of both wheat and barley and this state will derive the benefit therefrom.

San Francisco already has established an export trade in wine with Great Britain, France and Germany. This trade must get a very material impulse from the fact that the war is certain to cause a great shortage in the product of European vineyards. It is estimated that the shortage in the European crop will total 1,000,000 gallons of wine.—News Letter.

Wonderful Holidays They Are Giving the Children of London in a Vast New Playground—Away from the Crowded City Into a Land of Sunlight and Mystery, with Pirates and Indians, and Fairies, and Many, Many Other Enchantments!

BY LOUISE JAMES.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—To have fairyland made real and to live real fairy stories that once existed only in books and in pictures is the good fortune of the twentieth century child, and Peter Pan and Wendy seem to be the first to be brought from between the covers of a book and placed in actual parks and playgrounds and nurseries.

Away from the crowded city streets where no one ever sees a sunrise or a sunset for a three hours' ride to Thorpeness in Suffolk—and there it is that the child is plunged into a wonderful land of sunlight and mystery, where pirate infested lagoons, magic islands, and smuggler caves beckon most alluringly.

Dozens of children are being taken down every day from London, and soon the accommodations are to be extended so that in ninety more children can be entertained and delighted.

The train stops at Aldeburgh, and there the children are first given a luncheon before driving along the seashore to Thorpeness. Only a mile and a half to Peter Pan land! It is hard to restrain the children to have them eat. For they have been told that they are to see the lagoons and the islands where Peter is always having glorious adventures and where there are swarms of red eyed, fierce looking wolves—and a crocodile which is always chasing Capt. Hook.

Then a visit is paid to a toy shop where guns, pistols, caps, and other such deadly arms are purchased. For it is rumored that Wendy has again been captured by the pirates and that he must be rescued. Also a stock of provisions is laid in, such as buns, chocolates, etc., for it is necessary to provide against a possible siege.

Rather startling to an American parent, such a reckless providing of the young with all the toy implements of war. But England still seems a warlike nation, and no protest has so far been made against such early training in military tactics and spirit.

When Thorpeness is reached the vast playground is displayed. First there is a wide stretch of green grass and white sand, and then there is blue water dotted with countless little islands on which are seen the prettiest cottages and forts and palaces. All Peter Pan land—fairy land for the children to revel in.

A big buccaneer wearing a red stocking cap appears first, and all guns are immediately pointed at him and and pushed off, the pirate boatman saving good-by in the friendliest manner.

Dense masses of reed and bushes are passed, in which land crabs and anacondas and tigers are supposed to abound—and then past Wendy's house to the smuggler's cave and the pirates' dens. Here is where the most serious business of the day commences, for fights have to be fought, voyages of discovery made, and big game adventures undertaken.

Pirates' Cave and Indians.

How the boys do love the pirates' cave! They climb in fearlessly, the girls waiting on the outside. There are Indians, too, whole tribes of them, and they help the boys in the big game hunts.

A wonderful treat all this for the lucky little youngsters, and the popularity of the place is growing so tremendously that it is thought others will have to be erected soon.

Then there are the Peter Pan nurseries, no less novel and delightful. The good work done by Peter Pan in bringing the stars down to the children is already bearing fruit.

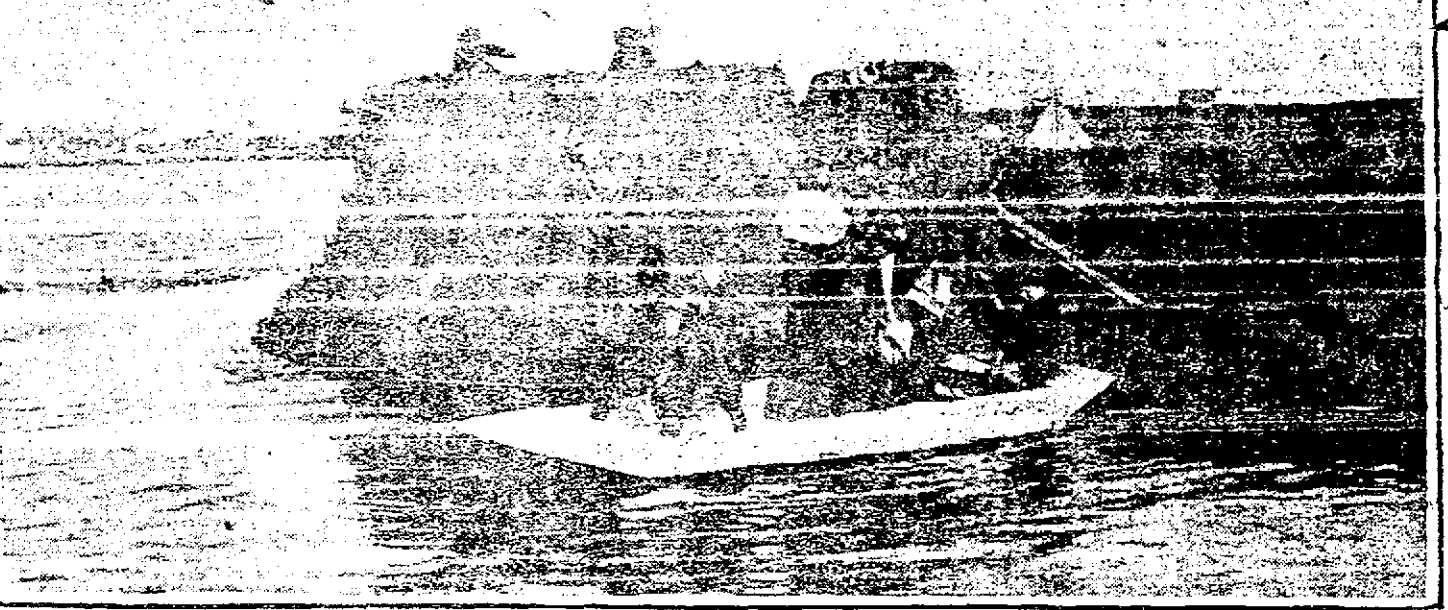

Mr. Kemp Prosser and Geoffrey Holme have built the model nursery and have called it the Island and Starlit nursery. And if all nurseries were as delightful as this there would be no more children refusing, like Peter Pan, to grow up.

It is really a little piece of fairy land, although to reach it one has only to walk along a most prosaic street in Westminster. It is a tree top nursery, for wasn't it Peter Pan who told Wendy what a delightful place the tree tops were to play in? And since the tree tops are a bit too damp for youngsters to have much fun in, this tree top nursery has been designed so that the little Peter Pans of today can play to their hearts' content in all kinds of weather.

On an Enchanted Island.

In these fairy tale nurseries the child lives in a veritable enchanted island all day and sleeps at night under the sheltering branches of a mimic wood. The floor of the nursery is covered with sail cloth to represent the island—and being of sail cloth is much more easily washed and kept clean than islands out of fairy tales usually are—while its walls are painted to look like the sea and the sky. The wallpaper is so painted that the children who look at it closely can see the waves dashing on the shore, and aeroplanes and waterplanes glide smoothly over the sea. Owls and stags and swans peer wistfully at the child from the tiles and fireplaces.

An especially quaint and pretty idea is the cloud at the end of the room. It is outlined with blue and touched with a silver line. If any child asks why the silver shows in the midst of the clouds the answer, of course, is that every cloud has its silver lining. To add further material

Peter Pan Nursery

Sun rays streaming through lemon colored curtains light up little dressers full of toys where the children can sit and play. And because Peter Pan did not believe in chairs there are no chairs in the nursery, but the children sit on soft blue cushions instead.

There are half a dozen other devices for entertainment and amusement. Low shelves for toys that can be hidden by dainty silk curtains when bedtime comes; a pretty child's piano which plays a tune by itself in one note, and a cozy corner for tired limbs is in another. There is a bath of gold fish on the floor in front of the window, and to float toys stands in front of the window, and in its midst a fountain spurts upward from a frog's back.

One is not quite sure what view of the game would be taken by the gold fish after the children had been alone in the room for half an hour. Still, the floor and the walls, gay as they are in their exquisite color scheme, are designed on strictly utilitarian principle, and can be dried as easily as they can be kept clean.

Prettiest of all is the night nursery. The walls are painted with trees, and on the ceiling, which is bright with stars, there floats a mysterious moon. The moon and the stars are to keep the wicked bogies away, and no child need fear in that fairy wood.

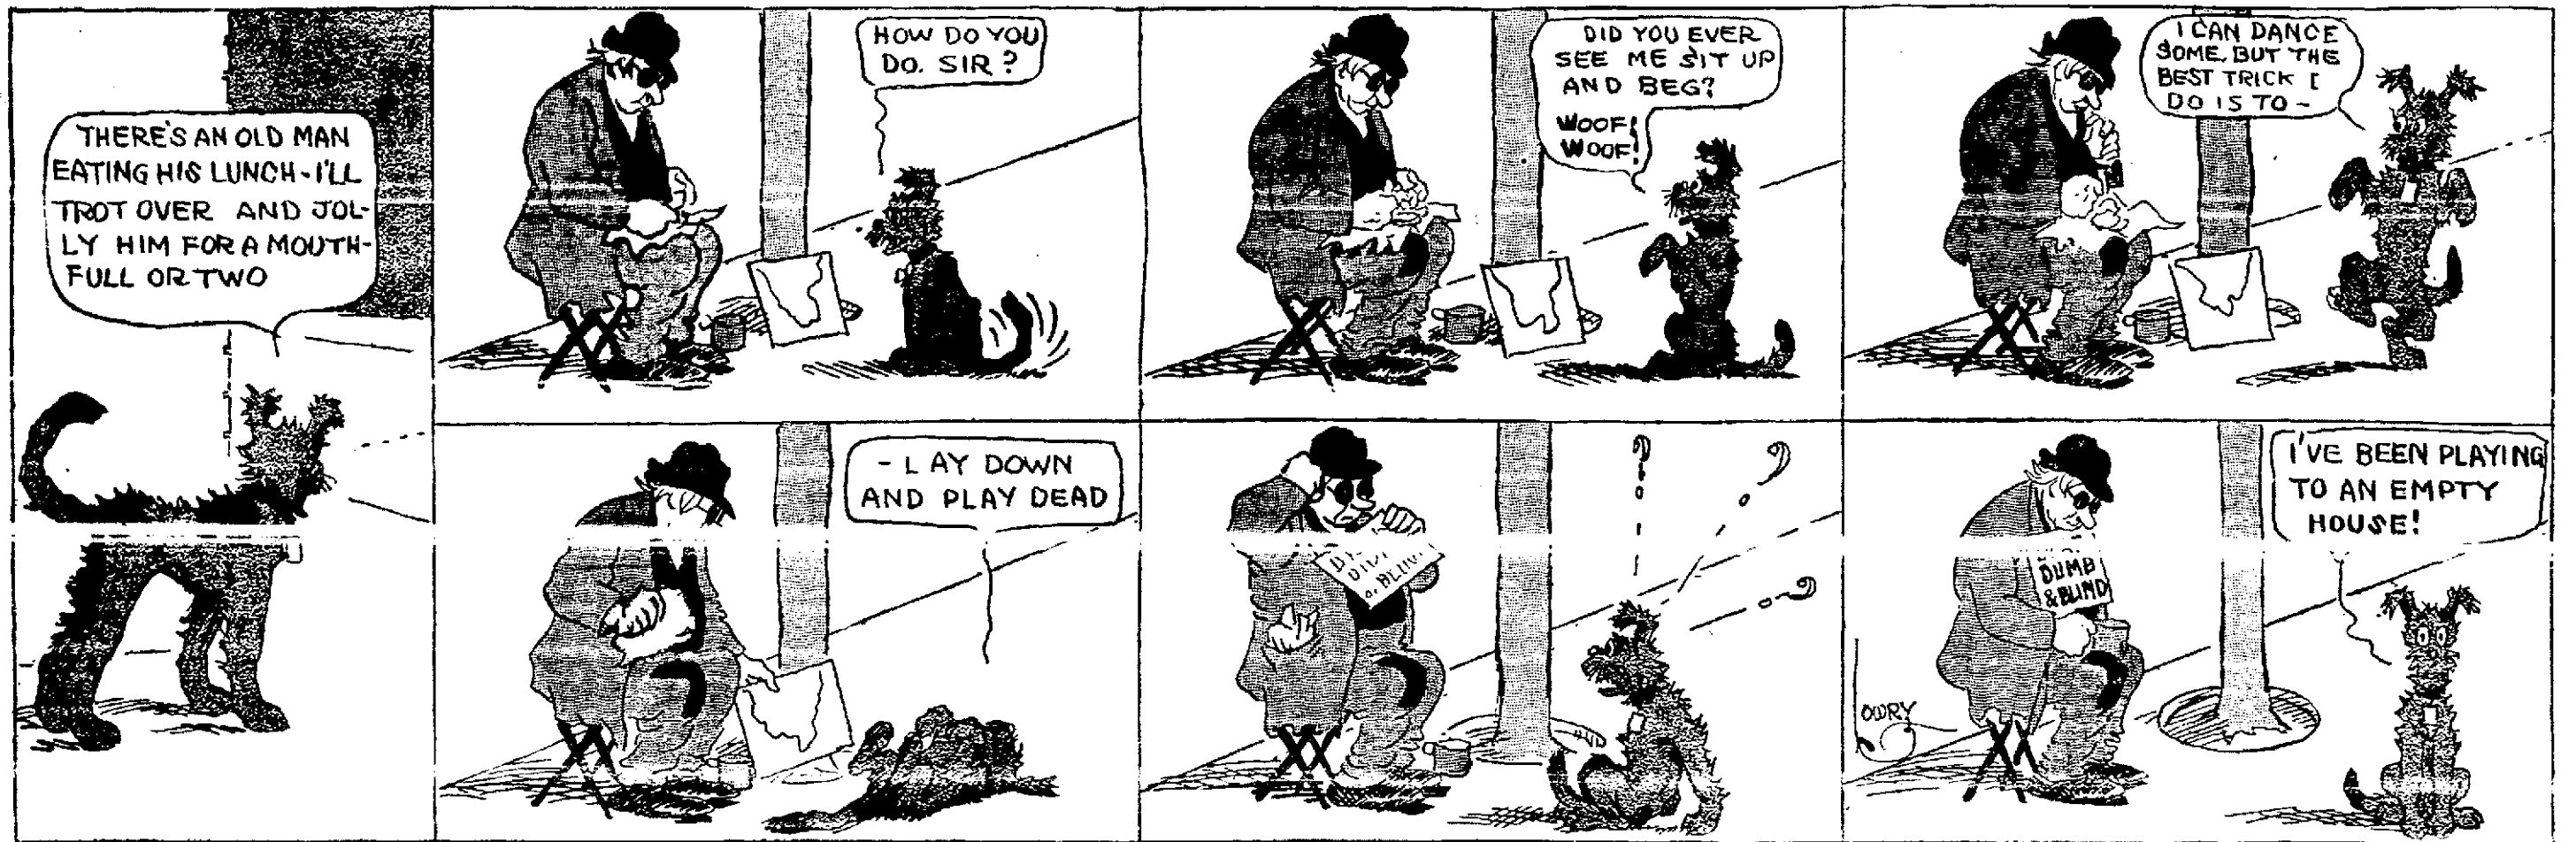

There are other fairy tales, too, which have already been mentioned in the same connection as being excellent to make realities for the twentieth century child. There is the Pied Piper of Hamelin, for instance. Some day we may hear of him walking each day down one of our big cities' congested streets with the children following, paying his music to a mysterious hill, which will open its doors and usher the followers into a veritable fairyland and to a whole day of pleasure and fun.

"Soul Mate" of Chicago Architect Hacked to Death by Negro

"Love Castle" Fired and Half Dozen Fall Before Hatchet

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 15.—Julian Carlton, the insane negro chef who slew Mrs. Mamah Berthwick-Cheney and five other persons near Spring Green late today, was captured late tonight by a posse and lodged in the Dodgeville, Wisconsin, jail. The negro attempted to commit suicide by swallowing carbolic acid, but antidotes restored him.

And thus the "soul-mate romance" of Mrs. Mamah Berthwick-Cheney, divorced wife of a Chicago manufacturer, and Frank Lloyd Wright, wealthy Chicago architect, was blasted today.

Mrs. Berthwick-Cheney and five other persons were killed by Carlton in the $50,000 "love castle," near Spring Green, thirty miles west of here, where she and Wright defied conventionalities and sought to escape from the world of gossip. Several others were wounded, some fatally, by the negro, who set fire to the building on Wright's farm and fled. The dead:

Mrs. Mamah Berthwick-Cheney.

John Berthwick-Cheney, her 10-year-old son.

Emil Burdell, 30, draftsman, employed by Wright.

Emilia Weston, 13, son of a farmhand.

Maria Berthwick-Cheney, 13, daughter of Mrs. Berthwick-Cheney.

Tom Bunker, farm laborer.

The wounded:

W. A. Weston, gardener; cut about the head by Carlton and burned.

David Lindblom, assistant gardener; cut about the head and neck.

Herbert Fritz, draftsman; burned.

SMALL SON MISSING.

A 3-year-old son of Mrs. Berthwick-Cheney is missing and is thought to have perished when flames destroyed the "love castle" bungalow.

Posses from five counties, with a brace of bloodhounds, pursued the negro, Julian Carlton, tonight through the remote section near Spring Green and Hillsdale, where the tragedy occurred. The murderer's wife, who fled with him, was captured two miles from the scene of the crime.

Carlton, according to telephone messages from Spring Green, a small village, was rebuked by Mrs. Berthwick-Cheney. Wright, the Chicago architect, was at his office in Chicago, but Mrs. Berthwick-Cheney, her children and other employees about the bungalow were gathered in the diningroom for lunch. The negro, believed to have become suddenly demented, locked all the doors except the front exit, soaked a rug in gasoline, fired it and dropped the blazing torch beneath the diningroom window. Mrs. Berthwick-Cheney, panic-stricken, rushed to the nearest door with her children, only to find it securely locked.

HATCHET BRINGS DEATH.

Turning to the front door, she was confronted by Carlton, a stockily-built negro, who brandished a hatchet. As she attempted to rush by him, the negro, with one stroke, split her skull and crushed out the brains of her 10-year-old son, John.

Burdell, the draftsman, and Weston, the young farmer boy, leaped at Carlton. The frenzied negro drove the hatchet into Burdell's head and battered out the brains of the boy. Then he rushed into the burning dwelling, attacking everyone in sight, then leaped off the veranda and escaped through a cornfield, being followed by his wife.

An appeal was sent to Madison and nurses and a physician hurried to Spring Green, reaching the village this evening. The sheriff of Grant county immediately called the sheriffs of four adjoining counties, who formed posses and started on the man-hunt.

The "soul-mate" affairs of Mrs. Berthwick-Cheney and Wright, an architect of wide reputation, received publicity three years ago when Wright suddenly left his family in Oak Park, Illinois, and made a trip to Europe with his "affinity," who was the wife of Edwin H. Cheney.

DWELLED IN LOVE CASTLE.

Upon their return Mrs. Wright apparently forgave her husband, but Cheney sued for divorce and obtained a decree. The affair was nearly forgotten when the couple again disappeared. They were located a few months later in the artistic bungalow Wright designed and built in the woods near Spring Green and which was dubbed the "love castle."

Questions of questions, Wright and the beautiful Mrs. Berthwick-Cheney frankly proclaimed that they were spiritual affiliates and that they proposed to live together despite legal obstacles. Mrs. Wright would not consent to a divorce that would set her husband free to marry. The divorce, but despite threats of the Wisconsin neighbors, the couple continued to dwell at the "love castle."

SHOT IN PARIS IS NATIVE OF FRANCE

PARIS, Aug. 15.—The general court-martial ordered for the trial of all persons arrested in Paris charged with being spies began its sessions today. The very first case presented resulted in imposition of the death sentence. The culprit was a Frenchman. August 3d he agreed to sell to a French secret service agent, whom he believed to be a German agent, the secrets of the Eiffel tower wireless and of the army aerodrome at the concentration camp. The evidence against him was complete and he was immediately ordered shot.

CANAL IS OPENED

The Steamer Ancon Formally Leads Way From Sea To Sea

PANAMA CITY, Aug. 15.—The Panama canal was formally opened to commerce today. Tonight the Panama railroad steamer Ancon slipped out of the Balboa entrance to the waterway and disembarked her official party at the docks, having started at 7 o'clock this morning from Cristobal, on the Atlantic side. She is the first big steamship to make the trip through the canal and she carried 400 guests, including Governor Goethals, President Porras of Panama and chiefs of all the bureaus who have had to do with constructing the big ditch.

The Ancon, brilliantly lighted with incandescent bulbs and fully dressed in bunting, got a big reception from ships waiting in Balboa harbor.

Tomorrow the big canal will be open for all commercial business to ships up to 10,000 tons.

Governor Goethals was well pleased with the ease with which the Ancon went through the canal.

DID NOT ANCHOR.

The Ancon did not anchor at Balboa, but proceeded into deep water in the Pacific beyond the fortified islands, where she anchored in the channel of the canal until her return to Balboa, when she landed her passengers.

The Ancon will remain at the Balboa docks for some time discharging her cargo, this being the first commercial voyage made through the canal.

The canal having been officially opened, it will be used tomorrow for the transfer of four cargo ships, which will thus shorten their routes. The private yacht Lasata, owned in Los Angeles, will be transferred to the Pacific, homeward bound.

The trip of the Ancon was the fastest yet made by a large ocean steamer, the locking operations being

Constitutionalists

Now Control Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 15.—Peaceful occupation of the capital by the constitutionalists was completed tonight. General Obregon's army division marched into Mexico City late in the afternoon. They constituted General Carranza's advance guard. The chieftain will arrive tomorrow and will then formally assume the presidency.

Not a single untoward incident marked the assumption of power by the constitutionalists. The city was decorated lavishly and it was remarked that for the first time in at least a year American flags were shown. Obregon's travel-stained veterans were roundly cheered by the populace massed in the streets.

Cars Crash; Many Are Hurt in Accident

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 15.—Four persons were seriously hurt, seventeen others were painfully injured, and seventeen others bruised and cut this afternoon when two cars on the Seattle, Renton and Southern electric interurban crashed together in a head-on collision at Seventy-second street south, near Taylor's mill. The cause of the accident is not known, but it is believed it was due to a mistake in orders, as there is but one track at this point on the line.

Three Burned to Death; One Hurt

Three people were burned to death and another was injured today in a fire at Morgan, Ore., which destroyed the home of Herbert Phillips, and also a store building and warehouse containing 2000 sacks of grain and a freight car. The dead are Arthur Phillips, 21 years, Edna Phillips, 24 years and Winnie Phillips, 17 years.

GERMAN IS NOW READY TO STRIKE

Major Outlines Tactics in Vogue, Claiming Small Losses

Asks Why Allies Have Not Followed Up Big Victories Reported

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—At the request of the German Chamber of Commerce, which has protested to President Wilson against the censoring of the German wireless stations when no such action has been taken with the trans-Atlantic cables, the following outline of the European war situation from the German viewpoint has been prepared:

By ULRICH RITTER, Major, German General Staff.

The severe criticism of German operations is based on the expressions of persons not trained in military matters. Soldiers are massed along the entire line, from Belfort practically to the North sea, and the two armies are facing each other, not on German soil, but on Belgian soil and in France, so that the great battle will not be fought on German territory.

LIEGE LOSSES 4,500.

The losses at Liege as given out by reliable sources are from 4,000 to 5,000, although the enemy reported as high as 38,000. And disregarding the tremendous difficulty there the Germans have taken the city of Liege and part of its fortifications. Taking the remainder is only a matter of a few days. The German army of the north today overlooks the Meuse and its vanguard is occupying a line between Diest and Namur. These vanguards consist not only of detachments of cavalry, but also of machine guns. Gradual progress is being made along the line. When a detachment finds itself outnumbered it ceases an engagement, because it is the business of the vanguard not to fight but to reconnoiter. These tactics are seized upon by the English to exploit as Belgian victories.

MOBILIZATION PRECISE.

The German mobilization was precise and everywhere from north to south the German army is meeting the enemy on the enemy's soil. If the French mobilization was so excellent as they claim it was, why are not the French carrying the horrors of war to German soil? The outer forts of Longwy have been taken by the Germans. German vanguards are marching through Luneville, Pont-a-Mousson and Montville. The French have always carried the military trainers of the Belgians and French engineers laid out the Belgian forts. Would it not have been military suicide if Germany had not anticipated the danger and occupied Belgium before France had the opportunity?

Strong French detachments took possession of Alsace August 10 and successfully made their way through the passes of the Vosges. A glance at the map will show that these passes could not have been fortified and held by the treaty of Frankfurt, was left in the hands of the French. Yet France could not hold Mulhausen, being driven out by the Fourteenth Bader corps, which took 1,500 French prisoners, four cannon and killed or wounded so many French that the hospitals of Mulhausen could not accommodate all of the wounded.

MOVING AGAINST FRENCH.

The Austrian Tyrolese corps and the German army of Alsace are now moving against the French near Belfort. Shortly the southern part of the army will be in complete operation. But the big decisions we all expect from the central army will not come for a few days.

It is also plausible that the Germans have won victories on the sea. It is admitted that if they have, England, following the precedent of the Russo-Japanese war, when Japan concealed for the entire period of the war the loss of her best battleship on the very day that hostilities began, can very easily have concealed the news from the world. Just to impress the nations of the Far East with England's "all-mightiness" among the world powers, England has been on the sea.

GERMAN CONSULATE'S BOAT
STOPPED BY U. S. WHILE ON SEARCH FOR WAR VESSEL

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—Collector of the Port J. O. Davis, co-operating with Rear-Admiral C. F. Pond, United States navy, today stopped Dr. Simon Reimer, representing the German consulate, from steaming through the Golden Gate in a tug to search for the German cruiser Leipzig.

The boat was stopped as it was passing through the Golden Gate by the tug Argonaut of the United States revenue fleet.

Admiral Pond, who is the naval commandant of the Twelfth district, received word that a launch carrying German papers was attempting to leave the bay. Captain William A. Sprague was notified and went out on the Argonaut to head off the launch. Arrangements were immediately made and the chase began. When the Argonaut finally came abreast of the craft someone on board shouted through a megaphone to know what was wanted. Captain Sprague ordered it to come alongside. This appeared to be impossible by reason of the heavy sea, and Sprague ordered the master to follow the Argonaut into smoother water. As the launch turned it seemed as though it was almost swamped by the heavy sea.

NO DEVIATION ALLOWED.

At any rate its nose was pointed toward Baker's beach and Captain Schulz, who was in the pilot house of the Argonaut, blew his whistle, warning the man at the wheel that he would permit no deviation from the orders.

When finally the boat came within hailing distance Captain Sprague jumped aboard. He asked the master who his passengers were and was told that he did not know.

"I was engaged to go out and try and find the German cruiser Leipzig," he explained. Captain Sprague proceeded to the cabin, where he found Reimer and E. Clocke, first officer of the German steamer Alexandria, and H. Jensen, second officer of the German freighter Serapin.

The party was notified that the collector of the port would not allow the excursion, as it was in violation of the neutrality law.

Dr. Reimer consented to return and the launch dropped the two German officers at Sausalito and then landed Dr. Reimer at Meigs wharf.

It is said that the anxiety of the German consul to communicate with the vessel was due to the fact that it is in a peculiar position and that food is running low. The object of the expedition was very evidently to give orders or advice to Captain Haupt, the commanding officer. The Leipzig is evidently hoping to capture a prize and thus gain provisions and coal, or it must enter this port and obtain only a sufficient supply to take it to the nearest German seaport.

Zeppelins Damaged by Bombs of Air Corps

PARIS, Aug. 15 (Sunday).—French aviators executed another brilliant coup against the German airmen today, according to war office advices. Ballying forth aloft from Verdun, a corps of biplanes made a reconnaissance over the German position ten miles distant and dropped bombs on the temporary camp used to house three Zeppelins.

The French aerial scouts were fired upon almost continuously after the Germans sighted them, but all escaped. They were unable to tell the exact damage done to the Zeppelins, but believe some if not all were seriously damaged.

Pope Prays That War Will Come to An End

ROME, Aug. 15.—This being Assumption day, in all the 400 churches of Rome special prayers were offered by direct instructions of the Pope for the cessation of the war. The Pontiff himself, after celebrating mass in his private chapel in the presence of his sisters and niece and his entourage, prayed at length for the prevention of further bloodshed staining this pontificate.

EVACUATE KIAU-CHAN, DEMAND OF MIKADO;
ACTION THREATENED

TOKIO, Aug. 16.—2:30 A. M.—Japan has sent an ultimatum to Germany, stating that unless Germany withdraws its warships and evacuates Kiao-Chau by August 23 Japan will take action. The ultimatum demands that Germany unconditionally comply with its terms.

TURKISH FORTS FIRE ON BRITISH CRUISER

PARIS, Aug. 16 (Sunday).—Heavy defeat of a Bavarian army corps before the French advance on Blamont and Cirey was announced in the war office dispatches today. The French forces report taking the heights in the passes at the bayonet point, killing hundreds of the Germans and capturing many more. They also took many French troops who had been taken prisoners by the invaders earlier in the week. In a German field hospital, hastily evacuated, was found General von Daimling.

TURKS FIRE ON BRITISH WARSHIP.

LONDON, Aug. 16 (Sunday).—A dispatch to Reuter's News Agency from Malta says that it is reported there that one of the Turkish forts commanding the Dardanelles fired on a British battleship that attempted to follow the German cruisers Goeben and Breslau into the Dardanelles.

GERMANY ROUTS FRENCH TROOPS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—A message from a commercial organization in Berlin was received here today via Sayville, L. I. wireless station as follows:

"The Seventh French army corps and an army division from Belfort, which had invaded upper Alsace, were defeated yesterday by German troops near Muelhausen."

The dispatch, somewhat mutilated by poor transmission, indicated that French entrenchments were taken at the point of the bayonet.

GERMAN LOSS IS 3000.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 15, 5:51 p. m.—A dispatch rider who arrived here from Belgium this afternoon says that Belgians gained another victory between Diest and Hasselt, resulting in a German loss of 3000 killed and wounded. The Belgians, it is stated, lost fewer than 200 killed and wounded. The Germans are now reported in retreat.

ENTRENCHED IN LONG LINE.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 15.—Darkness tonight found the allied armies entrenched along the line extending from Northern Belgium far into Southeastern Belgium, Luxembourg maintaining their positions.

The German infantry has been moved forward slowly throughout the day, but the cavalry screen, under cover of which it is operating, has been unable to penetrate the Belgian-French lines.

Between Tirlemont and Hasselt the Belgians, assuming the offensive, have driven the German Uhlands back. The German column, working through Tongres and Hasselt, is plainly trying to envelope the extreme left wing of the allies, presumably to drive part of it back on the Antwerp fortifications.

BELGIANS DENY DIEST CAPTURE.

Reports of the capture of Diest, northeast of Louvain, by German infantry and artillery are officially denied. The Liege forts hold out in the face of continuous battering from the German artillery.

General von Emmich, who led the unsuccessful assaults on Liege, is dead, some reports having him a suicide, and General von Martwitz has assumed supreme command of the army operating in Northern Belgium.

Only a few official reports of the fighting were permitted to become public today. The Belgian general staff realizes the necessity of absolute silence at this time.

INFANTRY FAILS TO HOLD UP.

But it is asserted that the German infantry so far in action have not held up as strongly as expected in the face of artillery fire or when charged by the Belgian cavalry, which to date has borne the brunt of the fighting.

The Germans, army experts say, have been disheartened by the terrible slaughter before Liege and in the skirmishing near Diest, Haelen and Eghezee, where their comrades were mowed down like wheat.

In addition, they have been almost half starved. There is now no doubt that the German commissary department failed to stand up under the initial test. So anxious were many commanders to get to the front that they abandoned their transport and their food supplies, expecting to live off the country, something the Belgians have made impossible.

The German base is now at Vise, where a number of transport bridges have been thrown across the Meuse capable of bringing over the supply trains. In addition the headquarters of the army operating from Aix-la-Chapelle has been moved to this point and a field hospital with accommodations for 10,000 wounded opened.

Estimates of the German losses to date vary. The general staff reports make it as in excess of 40,000 in killed, wounded and belong. The staff believes the total in killed alone will reach 10,000 and other estimates are from 2000 to 5000 in excess of that figure. The Germans in the vicinity of Liege have been cremating their dead and throwing others into the Meuse river to float to sea.

REPORT LIEGE FORTS INTACT.

have attempted to carry the approaches by storm, despite the terrible repulses already encountered, but never once have the attacking columns reached the glacis of the forts. The accuracy of the machine gun fire is perfect and flesh and blood cannot stand the strain.

The official reports signaled from the forts say that there is plenty of food, ammunition and water and that the spirit of the defenders is excellent.

OFFENSIVE MOVEMENT BEGINS.

PARIS, Aug. 15, 11:35 p. m.—Official dispatches announce that the French offensive movement began in great force along the line from Sarrebourg, on the Franco-German frontier, to Lunéville, in the department of Moselle, last evening. It continued throughout the night with full success and this morning a German standard was captured.

"Blamont, 17 miles east of Lunéville; Ciry, still further east, and Avricourt, occupied by a Bavarian army corps, were stormed by our troops," the announcement continues.

"The Germans are in full retreat, having left many dead, wounded and prisoners. The French continue to advance to Upper Vosges, the Germans giving away before them. In Upper Alsace we have taken Thann."

GERMAN FLAG TAKEN.
Prisoners affirm that General von Deimling, commanding the Fifteenth army corps at Thann, was wounded. At St. Blasie, in the valley of Bruche, a German flag was taken.

The condition under which the great battle between the Germans and the allied forces probably will be fought are made the subject of communication issued by the French Ministry of War this afternoon. By its development and the nature of the ground over which the battle will be waged, the communication says, this vast engagement will differ profoundly from the battles of other times.

"The reason of the abandonment of the attack which the Germans planned against Nancy," says the communication, "our concentration has been carried out with regularity and in its entirety, and thus the whole of the French army will battle with the whole of the German forces, with the exception of those German troops concentrated on the eastern frontier of the empire.

VIOLATE NEUTRALITY.
"The violation of the neutrality of Belgium has extended the Belgian and French lines to the frontier of Holland. The next battle, therefore, will be from Basle to Maastricht, with several million of men on each side.
"It would appear impossible from all the evidence that one of the adversaries would be able to gain decisive advantage upon this front of 400 kilometers. The operations along so great a line would have varying fortunes. We will have an advantage at one or several points; the Germans will have an advantage at other points and the line of battle will continue to be modified until one of the advantages succeeds by co-ordination of movements and mass of effort in gaining the ascendancy."

SAN DIEGO RALLIES TO KNOWLAND'S FLAG

Congressman and Wife Are Accorded Splendid Reception in Southern City

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 15.—Congressman Joseph R. Knowland and his wife, arriving in the city today, were met at the airport by a large number of citizens. Under the guidance of the County Central Committee and the Women's Republican League, the visitors were given opportunity to meet the representative men and women of the county.

A hearty reception was extended to Knowland at the headquarters of the County Central Committee, this afternoon at 4 o'clock and at the same hour Mrs. Knowland was given a true California welcome by the Women's Republican League, in the parlors of the Hotel Grant.

"Countless pledges of support today came to Congressman Knowland without solicitation. From the rural districts, from the banks, industrial establishments and even from the ranks of employees of the Spreckels interests came the words, 'Joe Knowland, we are with you.'"

WILL POLL LARGER VOTE.
Republican leaders here are confident that not only will Knowland break even in this county but he undoubtedly will poll a larger vote at the primaries than his opponents.

Dr. B. Gochenauer, chairman of the Republican County Central Committee, has organized a body, took a personal interest in Knowland's visit here today.

MRS. KNOWLAND HONORED.
Graced by representative club women of San Diego, among which appeared delegates from half a dozen of the clubs of San Diego and presided over by Mrs. S. J. Requa, one of the southern's best known club women, the reception to Mrs. Knowland in the parlors of the U. S. Grant Hotel was a social success, as well as a strong indication of the feeling existing toward Mr. Knowland among the women of San Diego county.

After her usual captivating fashion, Mrs. Knowland held the women for an hour with a story of life in Washington. She did not take up political matters but reserved her speech for that direction for this evening. Then in her straight-forward fashion she told her own campaign for her husband, "because he is the man best fitted by experience and training to fill the position, the man to whom the lure of gold means nothing. The man who has fought for the Washington firing line. The man I love—Joseph R. Knowland."

FATS HEARTY TRIBUTE.
Dr. Gochenauer, chairman of the county central committee, in opening the meeting, made a hearty tribute to Knowland.

After introducing to you tonight a man who has fought for the Washington firing line, the man I love—Joseph R. Knowland.

U. S. LOANS TO COMBATANTS FORBIDDEN

President Wilson Disapproves of Plan to Supply Funds for War.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—President Wilson today formally disapproved of loans in the United States for the benefit of belligerent countries of Europe, but expressed no objections to loans made to neutral countries.

A formal statement to this effect was prepared for issue through the State Department later today. The mention of neutral countries in the expression from the American government was made because it is understood Switzerland is endeavoring to float a big loan in the United States. The Swiss charge d'affaires had a conference with Secretary Bryan today, but declined to discuss his visit.

INQUIRY IS MADE.
The rejection of the proposal that American bankers be permitted to float a loan for a belligerent country resulted from an inquiry from J. P. Morgan & Company, in which they stated that certain private interests had approached them concerning a possible loan to France. The Morgan firm stated that no request had come from the French government, and that the inquiry was made early to learn the attitude of the State Department in case such action might follow.

Secretary Bryan announced that Switzerland had made formal inquiry as to the attitude of the United States towards the floating of a loan for her in this country, and the statement with reference to neutral countries was intended to cover the inquiry today by the Swiss charge d'affaires.

Keep Calm, Message to People of England

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Newspapers here are co-operating with the government to emit throughout England a feeling of calm optimistic confidence. The Daily Chronicle prints the following in a box on the first page:

"Keep calm! Face the enemy. Keep calm, whatever happens; there must be no war feverishness."

"People must beware rumors. Nearly every report needs grains of salt."

"The war has not been a surprise. They are bound to happen at the beginning of a war. In the early days of the South African war the demoralization of an armored train almost sent people into hysterics. That must not happen now."

"Nothing matters in a war but the clash of main forces. The rest is mere incident."

AMERICAN RESIDENTS NOT FORCED TO FIGHT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Nations at war cannot compel their citizens in the United States to return and fight, the State Department ruled today. The ruling also stated:

"The United States holds that no naturalized citizen of the country can be held to account for military liability to be active and fighting subsequent to his naturalization here, but this rule may be contested by countries with which the United States has entered into treaties of naturalization."

GERMAN STRATEGISTS FOILED, FRENCH SAY

PARIS, Aug. 15.—An official communication issued this afternoon by the French ministry of war reviews the situation to date. It says:

"In order that the opinion of France elsewhere can have a just view and not be lost in the details of news, it is of advantage to lay down in broad lines and without seeking to judge in advance the developments of events to classify the results required."

"We know from the declarations of German strategists such as Bernhardi, Falkenhayne and Von Der Goltz that the German plan provided for a quick attack of the first line upon our covering troops to the north of Nancy."

"We know equally without any doubt that a second sharp and quick attack was to have been made by passing through Belgium and then immediately striking at the French frontier. A positive proof of the verity of this double plan is found in the individual cards of mobilization directing the German reservists from the fifth to the fifteenth day of mobilization to join their regiments in French cities such as Verdun."

LOSSES VERY HEAVY.
The war office admits that the losses in the fighting in Alsace, in the passes of the Vosges mountains, and in the region on the frontier extending from Lunéville northwest to Montmédy, have been very large. But it insists that the French frontier is intact everywhere and that the road is now open so that an advance in force on Strasbourg, the ancient capital of Alsace-Lorraine, can be pushed early next week.

In the frontier fighting the aeroplane corps has indeed proven the eyes of the army. Time and again advancing German raiding columns intended to surprise the French outposts, have been located and annihilated. Two instances of this were given in the official report today. One was in the fighting that gave the French forces control of the Saele pass, which dominates the valley of the Bouche, an affluent of the Rhine. The German troops were entrenched in a very strong position, but the French airmen mapped the forts, locating all the defense guns and the French, advancing in force, supported by artillery, placed their guns so they were able to get the range of the German guns from the start.

The French artillery proved far superior to the German, according to the war office reports, and were able to disable most of the defending guns. Then the French charged the German front and carried it at the point of the bayonet, driving the Germans completely through the pass and into the open country beyond.

COMPLETE CHECK, IS CLAIM.
The second was when a very strong German column was sent from Metz toward the French frontier defenses. Long before they had reached the French frontier an attacking column of French infantry, supported by cavalry and motorcycle detachments and several batteries of artillery, had taken up a position fronting the advancing German line. The result was a complete check to the Germans, who were driven back on Metz with heavy loss.

During this engagement a German aviator flew over the French advanced base and dropped three bombs, none of which did any damage to the troops, who saw the aviator coming. He was pursued to the German line by French aviators, but made his escape.

Field Marshal Sir John French, the commander-in-chief of the British army, arrived on French and Belgian soil, yesterday joined General Foch at the French concentration base, spent today in Paris. He conferred with the chiefs of the army general staff and also paid his respects to the president.

The presence of the British commander-in-chief was taken as indicating that the first British expeditionary force, the strength of which is carefully withheld, but which some estimates have placed in excess of 150,000 men of all branches, is at its base, probably in front of Brussels.

ALLEGED VIOLATIONS.
Charges of alleged German violations of the rules of civilized warfare have brought a sharp reply from Germany. Neutral powers forwarded it to the French government today and a copy has already been served on the Belgian government. The German notification is construed here as a threat to kill without mercy any non-combatant who fails to obey without question the Germans, should they gain a foothold either in Belgium or France. It is believed that the French government will formally protest this position taken by Germany to the neutral powers, although no official notice of it has yet been taken.

The German notification emphatically denies that it contains any suggestion of citizens interfering in the slightest degree with the advance of the German army will be shot.

This notification followed the promulgation of charges brought by the Belgian foreign minister that Germany was violating The Hague and Geneva conventions in her treatment of private citizens.

The notification reaffirms the alleged slaying of German officers and men by non-combatants in Belgium. It reiterates that Germany has only fought its is now compelled to resort to extreme measures to prevent civilians taking part in the war.

ALLIES CLAIM CHECK ON GERMANS AT ALL POINTS

PARIS, Aug. 15.—Four developments, the result of serious fighting since the opening of the war, were published by the war office tonight, which declared them of inestimable importance to the cause of the allies. They were:

"First—The absolute check of German plan for a sudden rush toward Paris; first, by the penetration of the French frontier by the army of the Moselle from Metz, through the gap in the fortifications; secondly, by the check and reverses due to the heroism of the Belgian field forces."

"Second—The perfect and swift mobilization of the French army with complete munitions and equipment, making possible co-operation with the allies."

"Third—The complete domination of Herzegovina by the Serbians, thus checking the sending of Austrian reinforcements either against France or Russia."

"Fourth—The control of the seas by the united French and British fleets which ensures the revitalizing of France and England."

BERLIN SURE OF VICTORY IN END

Spirit Unconquerable and the Great Fighting Machine Moves Onward.

ROTTERDAM, Aug. 15.—The German spirit remains unconquerable. The losses in Belgium and in Alsace regretted, but accepted as the fortunes of war. The German fighting machine, one which Germany has staked her all, is moving slowly, but none the less inexorably on. The nation is prepared to fight while a man capable of bearing arms remains alive.

There is no disguising the determination of the German nation. Thursday the news of the check in Belgium had been received. Details of the losses were known to the German staff alone. It was asked everywhere where these losses were incidents to a campaign through a hostile country where the army opposing is aided by the strongest of modern fortifications. There is none at military headquarters who doubts that the final outcome will be the success of the German arms now that the main body of the German army has moved forward.

RESISTANCE SURPRISE.
The resistance in Belgium came as a complete surprise to the German staff. The friendly relations between Germany and Belgium, whose queen is a Bavarian princess, were known. The German imperial chancellor, had promised that any damage done by rushing troops through the country, a vital military necessity, would be well paid for and the territorial integrity of Belgium respected. But instead, Belgium accepted war, and there is determination at the army headquarters to detain Belgium as well as France without delay, be it at what cost it may.

That was the sentiment uttered by the German staff on Thursday.

The emperor is in consistent consultation with his staff. He has been very considerate of American Ambassador Gerard. Protest against the arrest of various English and American citizens made to the foreign office by the ambassador have been courteously adjusted without loss of time.

KAISER'S SMILE GONE.
The emperor has changed greatly since actual hostilities began. The deep lines of his face are accentuated. The smile has left his lips. There can be no doubting from a view of him that he realizes probably more than any other person in Germany what the present war means. There may be regret because of the necessity of war. There is great depth of sorrow over the loss of the flower of Germany's youth. But the emperor and his ministers take the position that they did everything they could to avoid the war and that their task consists in winning it and they must meet its demands.

All Americans in Germany are safe. They are being cared for in every way possible. But the embassy is overtaxed by the demands made upon it. It has been suggested that a German steamship might be chartered and, with the consent of all of the warring powers, sent from a German port to New York with all of the Americans that it could care for. Germany is willing to take this up with the combatants, but it is doubtful whether consent could be obtained. Meanwhile Ambassador Gerard will continue to send the refugees to neutral territory at Rotterdam and The Hague and will depend upon the state department finding other steamers to bring them back to the United States.

HOMES ARE OPENED.
German homes have been opened to Americans who have no other place to go. Hotels that have been patronized by Americans in the past are opening for their guests on their promise to pay. Travel to the south is suspended, but now that mobilization is completed some of the regular trains to the north are to be restored.

The nation itself is calm. There have been no anti-war demonstrations. Details of the fighting are meager. The newspapers have no information from the outside world, and the war office intelligence bureau, while promising complete reports of all operations, takes the position that the details of the preliminary skirmishing must be withheld, otherwise the enemy might gain important information regarding the dispositions of the German armies.

Leipzig Is Keeping Big Liner in Port

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 15.—Until the Canadian Pacific railroad gets some definite information as to the destination of the liner Montague, sailing for the Orient will be held up. The Montague was booked to sail last night for Yokohama and Hongkong, but at noon today she was still at her berth and the best information to be obtained at headquarters was that she might sail tonight.

The Montague is full of lumber loaded at Puget Sound ports and at Vancouver and she also has shipments of general supplies.

KAHN'S

ARMIES SWEEPING TO CLASH ON FRANCO-GERMAN BORDER

BRUSSELS AND ANTWERP IN LINE OF BATTLE TO BE FOUGHT BY NATIONS

LONDON, Aug. 15, 11:20 p. m.—Communication with the armies has virtually come to an end while the commanders in Belgium and along the Franco-Belgium frontier are preparing for a trial of strength which promises to develop the greatest battle in history.

It is known that the Germans are attempting to swing their right around toward Brussels and Antwerp, but with what success nobody outside the field of operations knows. The same applies to the attack on the Liege forts, one of which, Pontisse, is most essential to German success, as it is nearest to the bridge over the Meuse, which the invaders are using to bring troops into Belgium.

VICTORY IS CLAIMED.

Silence envelops the operations in other parts of the little country which is playing such a big part in the war. On the Alsatian frontier the French claim another victory in the capture of the Saales pass in the Vosges mountains. Here, the French official reports say, the Germans again lost heavily by their tactics of close formation, to which, from all accounts, they are adhering.

Two other small countries, Serbia and Montenegro, are playing important roles for, if accounts can be believed, they are not only offering stern resistance to Austria, but have actually invaded Herzegovina, which they are certain to be assisted by the friendly population. This will divert some of the Austrian forces from the French and Russian borders.

AEROPLANE IN SERVICE.

Russians are appearing in greater strength in Eastern Prussia and Austrian Galicia and are busy destroying railways and otherwise hampering the movements of Germans and Austrians.

Germany and Austria are maintaining silence regarding the movements of their troops, so there is really only one side of the picture given.

Aeroplanes are being used everywhere to ascertain the positions of the opposing forces, and according to reports are doing splendid service, in striking contrast to the feeble attempts of their predecessors, captive balloons.

No definite statement has been issued with regard to the attitude of Japan, but Italy is maintaining strict neutrality.

MAXIM PREDICTS GERMAN DEFEAT

Famed Inventor of Explosives Sums Up Opposing Forces.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Disaster for Germany is predicted by Sir Hiram S. Maxim in an interview obtained here today. Lord Maxim believes that the Kaiser's forces will be defeated by the allies.

"I have seen this coming for a long time," he said. "Four great continental powers have been straining every nerve to see what large armies they could raise and equip. They had these armies, and like a he, with a plaything, they wanted to use them."

"It appears to me that the Kaiser was anxious for war. He was of the opinion that he had the strongest army the world had ever known. He deemed this a favorable time to strike, as he believed England was so absorbed in the Irish troubles that she wouldn't support her friends. The Kaiser fully expected no opposition could be offered to the march of a large portion of his army through Belgium in order to attack France.

"Now that Serbia has been quite successful in keeping the Austrians out of her country, the colossal of the east—Russia—will sweep down upon Germany and Austria, like an avalanche in about three weeks.

"French and Belgians are very much alike; they have the same system of fortification. They have a great variety of defensive works and their artillery is the best in the world. Austria has a very large army, but they will have all they can do to keep the Russians out of their country, to say nothing of keeping them out of Germany. Germany will have to send a large force to aid Austria.

"The English army, it is true, is not very large, but England can certainly send 500,000 men to the front. Little Belgium can send a like number. If pressed, England can send 600,000 to the front. As matters stand I don't think the Germans have much chance. From a mathematical standpoint I should say the chances against Germany are ten to one. Nothing but an unfavorable mistake on the part of the English and French will enable the Germans to reach Paris. This particular war is not like the war in South Africa, or any other uncivilized country. Troops can and will be moved with great rapidity.

"Napoleon said that battles were won by quick marches. I cringe that this war will be of rather short duration. In regard to the sea, England is supposed to have a force little more than equal to the combined navies of the world. There are no better sea fighters in the world than the English. If they have to deal with Germany alone there would be little chance but that the German fleet would be wiped off the sea, but when you

WAR MOVES ARE ALL PREPARATORY FOR FIGHT TO COME

The result of the week's fighting in the north has been the gradual advance of large German scouting parties west of Liege and almost half way to Brussels; while in the south the French have fought their way to the tops of the Vosges to peer down into the promised land of Alsace.

In the center both sides have proceeded more cautiously as required below Luxembourg.

The week's reconnaissances by Germany in Belgium cannot give the Allies a complete picture of the enemy's plans. Nowhere have there been reports of large forces encountering the Germans. Instead, the allies have been able to halt the skirmishing at least some distance in front of their main position. Probably there is much more for the Germans to learn of the allies' formation before the order for a general advance can be given.

The week has brought forth no strategic change in Southern Alsace. Both sides are apparently reluctant to engage in strenuous activity in the quarter for the present. The French victories will have no permanent effect on the campaign. The Germans continue to hold all their positions and they are still entire masters of the Rhine.

The week has shown that the allies are extremely confident. The ability of the Liege forts to withstand the German attack is responsible for initiating the spirit of optimism. The week has seen constant references to the inferiority of German artillery, the dissatisfaction and hunger of German prisoners and assurances that "everything is progressing satisfactorily."

England Advertises To Swell Army Roll

LONDON, Aug. 15.—England is adopting modern advertising methods to swell her army standards for the war. A double-column advertisement appearing in the newspapers under the heading of "Join the Army" is headed by an expert "ad" writer. It is set in American style and nothing like it has ever before appeared in a London newspaper. The advertisement is headed, "Your King and Country Need You."

This is set in blackface type, and the remainder paraphrased in short sentences, in blackface type, reads: "Will you answer your country's call? Each day is fraught with the gravest possibilities, and at this very moment the empire is on the brink of the greatest war in the history of the world."

"If every patriotic young man answers the call, England and her empire will emerge stronger and more united than ever."

"If you are unmarried and between 18 and 30 years old, will you answer your country's call? And go to the nearest recruiter—whose address you get at any postoffice, and 'Join the army today.'" consider the French and Russian fleets I should say the Germans don't stand one chance in a hundred. Money is the great factor in war. Leaving the United States out of the question, England is the richest country in the world. France is second, Germany third, and Germany fourth.

"France is extremely rich. Her people are quite as patriotic as any. The war of 1870 between Russia and Austria lasted only six weeks."

THE BURDEN

By GERALD P. BEAUMONT.

'Round the grimy girth of the wounded earth
Winds a crimson carnage trail;
With a throbbing vein and a pang of pain,
And a hungry widow's wail.
While in battle driven, we die unshriven
In the blood of Brother man.
What the Christ hath taught hath gone for naught,
And clan doth march on clan.

And the woman sobs for her mate and son
As she tills in the sodden fields
While the king-mad armies drink with Death;
God pardon the sword Man wields!

Dim in the days when the world was whelped
And the man pack sought and slew,
'Twas ever the woman who labored and bore
And grieved and bore anew.
For the law of might is: "arm and smite,
Be he husband or father or son,"
And alas for the woman who's left at home
As she stands in a world undone!

For the woman sobs for her mate and son
As she tills in the sodden fields
While the king-mad armies drink with Death—
God pardon the sword Man yields!

SAYS WAR MEANS COMING OF END

Bible Prophecy Traced to the Present Struggle by Advent Elder.

ALHAMBRA, Aug. 15.—That Russia, as mentioned in Bible prophecy, will eventually seize Constantinople and drive Turkey into Asia Minor, following her invasion of the Balkans, was the statement made by Elder E. J. Hibbard, professor of Biblical exegesis at Pacific Union College, St. Helena, in a sermon at the Seventh Day Adventist conference and annual encampment for Southern California, now in session here. That the war in Palestine between the armies of Christendom and the Mohammedan hordes will be the Armageddon of the Bible, and that there the armies of heaven will meet the armies of earth, was, in substance, the statement he made near the close of his sermon. "The earth's history has nearly struck," he solemnly declared. Continuing, he said, in part:

"The ten kingdoms into which Rome was divided are mentioned in Daniel 2:40 to 43. Daniel 7:23-24-25 also mentions them. These are the Herul, Vandals, Ostrogoths, Alans, Franks, Burgundians, Visigoths, Suevi, Lombards and Anglo Saxons. Three—the Herul, Vandals and Ostrogoths—were uprooted, as the prophecy predicted. The seven remain. The Anglo Saxons are the English, the Alans the Germans, the Franks the French, the Burgundians the Swiss, the Visigoths the Spanish, the Suevi the Portuguese, the Lombards the Italians of Lombardy.

The poor people of this world think there is soon to be a Millennium of peace. There will be. Why? Because there will not be a living man left upon the earth. The Bible shows clearly that Christ's Kingdom is to destroy all others, the statement being that God shall destroy them that destroy the earth."

Elder E. E. Andrews, president of the Pacific Union Conference of the Seventh Day Adventists, said the present European war is not Armageddon, but is a preparation for it. He said that according to Daniel 11:44-45 Turkey ultimately will set up its headquarters at Jerusalem, and "shall come to his end, and none shall help him." Christ will return to earth in the clouds of heaven soon, afterward he said.

JAPAN WILL GREAT JUMPS IN PRICES TO BE PROBED

No Territorial Ambitions, Is the Claim of Premier in Statement.

TOKYO, Aug. 15.—"Japan has no territorial ambition, but hopes to stand as the protector of peace in the Far East," said Count Okuma today in discussing the possibilities of Japan going to the aid of England in the Far East. The premier declared that should Japan join in the European war she would do so only to fulfill her treaty obligations with England.

"Japan acts with a clear conscience in the cause of justice," said Count Okuma. It was denied today that any note was expected from the United States as a result of the military and naval preparations made by Japan. It was explained that the foreign offices take the view that as Japan merely would be living up to the terms of her treaty with England if she enters the fight, it is not believed here that any explanation is necessary or will be expected.

quicker, owing to greater experience. The steamer went through the Gatun locks in several minutes, a speed never before equaled. The other lockages were equally rapid.

Colonel George W. Goethals, builder of the canal and governor of the zone, watched the operations closely and was most impressively pleased at the improved handling of the locks. He declared that even this would be made much better with time. Captain Hugh Rodman, superintendent of transportation, who directed the trip, voiced similar sentiments.

DISTINGUISHED GUESTS.

Invitations to be guests on this first trip has been made by the Panama Canal zone, together with local canal officials and those of the Panama republic, together with their ladies, as the big steamer backed away from her berth.

Colonel Goethals was on the bridge beside the Panama Canal zone, together with Captain Rodman.

Other distinguished persons included President Porras of the republic of Panama and his staff.

The Panama national band and the regimental band of the Tenth United States Infantry played the "Star Spangled Banner" as the ship pulled away, but the music was almost drowned by the whistles of the steamers in the harbor.

AMERICANS TO RETURN; LINERS ARE AVAILABLE

LONDON, Aug. 15.—With nine liners sailing from England and Dutch ports, more than 10,000 Americans left the war zone today, and are now en route home. Eight liners sailed from London, Liverpool, and Glasgow, and the Noordam put out from Rotterdam.

It was declared tonight that within the next few weeks forty-eight liners capable of carrying 60,000 passengers will sail for the United States from English ports. This is three times the number of Americans now in England, but they are arriving from the continent at the rate of more than a thousand a day. Owing to the improved transportation conditions, the American relief committee indicated tonight that it would not be necessary for the home government to send transports to take stranded American home. American women continue to volunteer for work in relieving the Red Cross workers. Several wealthy women are being instructed at hospitals for service in case it may be necessary to care for wounded sailors. Others are helping make bandages, knitting or working on soldiers' uniforms.

The liner Arcadian will sail tomorrow. Tuesday the Andania and Anconia will start for the United States. The Olympic will leave Wednesday and the Adriatic Thursday.

GERMAN AEROPLANE IN DISTRESS IN HOLLAND

LONDON, Aug. 15.—A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Rotterdam says that an aeroplane carrying two German officers were compelled owing to engine troubles, to land at Soermonnikoon Island, at the extreme north of the Netherlands. The aviators were arrested by the Dutch authorities. The German officers started from Belgium, presumably with the intention of reaching the North Sea by the English fleet.

ROME, Aug. 15.—Addresses from Trieste, Austria, say that the population there is in a panic, fearing bombardment. Means of transportation have been requisitioned and all men called to the colors. The $300,000,000 that was in the city treasury has been removed to Vienna.

United States Attorney Is to Quiz Beef and Flour Barons Tomorrow.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—The Chicago meat barons, big wholesalers and others believed familiar with conditions since the war started, will be summoned before the federal grand jury Monday, United States District Attorney Wilkerson announced tonight.

The packers will be asked if it is true they are shipping 250,000 pounds of beef across the Canadian border every night for use by Great Britain, and what effect such an export business would have on prices in the United States.

They will be asked if it is true that the enormous supplies of meats are held in cold storage here to be thrown upon the market in the United States when the European demand forces still higher meat prices. They will be asked if the federal building that the government investigation into food prices directed by President Wilson may reach the Minneapolis millers. District Attorney Wilkerson, commenting upon the recent advance in the price of flour, said he had been told that the Minneapolis millers are making flour from wheat that cost them 75 cents a bushel, and selling it as if the cereal had cost them $1 a bushel.

ALGERINE STRIPS FOR ACTION; SEEN IN NORTH

SEATTLE, Aug. 15.—The captain of the British freight steamer River Fort, which arrived here today from Portland, reported that last Thursday while near Lapush, north of Gray's Harbor, he ran into large quantities of wreckage, including lifeboats, tables, chairs and doors. He took up some of the wreckage and found it marked "H. M. S. Algerine." He supposed that the ship had been wrecked. Later on in the anchorage of the Indian village he sighted the Algerine. He had to be the request of the warship.

The Algerine's captain said that he was almost out of fuel, and stopped and cleared for action by having his woodwork removed. He told how the Algerine and the German cruiser Kelpic had been together at anchor in Massalia and how at the outbreak of the war the Kelpic had put to sea. For twelve days the British warship has been making its way up the coast. The British cruiser Rainbow, and sloops of war Shearwater and Algerine, with two submarines, are at anchor at the British naval station at Esquimaux, Victoria, B. C.

been disastrous and we, therefore, were compelled to overrule the legitimate protests of the Luxembourg and Belgian governments. We are now doing as soon as our military aims have been reached. It is to be hoped that any such attack Italy in vain to stand by alliance.

German troops made a further invasion of Belgian territory near Verriers to the east of Liege.

AUGUST 5.

Germany's advance through Belgium suffers a disastrous check. Several thousand British soldiers, who had been paid by the German army for its attack on Liege. Every German attack was met with such courage and determination that no Germans who passed the forts survived. Two regiments of German cavalry, which had been sent to attack the Belgian army, were almost completely annihilated by fire from the fort Liege. The fighting continues and the heavy and deadly. Eight hundred British soldiers were killed.

German aviators, flying above Liege, attacked the Belgian air force, who smashed his machine straight into the German aircraft, cutting it in two. He was killed.

Prior to the attack on Liege, General von Emmich, commanding the army of ...the unique act of heroism in the history of the war and a sign of the heroic gallantry of our troops."

...the British for action gave the German cruisers Goeben and Breslau speed out of port and into the Mediterranean Sea. The bands were playing the national anthem as they rode out. The roar of guns was heard as they departed. The German ships will probably attempt to return to the Aegean Fleet at Smyrna under the declared neutrality of Italy. The alternative of disarmament was declined. The British fleet will be ready to meet any full scale and only the brilliancy of a recent escape from the French fleet in the Aegean coast gave any hope of their escape.

The bombardment of Belgrade by the Austrians on 29th July 1914, was continued almost steadily since. The royal navy, the British and German legations, and the most of the sacred monuments of the city were destroyed.

advance of the German forces. He suggested that prudence would show it to be better to let the people of Belgium go to avoid the horrors of war. The Belgian answer was to open fire.

The Germans, underestimating the strength of the Belgian army, attacked the Liege fortification without waiting either for artillery or infantry supports. The German army was then driven back into their ranks and by the time the supporting German column reached the front, the Belgian army had been practically destroyed and the final German charge was successful.

An army of 100,000 men, now marching on Belgium, is a general engagement expected. The schorbe canal fighting occurred during the day, reported in flames. Towns were destroyed.

Kaiser's army: Lights way to gates of Brussels. Fiercest battle of war is fought at city of Haelen. First reports show that the German army is victorious. Indications are that Germans have been winning over combined forces of the British, French and Belgian armies. Intense fighting for two days and that Germans have reached Louvane, 15 miles east of Brussels, where King Albert of Belgium is reported to have been killed. Armies rallied and drove them back. Both armies locked in death grapple at Haelen and Belgian army is reported to be suppressed. It is the extreme right wing of the northern army of Germany that is springing at Brussels. Force of the invaders not yet known, but reported 11,000 were engaged. Germans fought with confidence.

KNOWLAND SOUTH TODAY

San Francisco Union Men Endorse His Candidacy

Congressman Joseph R. Knowland, candidate for United States Senator on the Republican ticket, spoke last night in the auditorium of the Grant hotel, San Diego, at the request and under the auspices of the Republican county central committee of San Diego county. In the afternoon he was at the committee headquarters and met and consulted with many of the county leaders. Mrs. Knowland spoke on "Official Life in Washington" at a reception tendered her by the Women's Republican League of San Diego, with which she is allied several other women's organizations.

He returns to Los Angeles today and will leave for San Francisco either tonight or tomorrow morning.

The Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of San Francisco, has elected Knowland for United States Senator. The action is set forth in the following signed communication from the union:

"To whom it may concern: At the last regular meeting of Painters' Union, No. 19, held Monday evening, August 10, in Building Trade Temple, resolutions were adopted endorsing the candidacy of Joseph R. Knowland for United States Senator, for the term beginning in 1915. In Congress in behalf of bills presented for the betterment of the working people of this country, and for his firm and patriotic stand in working for and securing for San Francisco the Panama-Pacific exposition.

"These resolutions were testimony of the unbiased stand taken by Congressmen Knowland on all bills pertaining to the interests of the working people in general.

"It was further ordered that this endorsement be given the fullest publicity, with the seal of the organization attached.

"JAMES REINFELD, President.
"EDWARD T. FULLER,
"Financial Secretary, I. U. No. 19."

Philip M. Walsh, candidate for Congress to succeed J. R. Knowland, addressed the employees yesterday at noon at the shipyards of the More & Scott Company in Oakland. Today Mr. Walsh will be among the candidates who will attend a big picnic in San Lorenzo park, in the interior of the county. Next Tuesday night he will be the principal speaker at a big Republican rally in Native Sons' hall, 1444 Park street, Alameda, under the auspices of the Alameda Women's Political League, of which Mrs. H. J. Platts is president.

The latest organizations to endorse Grant D. Miller as a candidate for governor are the Oakland and Berkeley chapters of the Political Club, of which F. S. Lewis is president and

J. J. Gallagher is secretary. The Alameda county Regular Republican Club this week adopted a resolution in favor of his candidacy.

A meeting of the sub-committee of the Alameda county club of Alameda county will be held at the armory, corner Eleventh and Market streets, at 8:30 o'clock, tomorrow evening. The four candidates for county superintendent of schools will speak. Mrs. A. E. Carter will preside and all are welcome.

Mrs. H. E. Averell and Miss Ida Diserens have called a meeting for Saturday afternoon, August 22, at Diamond hall, Upper Fruitvale, in honor of the women candidates of the campaign.

An address will be delivered by Miss Gail Laughlin, of San Francisco, the celebrated lawyer, formerly of Colorado.

Supervisor of Alameda county, will speak, as will also Miss Blanche Morse and Miss Alice Dougherty, candidates for superintendent of schools of Alameda county.

Mrs. Helen K. Williams will plead her cause for the position of lieutenant-governor and the reforms to which she is pledged.

Mrs. N. E. Davidson, of Kings county, candidate for state superintendent of public instruction, will be present. Mrs. Francesa Pierce, of the prison reform board; Mrs. C. R. Young and Annie Little Barry will also have a word to contribute.

Mrs. Alice E. Sorrells, president of the Fruitvale Women's club, will be on the receiving committee, assisted by club members.

Henry C. Petray, candidate for superintendent of schools of Alameda county, addressed the 200 employees of the California Cotton Mills at noon yesterday.

William T. Satterwhite, Progressive candidate for the Assembly from the Thirty-seventh district, is making a canvass of his territory, and during the coming week will appear at several meetings being arranged for him by his precinct managers.

A "Supervisor Bridge" meeting will be held on Wednesday evening, August 19, at Hyden hall, 2232 Twenty-fifth avenue, corner East Twenty-third street. A rousing meeting is anticipated, and aside from an address by Candidate Bridge, other candidates will take part in the meeting. Bridge is candidate for the office of supervisor in district No. 2.

The Alameda county Women's Republican club will meet on Monday afternoon, August 18, at 3 o'clock, in the lobby ballroom of the Hotel Oakland.

On this occasion numerous candidates for county offices will be heard. Several musical selections are promised, including two numbers by Mrs. Arthur Mosser, who is to sing "The Pearl of Brazil" and Lang's "Irish Love Song." She will be accompanied by Miss George Maguire. By special request, Mrs. E. J. Bartholomew will, at the end of the meeting, sing "My Own United States."

Monday's meeting is to be the last held under the auspices of the Alameda county Women's Republican club before the primaries. Fourteen candidates for state and federal offices have spoken at previous meetings, exclusive of an afternoon devoted to women speakers on behalf of aspirants to these offices. On no occasion has any candidate appeared other than those on the straight Republican ticket.

PLANT EXPERT BEGINS WORK IN BAKERSFIELD

BAKERSFIELD, Aug. 15.—R. R. Mack, Kern county's new adviser, has arrived in Bakersfield to assume his duties. Since August 1, Mack has been in San Diego county with Farm Adviser Armstrong familiarizing himself with the practical details of his job and is now ready to work here systematically as soon as he becomes acquainted with local conditions.

His work will include holding three meetings a week at different farm centers for the discussion of farm problems. On the day following such meetings Mack will visit such farmers as may wish him to do so. It is the policy of farm advisers not to volunteer personal visits to farms. The field covered will include the marketing of agricultural crops with special attention paid to marketing problems. Later, demonstration tracts will be established. Mack will share offices with the horticultural inspector for the present.

WOMEN CAUSE ARREST OF "TICKLER" WIELDERS

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 15.—An innocent carnival tickler brought several kinds of trouble to H. O. Williams, according to testimony which he gave at the trial of A. Wylie, accused of battery in police court.

On the night of July 4th Wylie and E. Miller, accompanied by two young women, joined the merry throng on the downtown streets. They encountered a band of young fellows who were wielding ticklers. It is claimed that the girls were insulted and the situation became serious when Wylie attacked Williams. "He knocked me down, kicked me and beat me and I lost my cap," declared Williams on the witness stand. "I didn't offer to fight back. He had no provocation."

A. L. Nelson and E. Miller testified for the defense, asserting that the young women were subjected to insults by Williams and others in the crowd. The case will be concluded this morning after witnesses subpoenaed for the prosecution are examined.

SAILORS OUT OF WORK; WAR TIES UP SHIPS

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 15.—Over 25,000 foreign sailors, who are attached to French, German, Belgian and British ships tied up as a result of the European war, are now without employment at various Atlantic and Pacific coast seaports. The United States immigration bureau is confronted with the problem of dealing with these men.

AMERICAN, NORTH GERMAN LLOYD AND OTHER STEAMSHIP LINES ISSUED ORDERS THAT ALL MEN ATTACHED TO THEIR SHIPS NOW Laid UP AT AMERICAN PORTS BE DISCHARGED. THE IMMIGRATION MEN WERE INSTRUCTED TO DEAL WITH THE DISCHARGED EUROPEAN SEAMEN AS IMMIGRANTS AND TO CHARGE THE USUAL $4 PER CENTAGE TAX AGAINST ALL WHO WERE ADMISSIBLE. THE OTHERS MUST BE KEPT IN DETENTION AT THE EXPENSE OF THE STEAMSHIP COMPANY EMPLOYING THEM.

There are twenty-three European seamen attached to the British collier Vesta, now in port.

ATE FAILS TO SATISFY TREATIES

Colombia and Dominican Pact
Not for Further Developments.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Peace with the Dominican republic and which the Senate failed to ratify, are to be retained on the calendar of being referred back to the Senate on foreign relations for reconsideration. It is not contemplated, however, that they will be again for consideration. The Senate department has carefully studied the relations between Colombia and the United States and postulates developments.

It was pointed out today that the Colombian treaty has a clause that must be considered. In view of the fact that there is no present discussion in the Senate to press consideration of the Colombian convention it is that the Panama treaty will be null if some disposition is made of Colombian territory.

The San Domingo treaty, Senegally, generally believe that no serious disturbance should be given it until disturbances there have been.

Secretary Bryan today expressed his opinion at the favorable action by the Senate on the peace commission.

IS CAUSED BY GREEN ALFALFA HAY

OSBURG, Aug. 15.—The large barn of J. Stone, milner, near Kingsburg, was found to be on fire, supposed caused by spontaneous combustion. All possible was done to save the barn and contents, but to little avail. The barn was destroyed, together with four of hay and machinery. By hard work the hay was saved, and the loss, a fine brick house, was prevented from taking fire. Neighbors in and rendered all the assistance possible. The origin of the fire is not known, but it is thought to have been from alfalfa, some of which may have been put into the barn rather green. Actual loss may exceed $2000 which is fully covered by insurance.

FARM ADVISER IS VALLEY VISITOR

T.C. Mayhew Begins Duties by Outlining Coming Activities.

MADERA, Aug. 15.—T. C. Mayhew, the newly appointed farm adviser for Madera county, has arrived, accompanied by his family, and has taken up his duties. He will share the office at the court house with Horticultural Commissioner George Marchbanks. He will soon be ready to take up his work with the various ranchers. Mayhew is from the University of California, and last year taught in the agricultural school at Davis. He will conduct his work through the farm bureau, an organization of farmers interested in the promotion of agriculture on scientific lines, the county being divided into ten centers. Those in the bureau are among the live farmers of this county, who co-operate with the adviser in his work. Madera is the ninth county to accept this forward step in agriculture, the others being Humboldt, San Diego, Yolo, Kern, Joaquin, Ventura, Alameda, Kern and Napa.

FINISH BIG CANAL

MODESTO, Aug. 15.—The work at Dav's reservoir of the Turlock district on the re-construction of the main canal of the district, which was washed out at the time of the break in the reservoir six weeks ago, has been completed so that water will probably be turned into the main canal this week. Water has been flowing into the reservoir for several days to be ready for the opening of the outlet gates. A temporary dam has been constructed at the break in the outlet structure.

BIG GRAPE SHIPMENTS.

FRESNO, Aug. 15.—Grape shipments from the valley district continue to average about sixty cars each day and once a tonnage of about 12,000 to 15,000 tons is expected by shippers that the average daily shipments will increase to seventy-five cars a day by the early part of next week. Malagas are ripening rapidly and the sugar test is resulting in little waste because of picking when the grapes are too green.

HIBERNIANS WILL HOLD CONVENTION

Meeting of Ladies' Auxiliary to Open at Same Time Tomorrow.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—The forty-first State convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and the Ladies' Auxiliary will open in this city tomorrow morning with a parade starting from the headquarters, 474 Valencia street, to St. Mary's Cathedral, where a high mass will be celebrated.

A reception will be held in the afternoon and delegates conferred upon candidates. Monday morning the convention will be formally opened with an address of welcome by Mayor Rohlf. The various conventions will make for opening ceremonies. William Boyle, State president, will preside over the sessions of the Hibernian convention, and Mrs. Marie Conter of Los Angeles, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary will have charge of the meetings of the auxiliary. Following the business session of Monday, a trip around the bay will be taken by the visiting delegates.

Tuesday and Wednesday both conventions will devote strictly to business, but a ball will be given on Tuesday evening in the auditorium at Page and Fillmore streets, and a banquet will be served to the visitors in the German House on Wednesday evening.

Among the speakers at the banquet will be Mayor Rohlf and Rev. D. O. Crowley.

The large committee of arrangements is under the personal supervision of P. E. Macanvey.

'LITTLE GENERAL' STILL IS SHERIFF

R. R. Veale of Contra Costa Too Popular to Lose at Primaries.

It is no longer a question as to whether the popular "Little General," as R. R. Veale is known to the length of the state, will continue to remain as the sheriff of Contra Costa county, but the problem of the politicians over the hills is the measuring of his majority at the forthcoming primaries.

When James P. Arnold, the Richmond chief of police, tore the star from his coat and announced himself as entering the ring against Veale, it was feared by his friends that he was taking a rash chance in counting such an opponent as the "Little General." Sheriff Veale has been holding down the job as sherrifmaster of Contra Costa for twenty years. His popularity has increased in each succeeding campaign and in the measure taken from the present outlook, he will defeat Arnold by from 300 to 4000 majority, some figure it out nearer 5000.

The facts are, Veale is essential to Contra Costa. He has earned his salary as a first class sheriff and rendered services as a general county manager many times the amount his wage as fixed by statute. He fits into the popular notion of an ideal director of public affairs.

He figures in the social, fraternal, industrial, agricultural, horticultural and other activities, in which humanity is concerned. His position among Contra Costans is that of a chieftain at the head of a great clan. Everybody goes to Sheriff Veale to get things stirred up and put them in motion.

He is tireless in his efforts to do for the people of the county, collectively or individually. He gets jobs for those out of work, smooths out rough joints and can get a crowd assembled on short notice. His writ of friendship will bring to rendezvous scores of automobiles. Through the influence of the sheriff, the leaders in the big industries and raise a howl that will be heard and respected in Washington. Veale has grown into the hearts of the people of Contra Costa county, and the affection is mutual for the doughty little sheriff would give his last cent to help any one of the clan who live over the hills. He is up to date, knows the world's game, can swear and has a backbone that is all bone. But he has no malice, bears no grudge or grudge, and his enemies of the moment have become his friends for the years. That is why Veale holds to the people of Contra Costa and they hold to him by ever increasing majorities.

WINS DIVORCE FROM LOVE PIRATE

C. V. Riccardi's Silk Shirts and Gold-Headed Canes Be- come Evidence

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 15.—His dazzling silk shirts and his gold-headed canes today cost Constan- tino V. Riccardi, "love pirate" and fugitive from justice, his beautiful young wife.

Mrs. Riccardi, who is a member of a prominent and wealthy Indiana family and a close friend of Vice- President Marshall, was granted a grounds that the debonair young law- yer had forsaken his wife to give his love to the beautiful Mrs. Nellie Stone.

Mrs. Riccardi described a scene on a Pullman car in which Mrs. Stone was found in a drawing room sur- rounded by various articles of Ric- cardi's clothing and a cluster of his walking sticks, while Riccardi was leaving from the train.

The trial consumed about five min- utes. Mrs. Riccardi and a private detective were the only witnesses who testified.

Riccardi was not represented and when the name of Mrs. Nellie Stone was called and opportunity given for her to reply to the charge of Mrs. Riccardi, there was silence.

TAKES WITNESS STAND.
Removing the heavy blue veil from her head, Mrs. Riccardi took the witness stand and in tones that were scarcely audible at the attorneys' table, said:

"We were married at Louisville, Ind., December 29, 1913."

Judge Monroe interrupted: "Did you live at Louisville?"

Mrs. Riccardi replied: "No."

Judge Monroe asked: "Is Louisville the Santa Ana of Indiana?"

Mrs. Riccardi smiled and her lips moved slightly, but no answer was audible. Continuing her story, she said:

"We had no children. In February of this year Mr. Riccardi departed. I was convinced that he was in the company of another woman and I thought of Mrs. Stone. I engaged private detectives.

"A few days later, the exact date has slipped from my memory, I was notified that Mr. Riccardi and Mrs. Stone were en route to Los Angeles from the East and would reach Pasadena at a certain time. I went to Pasadena and boarded the train. I found the door of their stateroom or drawing room by the number that had been given me and I opened the door and entered.

"Mrs. Stone was there, but Mr. Riccardi was not. However, the drawing room presented an appear- ance that convinced me that he had been there but a moment before. Many articles of his clothing, shirts, collars and toilet articles, his canes and his satchel were there."

KNOW THEM WELL.
Judge Monroe asked: "Are you cer- tain that the articles you saw were those of your husband?"

Mrs. Riccardi replied with an en- gaging smile: "Oh, yes, judge, I knew them well."

Continuing, Mrs. Riccardi said: "I looked for Mr. Riccardi and saw him hurriedly leaving to the station plat- form. He did not get on the train again."

A private detective, R. Dermott, followed Mrs. Riccardi and reported her story, with the additional state- ment that he had followed Riccardi to the Grand Canyon and had noti- fied Mrs. Riccardi by telegraph when her husband started back for Los An- geles with Mrs. Stone.

Without commenting upon the evi- dence, but remarking that he would not take any special steps to have Mrs. Stone appear to defend herself if she didn't care to do so, Judge Monroe granted the decree.

Riccardi, it is declared, is in hiding in the northwest. The district attor- ney's office is searching for him. He is charged with defrauding clients in Los Angeles just previous to his flight to Monte Carlo.

WOMAN'S MIND BLANK.
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 15.—Unable to remember her name or anything connected with her past, Mrs. Wil- liam Keatch is being cared for at her home, Twenty-first and Oak streets, after falling in a stupor on the street.

Her husband believes her condition is due to some drug taken to alle- viate pain caused by the extraction of teeth.

Early today she was taken from the home of Mrs. M. M. Merry, 2817 West Sixteenth street, where she had been given shelter after her col- lapse.

The mind of the young woman has been a blank since the time.

Officer Honored Reception Guest

MISS ANNA L. SILVEIRA.

Miss Anna L. Silveira, of San Francisco, grand honorary member of Supreme Council Royal Association Beneficente Autonoma Michaelense Incorporada, was guest of honor at a reception held in the Pacific building on the corner of Sixteenth and Jef- ferson streets, this city.

The reception, which was also commemorative of Miss Silveira's birthday, was a compliment tendered by Councils No. 9, of which she is an honorary member, and of No. 23, to which she belongs, as well as of the Supreme Council, with headquar- ters in Taunton, Mass. The program included several choice selections, both musical and literary. An elab- orate banquet concluded the enter- tainment.

Miss Silveira's many acts of kind- ness have endeared her to the mem- bers of the councils throughout the coast and the reception was indicative of a sincere desire to show their ap- preciation. An additional proof of the estimation in which Miss Silveira is held was given when Council No. 23 was named in her honor "Consejo Anna Silveira No. 23."

The Royal Association Beneficente Autonoma Michaelense Incorporada has a membership of 7000, consisting only (except in the case of wives of the members) of natives of the pic- turesque island of St. Michael, Azores. The organization is a beneficiary one, well known and prosperous.

BOARD AT OUTS WITH ATTORNEY
Temporary City Appointments Cause of Disagreement of Officials.

The civil service board of Oakland and Assistant City Attorney Charles A. Beardsley have arrived at the parting of the ways in their divergent interpretations of a section of the charter relating to temporary ap- pointments, the board claiming that such appointments may be made for an indefinite time, and Beardsley de- claring that the charter limits them to eight months. The disputed sec- tion is as follows:

"Section 64.—Appointment to fill temporary position may be made only with the unanimous consent of the board, and temporary appointments so made shall lapse and become void at the end of a period of time not to exceed eight months, and persons whose appointments shall so lapse shall not again be appointed unless such appointment be made through civil service examination as herein provided."

The civil service board maintains that this section applies to the crea- tion of temporary positions only and means that no position can be created for a longer period than eight months; but that, on the other hand, it has no reference to temporary ap- pointments to permanent positions which can be made for any length of time. The board has acted upon this theory and has approved appointments of this kind that have run for one, two and nearly three years.

"Section 84," says Beardsley, "ap- pears to temporary appointments to permanent positions. Such as man- ifestly the intent of the charter framers do not like to differ from the civil service board, but it is absurd to construe that section so that it refers to temporary positions, which can be created for any time the council sees fit."

NO TIME LIMIT.
If the attitude of the civil service board is correct, it is argued, then there is no provision in the charter which limits the time of temporary appointments, and a temporary ap- pointment, without a civil service ex- amination, may just as well be made for life.

That the board realizes the absurd- ity of such a position is manifested, say critics of the board, by a pro- vision of its own rules, which says temporary appointments may be made to remain in force not exceeding sixty days and until appointments from an eligible list can be made; provided that during the period of in- stallation for the first time of a com- plete classified service such sixty- day limitation shall not apply. The board has been in existence for three years, but that proviso has never been repealed.

The board apparently occupies the stronger position, for it approves such appointments as it sees fit without regard to Beardsley's opinion, and there is no one to question its action, although hundreds of city employes are affected by the situation, for if Beardsley is right, then all the em- ployes of the various boards ap- pointed by the mayor, mark service board, who have been ap- pointed since the new charter went into effect three years ago must be declared to be holding temporary po- sitions abolishable at the end of eight months.

BLIND SCHOOLBOYS WIN COLLEGE ROWING RACE

WORCESTER, Eng., Aug. 15.—Four blind schoolboys, pulling with a clean stroke, won the annual regatta on the Severn against a crew of four blind men. The victors belonged to the Worcester College for the Blind and their rivals were former pupils. Out of this has resulted a rowing boom at the school, and three "four" are now in training out of the thirty boys. They hope to enter next season for the public school cup at the Molesey Regatta. The boys were trained by their headmaster, G. C. Brown, who, having eyes, acted as coxswain.

"The beginning was the hardest part," says Mr. Brown. "First, they had to feel all over the boat and the oars, while they were in the water."

In a "tub" with outriggers and fixed seats. But once they learned the feeling of the water, they picked up the stroke easily. Their keen sense of hearing and the movement of the boat enables them to keep perfect time."

DEAN HODGES, IN
QUITE NEGLECTED

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—War was the main topic of discussion at the annual jinks at Bohemian Grove this year. Practical jokes were relegated to the background and while there was much of the old care-free abandon for which the club is noted, there was an absence of spontaneity about the celebration which can only be traced to the extraordinary interest taken by many of the members in the great tragedy now being missed in Europe. One of the Bohemians who never misses a joke and who dearly loves a scrap was lamenting to me yesterday that a perfectly good war was in actual process of formation in the exclusive retreat on the Russian river, only to be laughed aside by some of the cooler heads. There was of course no open rupture, but some of those present were a bit incensed for a time.

It was all because the learned Professor Henry Morse Stephens was prevailed upon to lecture upon the merits of the European crisis. Now, however his appearance may belie the fact, the professor is an Englishman and his hearers contend that he gave England the best of the argument. His speech clearly showed him to be master of the subject in hand, and his wide knowledge of history standing him in good stead, he proceeded to deliver some body blows at the German attitude. This proved too much for those of Teutonic blood present, of whom there were a considerable number, and just then the rumblings began to be heard. Were it not for the fact that a wonderful putting was served almost immediately afterward, repressing the discontented in a more generous frame of mind, there might have been more than mere conversational war at Bohemian Grove.

Big Boom for Joseph R. Knowland

An interesting story comes to me from Southern California regarding the combination between Keesling and Shortridge. This is the line of the gossip:

"The report of the alliance between the Keesling forces and the Shortridge followers, as evidenced by the endorsement of both candidates by one wing of the County Central Committee of San Francisco, has caused considerable comment in Los Angeles. The combination has had the effect of increasing the strength of Congressman Joseph R. Knowland. Even the most conservative politicians estimate that Captain John D. Fredericks will carry ninety per cent of the Republican vote of Southern California."

McCarthy Quits "White Hat"

"White Hat" McCarthy is still the same proud, good-natured fellow he was the day he won the derby in Saratoga way back in 1888 or 1889. R. Porter Ashe was discussing him the other day after the veteran sportsman returned from a trip to London.

"He's the same old Dan McCarthy," said Ashe. "He'd hardly arrived in town before he came up to see me. I was out and when my stenographer asked him for his name he drew himself up to his full height and said, 'Don't you know me? Don't you remember seeing a man with a white silk hat around the streets? I'm White Hat McCarthy.' Dan says he had a fine time over in London as the guest of Lord Talbot Clifton. He showed me the letter from Lord Clifton inviting him. It was addressed 'Dear Dan of the White Hat.'"

Perhaps the best story ever told about McCarthy relates to his triumph over Dr. J. B. Perrin, who later became involved in the now historic Benson-Perrin land fraud cases, which were prosecuted so vigorously by the Federal Government. McCarthy had had a run of more than ordinary luck with his string of horses, and was in a generous frame of mind as he sat in the lobby of the Hughes hotel at Fresno. In this receptive mood he was accosted by Perrin, who, knowing him to be an expert on horseflesh, proposed a trade whereby McCarthy was to deliver a drove of horses in exchange for some land which was painted in glowing colors.

McCarthy was not averse to the gamble and an agreement was signed on the spot. The next day McCarthy rode out and took a look at his property. It proved to be of the rolling impossible variety known as "hog-wallow." He regarded it as worthless, and lost no time in turning it over to another buyer. Not having delivered the horses to Perrin as yet, he had the edge on the doctor, and the latter brought suit against him as soon as he got one look at the animals, which he finally received. There

When "White Hat" took the stand in his own defense he had only one explanation to make. "He sold me 'hog-wallow' land and I sold him 'hogwallow' horses," he declared. The jury was largely composed of farmers who knew something of what "hog-wallow" meant and McCarthy won the suit.

Since his return from London McCarthy has appeared sans his accustomed headgear, and has offered no explanation. That "white hat" was first sported by McCarthy back in the late seventies, and now he appears without it. Rumor has it that it was purloined during his absence, but, whisper, it was given to Sam Swift, the man who set himself to start naked and force a living from the streets of San Francisco, and it was practically the only clothing he had for a day or two.

Politics and Law

They are telling a good one on Joe Rock, Olympic Club man, attorney and campaign manager for Police Judge Sullivan in the latter's race for the Superior bench. As mentioned before in these columns all of the four police judges are striving for promotion. It is a spirited fight, and they are battling over every vote. In the midst of such keen rivalry, Rock's chagrin may well be imagined when it is known that he deliberately delivered seven votes to Police Judge Deasy one afternoon this week.

Rock is assistant bond and warranty clerk. He is also a consistent champion of beauty in distress. When therefore a lovely young matron visited his office asking that a perfect bore of a husband be arrested for failure to provide he was all attention. He quickly drew up the papers, and promised his assistance, when the young woman's father, who accompanied her assured him that haste was needed. He would have Judge Sullivan take the case. Judge Sullivan was always very accommodating. He was in fact the most courteous and approachable of all of the police magistrates. He would be delighted to help. All of this and more, bragged Mr. Rock, but never a word did he mention of the fact that Judge Sullivan was in the race for Superior Judge.

The party went in search of his honor. But the jurist was not to be found. He was not at the Hall of Justice. Another judge would have to be appealed to. Judge Deasy was in chambers. They called upon him.

His honor frowned. "I don't like to try divorce cases on the police bench," he said.

"But this is a particular case. That is why I brought it in here. I want your honor to hear it," pleaded Rock.

"Wait until I get up on the Superior bench and then I'll be glad to take it for you," returned the magistrate with a twinkle in his eye.

"Are you running for the Superior Court? I did not know you were a candidate. There are seven votes in my house and I can promise you every one of them," answered the anxious father.

Bible as Text Book

"I'll take the case," promised the judge, but Rock was too warm under the collar to notice his honor's enjoyment of the situation.

The local papers, intent only on war news and with attention centered almost entirely on the situation across the Atlantic, apparently neglected to notice the presence in the city this week of the Rev. George Hodges, D. D., dean of the Cambridge Theological Seminary of the Protestant Episcopal Church. Dean Hodges has the reputation of being one of the greatest of the theological scholars of the country and enjoys a reputation which is not confined by any means to the limitations of his own church. I saw the dean at one of the downtown hotels the other day and learned that he preached at Grace Cathedral last Sunday. A short man of ordinary, even plain appearance, he has a wonderful mind and a strong memory. His knowledge of the Bible is said to be exhaustive and his many books have been widely read. He was summoned to give a course on the New Testament at Stanford University in the spring of 1906, and left for his home in Massachusetts only a few days before the university was laid in ruins by the earthquake. He had been for three months the special preacher at the million dollar Memorial Church.

It is told of the dean that when he faced his first class at the university there were present in the lecture room some three hundred students. It had been whispered that this was to be a "snap course" and at least half of the Freshmen were there.

"Our study will take up the Acts of the Apostles," announced Dean Hodges. "There will be two examinations and by way of a final test the class will be called upon to write a thesis upon the Book of

They listened in awe these Freshmen and Sophomores, to whose ears the word "thesis" sounded like a death sentence. When the class met again there were just thirty members. The others had petitioned the faculty for permission to drop the course.

According to Solomon

The political campaign is rather hard on those of our jurists who, while they aspire to higher offices, must still look out for the judicial jobs they hold.

Judge Bradley V. Sargent of Salinas, who is striving for elevation to the District Court of Appeal, sent out an S. O. S. signal to his friend Judge Cabaniss the other day, which developed a rather ludicrous situation. The call for help came early Monday morning. His honor, Cabaniss, was sleeping soundly. The telephone rang. It was Judge Sargent. He was very busy. Would Judge Cabaniss run down to Salinas on the morning train and call his calendar for him. It was very important. Cabaniss demurred. He had the important case of Ben Well, accused of perjury in connection with the circulation of petitions in the Redlight Abatement controversy, in his court, and the district attorney was going to take charge of the prosecution in person. Judge Sargent, however, had been kind on more than one occasion in the past and, leaving word for his clerk to have everything continued for one day, Cabaniss left.

Evidently Judge Sargent had not kept very close track of what was likely to be on his home town calendar or else there was a misssue somewhere, for when the substitute arrived he found one defendant, a man charged with insanity.

"How do you know this man is crazy?" asked Judge Cabaniss of the prosecuting attorney.

"We have doctors here to testify, your honor," was the response. "He is possessed of the hallucination that he is worth $5,000,000."

Turing to the defendant the judge said, "Lend me $100,000, will you?"

"Why certainly, judge," answered the man.

"He's surely insane when he'd lend me money," quoth his honor, as he ordered him committed.

Captain of Choir

Captain Marcellus O. Anderson, who, up to a few months ago, was in charge of the park police district, and who fought hard against the efforts of the retiring board to relegate him to the pension list, claiming perfect physical health, is certainly still in the running. To prove that he is as youthful as ever, and that his sixty odd years count in his favor and not against him in the general efficiency test, the captain has adopted a new calling. He is a choir singer. Any Sunday morning or evening he may be seen in the choir of the First Baptist Church. He has a good voice, takes an interest in music and is a general favorite.

To see the captain today one need never dream that he commanded during stirring times one of the toughest police districts in the town, and that in his younger days he fought with the best of the old timers against the gangs which invested the region "south of the slot."

Pornographic "Movies"

It has remained for the "movies" to give us the last word in "sex plays." Just when the stage seems for the time to have broken away from productions of this order, and the film companies are delighting us with such wonderful pictures as "The Spoilers" and "The Christian," we are shocked into startled interest by a flaming billboard which reads:

"Don't miss this wonderful picture, 'Should a Woman Tell.' The question is asked a bride on her wedding night. Should she reveal the truth? Find out at the _____ theater."

And the house was packed, too, although the posters were suppressed almost immediately.

No attempt was made to stop Holbrook Blinn's plays either. "The Bride" and "En Deshabille" were heralded as particularly "naughty," but the story that they were to be stopped was a press agent yarn.

A New Playright

I learn that Walter Rivers, a young local playwright and newspaper man, has just completed a play which he has called "The Graven Image," and which is soon to be presented at a downtown theater. It is said to be of the type of "Bought and Paid For," but lacking the brute appeal of that huge success.

That Japanese Schoolboy

A popular young advertising man of this city, who makes his home in Oakland, is having a barrel of fun at the expense of his wife, who received a postcard from a Japanese servant the other day in which the latter mixes his speech in droll fashion.

when he told her he was going to take a vacation she commissioned him to get a substitute. She had always derived great amusement out of the fact that although possessed of a good old Irish name, the nearest the Japanese could get to it was to call her "Mrs. Foolen." It did not sound so terribly when pronounced with the accent of the "Japanese honest boy," but when she read it on a postal she nearly collapsed. This is what the substitute wrote:

Mrs. Foolen: Ito went hunting to get the deer. He started last Friday afternoon and come back three weeks after, so I will come for you. I have my time, Monday, Tuesday, Saturday afternoon & all Wednesday, when do you like it. Please ring up for me—pied. 004. Will you kindly tell your sister. Ito request for me that. Your truly "Foy"

Dislikes Criminal Cases

Theodore Roche, one of the special attorneys for the Government in the Diggs-Caminetti and Western Fuel Company cases, has decided that he will never again prosecute a criminal charge.

"I'm too chicken hearted," declared Roche the other day. "I hate to think of being responsible for sending a man to prison."

Roche had this feeling throughout the trial of the coal officials. He took up the case at the expiration of his prosecution of Drew Caminetti, son of Commissioner of Immigration A. Caminetti, and Maury I. Diggs, former state architect. Both young men had just been given penitentiary terms and Roche hated to think of having to fight to send other men to prison. Notwithstanding this fact he went vigorously into the case and, together with his associate attorney, Matt Sullivan, succeeded in convicting James B. Smith, vice-president of the company, Superintendent F. C. Mills and Assistant Superintendent E. H. Mayer. The charge against President John L. Howard of Oakland was dismissed just prior to his death. There was no evidence against Robert Bruce, Sydney V. Smith and J. L. Schmidt, other officers accused by the grand jury, and the indictments against them were quashed. The only remaining defendant, Edward J. Smith, was acquitted.

Of those convicted, Smith and Mills were sentenced to eighteen months and Mayer to one year in the penitentiary. The bills of exceptions in these cases are being prepared in Roche's office. They are among the longest on record and Roche is now working on them.

The Diggs-Caminetti cases are on the October term of the Court of Appeals. Diggs was sentenced to two years and Caminetti to eighteen months in prison for violating the Mann white slave act in connection with their sensational elopement to Reno with Marsha Warrington and Lola Norris, two Sacramento girls. Both were married men at the time.

It was due to the resignation of United States District Attorney John L. McNab that Sullivan and Roche were called into the cases. McNab claimed that powerful influences were being brought to bear at Washington to interfere with his prosecution of the Western Fuel defendants and Diggs and Caminetti. His charges started a sure-fire sensation, and led to a stern prosecution of all of the accused by the special attorneys selected by the department of Justice.

Watchful Waiting on Coast

The consideration by the Board of Supervisors of the proposition to lift the lid a bit is looked upon as a joke in many quarters. The city fathers have absolutely no jurisdiction over the matter, and their recommendations for a little more license in the up-town cafes are not worth the paper they are written on, and they know it. The members of the Board of Police Commissioners have sole jurisdiction and they are going to carry out the mandates of Mayor Rolph. At present they are dead-locked over the matter. Commissioners Shumate and Cook favor a bit more freedom, and can see little harm in the dance when it is conducted with some decorum, even in the resorts of the so-called new tenderloin; but Commissioners Roche and Kuhl will have none of that argument. They have determined to block the measure and some think they would not change their judgment even should the mayor indicate that he desires to open things up a little. Rolph, however, is expected to make no such move.

The plan to permit dancing in the cafes along Taylor, Mason, Turk and Eddy streets is only the forerunner of a scheme to open up the Barbary Coast again. Were it not for the fact that the wholesale liquor dealers and soft drink manufacturers, as well as the landlords, are extending credit for big amounts to the dance hall proprietors along Pacific street, some of the bright lights would long since have been dimmed. Many of the owners are hanging on by a thread. Their expenditures are much heavier than their income, and they are banking on a return of their old privileges, combined with the World's Fair crowds, in order to get even.

Aside from the straight saloons, the only resorts on the "Coast" which are paying a dividend at the present time are said to be "The Thalia" and "The Red Mill." Although they have a monopoly of the trade in strong drink, the saloonmen are ready to second the efforts of their connettions, the cafe and dance hall owners, to get liquor licenses once more in order that Pacific street may return to her own again.

WAR, THEME OF ROOSEVELT'S SPEECH

Progressive State Convention Hears Leader Commend Monroe Doctrine.

HAMFORD, Conn., Aug. 15.—The Great Catechism which has engulfed all Europe in war, was the subject of the Progressive State Convention.

At the Monroe Doctrine had not been steadily maintained," he said, "the United States in all probability would have been drawn into "Africa, south of the Equator," he said, "is now drawn into the fight although without any interest in it. We would have been drawn in the same way if it had not been for the observance of the great principle which the Monroe Doctrine contains, the principle that this continent shall not be treated as a place for territorial aggrandizement by Old World powers.

TREATY AGREEMENTS. The peace of the Western Hemisphere largely depends upon the preservation of this doctrine. It is for this reason I feel that the arbitration treaties now pending in the Senate could, if adopted, be inimical to the interests of the United States and of peace, insofar as they would have any effect whatever. I doubt if they would have much effect because in the event of their attempted execution against the interests of this people, I do not believe they would be executed. But surely it is not an honorable thing for this nation to enter into treaties which either could not or ought not to be kept. Such action argues badly for our sincerity and good faith.

"Under the proposed treaties if, as a result of this war, Denmark or Holland should part with their islands in the West Indies to some great old world power, or if at some future time Mexico should similarly part with Magdalena Bay to some old world power, we would be solemnly bound to join in the creation of a commission which would investigate all the matters at hand before we could take an action, and this commission would include representatives of outside powers.

WORTHLESSNESS OF TREATIES. "Within a fortnight we have had fresh proof of the utter worthlessness of treaties of names signed to pieces of paper, unless backed by force, if power or interest demands this violation. This fact has been demonstrated again and again within the last dozen years by almost every one of the great nations who are now engaged in this war, or who stand with their armies partially mobilized and their fleets gathered because of the possibility of being drawn into it.

"These proposed arbitration treaties of ours would not be worth the paper on which they were written if it became to the interest of any great military power to violate them, and if it thought it could violate them with impunity. We would have bound ourselves in such cases as I have illustrated to wait a year or so while a joint commission pursued its weary courses of investigation and during that time old world military power, if it desired to retain its new possessions, could make a Gibraltar of any of our West Indian islands, or of Magdalena Bay, or at other point of territory which it acquired, and could then defy us to take it out save at the cost of war, which might be as dreadful as any now raging."

SOUTHERN PACIFIC HAS TIME RECORD

Large Majority of Trains Were Running on Schedule in July.

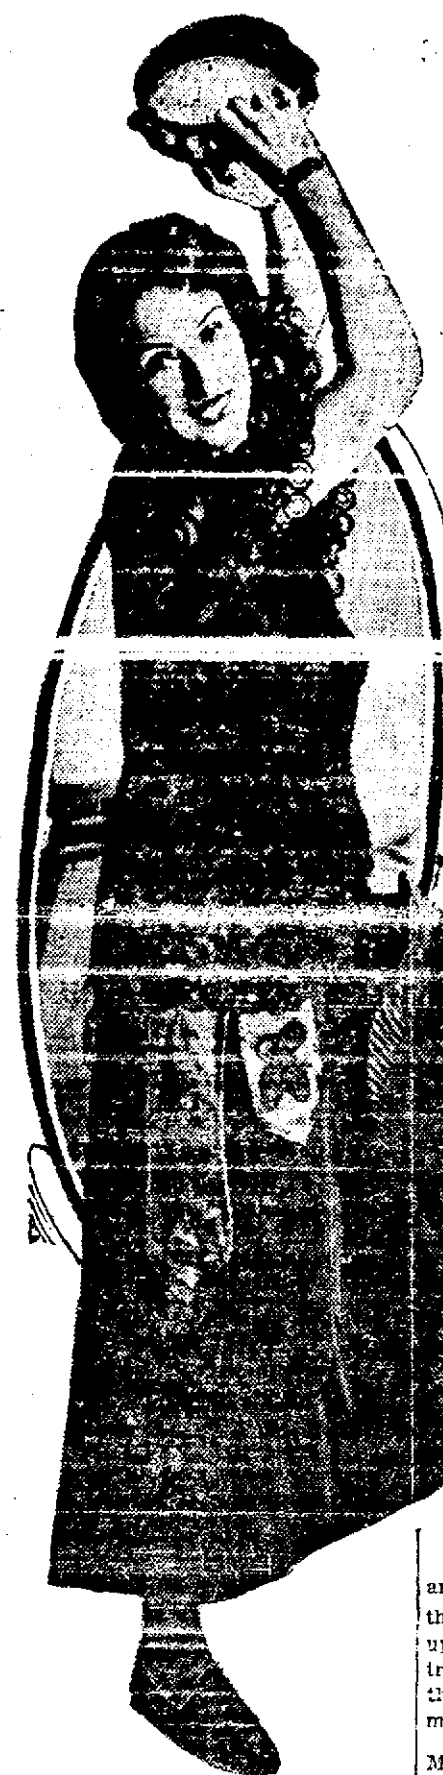

Already possessing the busiest railway terminal of any one railroad in the world, the Southern Pacific Company's July record for promptness of arrival of trains at Pacific system terminals has set a new record. Out of a total of 7632 different local trains run on the Pacific system during that month, 6821, or nearly 91 per cent, made schedule or better time, and 67.0 arrived on time. Of the comparative few remaining 460 were less than 15 minutes late.

Considering the extreme caution observed in train operation—evidence of which is to be found in the safety record held by the company—and the numerous details so essential to train operation, the record stands on its own merits. Especially do railroad officials believe it remarkable when the July 4th holidays, with extra and special trains, are considered.

On the Coast division alone, in July, there were 1412 trains run, of which 1252—88.7 per cent—arrived on time. Only thirty of the remainder were over sixteen minutes late. Even greater is the record of the Portland division—3200 out of 1209 trains on time. On the Western division there were 1842 trains run, of which 1555 reported on time. On the Shasta division 57 out of 162; on the San Joaquin, 532 out of 689; and on the Sacramento 717 out of 745 made perfect records for punctuality.

In and out of the company's Oakland Pier terminal, which is on the Western division, there are over a thousand trains a day to serve the

MOVIE MEN AND RESERVISTS GO

But Despite Exodus, New York Has Unemployed Problem.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—One noticeable result of the Titanic European conflict was the sudden departure from New York of moving picture camera operators. They went singly, in twos, threes, fours and in groups. Every ship that left this port bound for Europe after the first significant news wafted across the ocean carried from ten to one hundred moving picture operators, armed with their machines and tripods. The powers that be in the "movie" game don't look upon this vast struggle with quite as much horror as do many others. Their sentimental viewpoint is blurred, in fact almost obliterated, by their commercial eyesight. In this gigantic clash of arms in Europe they see a fine chance to further exploit their game—the "movies."

Even the most ignorant of laymen knows the value of an actual war scene to a "movie" house. Anyone who patronizes the shows at all would quickly realize the greater value of a picture of the siege of Lieke as compared to a thriller produced by a stock company, and that is why the various companies are disregarding all thoughts of expenses and are dispatching operators by the scores to the scenes of the battles in Europe.

What of these men who turn the little crank that indelibly records the happenings of the world, you ask. These chaps are almost unknown to the average reader. Recently a few of the companies have placed the names of their operators on the films they "took." Now, in war time, when these operators have to get out on the battlefields where bullets are whistling through the air, they come a little more prominently into the public view.

These companies are sending the cream of their corps to Europe. Only those who have proven their courage and their ability to take pictures in dangerous places, are drawing this assignment. To grind away at a little crank while bullets whizz about your ears is no job for anyone with a nervous disposition and for that reason "movie" operators on their way to Europe comprise a hardy, courageous bunch of chaps.

BERKELEY, Aug. 15.—"Dance and forget it!" This is the motto of the Berkeley women, who have taken up dancing as a means of conquering trouble and gaining health, and so, they declare, they have met with more than ordinary success.

"Dancing," declares Miss Vera Morse, one of the dancers, "beats gymnasium work. It's nicer, and it has better results."

BATTLES WITH BIG FIRES IN FOREST

Blaze Greatest Menace in Years; 1000 Men at Work.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—With one thousand forest fire fighters battling in the national forests of Montana and northern Idaho, fifty uncontrolled fires burning and weather conditions in the Northwest from the plains to the Pacific more threatening than at any time since the great fire of 1910, forest officials today acknowledge that the situation was grave.

The hope left of escaping widespread losses of public and private property, they said, was freedom from the high winds which are a part of the seasonal fire risk. If hot winds of relatively high velocity become generally prevalent it is feared that the many small fires will be fanned into fury and swept together into large ones, while those which are now taving the resources of the fire fighters may pass beyond control.

More than 2500 national forest fires have been fought this season, of which about a thousand have been in Montana and Idaho, 200 or more in California and 300 in Oregon and Washington.

In northern California one bad fire was recently fought for days by a force gathered from far and near by the forest service until a thousand men were battling to keep the flames from the towns of Sisson and Castella.

In Oregon fire is threatening the national forest watershed, on which the city of Portland depends for its water supply.

QUICK ROUTE TO FAIR IS OPENED

Car "D" of Municipal Line at Ferry Goes Direct to Grounds.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—Although San Francisco celebrated the inauguration of only one new municipal street car line today, two new routes were opened up and regular service installed. As soon as the cars which took part in the celebration of the opening of the new Van Ness avenue line could be spaced, plans were made for two district lines. Cars numbered "D" were routed from the ferry via Market and Geary street to Van Ness avenue, and thence north to the Fair grounds. From the Van Ness avenue station to the exposition the cars proceeded west on Chestnut street, past the main entrance of the Fair at Fillmore and on to a terminus at Scott street, returning over the same route.

The second line, with cars numbered "H," was operated from Van Ness avenue and Market street to the boat at the north end of the same thoroughfare, returning over the same route.

DETECTIVE LAYS TRAP AND HOOKS PICKPOCKET

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—Detective Thomas Hoerikorn is some sleuth, but he did not know just how clever he was until tonight when he deliberately laid a trap for a pickpocket in front of Lotta's fountain and caught him. The man, who was wearing a watch and a ring, was seen by the detective as he slipped into the pocket of a member of the light-colored fraternity. The officer was keeping his eye on the crowd watching the war bulletins, and suddenly detected a suspicious-looking character slipping his hands and his eyes on a watch and a ring. He looked on while his $20 Waltham watch slid into the pocket of a member of the light-colored fraternity. SEES HIS OWN CLOTHES WALKING UP MARKET ST.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—Fillmore Rutherford of Vallejo had an engagement for tomorrow in San Francisco and had laid out his Sunday clothes for the occasion. When he returned to his room he discovered that his holiday finery had been stolen. He was therefore forced to a second choice and came here, somewhat disconsolate, with the aid of a makeshift. He had Sunday attire, but it was not his. He was walking up Market street, and he noticed a man, Howard Jenkins, and pointed him out to Policeman Fitzgerald. Jenkins protested that he had bought the suit but he was nevertheless taken to prison and booked en route to Vallejo.

ALLEGED CHECK PASSER CAUGHT IN SAN JOSE

Fred E. Andrews, alias Ralph S. Garner, alias S. M. Woods, who several weeks ago fled from Oakland after having, according to a warrant sworn to here, passed a fictitious check for $12 on an Oakland taxicab company, was apprehended in San Jose last night. A member of the Oakland police department will be sent for him tomorrow.

VETERAN CLERGYMAN IS DEAD AT LOS GATOS

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—The Rev. E. A. Winning, for many years a minister in the Methodist Episcopal church, died yesterday morning at his home in Los Gatos.

The Rev. Mr. Winning entered the ministry in the Des Moines Conference in 1866. He was transferred to California in 1872. He is survived by a widow and four children. The Rev. Ernest B. Winning, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, the Rev. Charles E. Winning, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of Chico, Archie Winning of Berkeley and a daughter, Norma, residing in Los Gatos.

'BEARS' GLORY IN CHICAGO 'PIT'

The Liverpool Export Prospect Fails to Affect Wheat Trade.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Despite talk at Liverpool that the export business might soon be renewed, bearish sentiment predominated in the wheat pit most of the week and prices suffered a disastrous slump. The close today brought the following prices: September, 83 3/4c; December, 84 1/4c; and May, 81 1/4c, losses for the week of from 5 1/2c to 6 1/4c.

There was a bull movement Monday. The following day the decline set in and prices moved steadily downward, culminating in a plunge of about 3c today.

Corn had a variable experience this week. The feeling was general that the Argentine surplus will be brought to this country before European markets are closed and that this surplus

'UPPER OFFICE' OF POLICE MOVED

Organization of Department Perfected by Petersen in New City Hall.

With the removal this week of the various police captains and other officials of the department to their permanent quarters in the city hall, Chief Edgar J. Petersen has perfected the organization of what is considered the most efficient "upper office" of any police department of similar size in the United States. Petersen chose the section of the building to be devoted to police uses and worked with the police in arranging and arranging the room.

The entire second floor of the city hall and the larger part of the first floor will be devoted to police business, in addition to the two floors at the top of the city hall used for the fall and the floors in the tower used for the bureau of identification.

It is declared by the architects of the building that the police department has the choicest sections of the building. Chief Petersen's private office is in the southeast corner of the second floor, with windows facing upon Washington and Fourteenth streets, and with the best of the morning sun to its share. The chief's clerk has an office to the north, on the Fourteenth-street side of the building, while Captain of Inspectors Lou F. Agnew has been given the spacious office adjoining this toward the Washington-street entrance to the hall.

INSPECTORS' FINE ROOMS.
The inspectors have been assigned to two large rooms on the Fourteenth-street frontage of the building on the second floor, the large room being specially adapted to be used for a small lecture room.

Captain Charles Beck has been assigned to the offices temporarily occupied by Chief Petersen on the ground floor at the southwest corner. Beck will be given his permanent office next week or the week following. The main central station and sergeant's desk adjoins that of Captain Beck, excepting for a small retiring room between the two.

All the departments are connected by a dictaphone service independent of the telephone service. By this means, by pressing a button, Chief Petersen can address himself to all the heads of the various divisions located in the city hall simultaneously.

A Painless Dentistry Proposition

If I Fix Your Teeth Without Hurting, Pay Me My Price— If I Cause You Any Pain, Then I Won't Ask a Cent for the Work.

Have you ever found a dentist who had enough confidence in his ability to fix teeth painlessly to make you an offer like this? No, you never have, because I am the only dentist who says: "Don't pay me if I hurt you."

No doubt you wonder how it is that I can prevent pain in all dental operations, when other dentists have not succeeded in doing so. I tell you, I am the discoverer of Tetrasthesia, the only safe and sure method of deadening the feeling in a sensitive tooth known to dental science. By my method I can eliminate pain without putting you under the influence of gas, drugs or opium. You remain wide awake all the time and are working on your teeth, but you do not suffer the least bit.

Tetrasthesia acts upon the nerves of the teeth only. It is not dangerous, has no bad effects and can be applied in two minutes. There is no trouble, no inconvenience, just a delightful feeling of ease and comfort. Wouldn't you rather have your teeth fixed by a dentist who guarantees you freedom from pain, provided his work and his prices are right, than to go to a dentist who makes you suffer tortures? Not only is my work the very best that can be executed, but it is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction. As for my prices, you will find that in most cases they are less than other dentists demand for work done under the most painful conditions. I've made you the fairest offer that

Four Babes Adopted, but Nobody Wanted the Stray Black Pup

After Superior Judge W. H. Wast had made four married couples happy by permitting them to adopt each a pretty baby yesterday, as the proceedings closed a curly-haired black puppy wagged his way up the aisle. The court-rooms went their way and still the puppy lingered. He nosed around looking askance about the courtroom until he was spied by Judge Wast.

"Are there any other matters to come before this court?" he asked. No one spoke up and his honor then asked if anyone did not want to adopt the puppy. There was no volunteer, so the puppy adopted himself, waiting until the courtroom cleared at noon when he followed out at the heels of Judge Wast.

As for the babies, little Jack Eldridge was taken into the heart and home of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Holton; Baby Harry Turner was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. John H. Dwyer; Edwin B. Marks by Mr. and Mrs. Angus Kahl; and Mrs. Dwyer by Mr. and Mrs. Dwyer. The children were from a local home finding society.

and can hold conversations with them all, or with any one, as if they were in the same room.

SECURITY IS ASSURED.

The entire department is planned with a view to giving the police the utmost freedom in carrying out their duties, and the possibility of interference. Secret corridors, concealed inquisitorial chambers, cells planned to contain concealed dictaphones, and all the paraphernalia which inspires the wonder of the public in such dramas as "Within the Law" and "The Third Degree" has been provided for. Chief Petersen has been a close student for many years of what is known as the "scientific" detection of crime and has brought into practical use the ideas of such psychologists-criminologists as Dr. Hugo Munsterberg and such experts as the author of the "Arsine Lupin" series of detective tales.

At the rear of Captain of Inspectors Agnew's office is a secret passageway leading to "Prisoners' alley," a dark corridor connected with the police garage and the jail elevator. The main entrance to the police department is from the Fourteenth-street side of the building, but the police garage and prisoner elevator entrance are on the Fifteenth-street side. Men and women may be taken into custody, brought to the police elevator and whisked to a cell in the summit of the building, where the only record will appear upon the so-called "small book," a book known as small only because it is carefully concealed from the public and is not open to inspection excepting to the few members of the department in whom the chief places trust. Those taken into custody, instead of being taken directly to jail, may be brought in the police elevator to the second floor, led down "Prisoners' alley" to the secret corridor, and taken through it to the concealed inquisitorial chambers.

INQUISITORIAL CHAMBERS.

These inquisitorial chambers are without windows and open only into the secret passageway. In one there is a steel door opening upon a dark cell, the use of which had not been revealed by the police. A concealed panel in the wall of one of these chambers makes possible the use of a dictaphone, with wires leading into the captain of inspector's office.

The persons arrested in the normal course of police business are booked at the Central station, where their names are entered upon the police blotter and are open for inspection. Those arrested under the detinue system are not booked in the regular way, but are taken to jail or the inquisitorial chamber, their names being entered only on the "small book." In the fiscal year ending 1914 there were 1849 persons taken into custody under the detinue system. Of this number 400 were released after having been held for varying periods of time and after having been subjected to the careful questionings of the inspectors. Chief Petersen has asked many improvements to the police department and anticipates that within a year he will have a department unequalled in America. The report for the past year concerning police activities has been compiled by Sergeant Joseph Hays, secretary to the chief. The following statistics are contained in it:

MANY CASES INVESTIGATED.

The inspectors' bureau investigated 2313 cases of lost and stolen property, 225 complaints of the theft of bicycles, 1808 hospital cases and accidents, 1349 delinquent cases and recovered lost and stolen property amounting to $37,348.80 in value.

The bureau of identification has filed 28,000 Bertillon records, 17,900 fingerprint records, took 4500 photographs and has a total of 120,750 photographs in the "rogues' gallery," succeeded in making 713 identifications of criminals in the past year and has made a total of 1564 identifications since the bureau was created. The total number of arrests for the fiscal year just past was 9107. The record indicates that with the increase of population, crime and the size of the police department have also increased, with the exception of the fiscal years following the San Francisco fire and earthquake, which registered the greatest number of arrests—11,907—in the history of the city.

In 1868 there were only six members to the Oakland police department, while there were 5715 in 1870 and the arrests numbered 866. By 1880 the department had increased to twenty-five and made a record of 2148 arrests. In 1890 the department numbered thirty-eight, the arrests 1177. In 1900 the department numbered sixty-one, arrests only 2994; 1910, department 157, arrests 4957.

Of the arrests in the past fiscal year there were 1963 men and 553 women, while there were 5715 of those arrested who could read and write, and 512 who were without education. There were 5373 common laborers, 2702 skilled laborers, 875 merchants and 152 professional men arrested. The classification as to nationality follows: Americans, 8517; English, 228; German, 204; Italian, 321; Portuguese, 125; Russian, 141; Scotch, 170; Swedish, 140; French, 127; Danish, 82; Irish, 338; Norwegian, 113; Chinese, 277; Japanese, 52; Greek, 88, and Spanish, 45.

Of those arrested for misdemeanors the classification follows: Drunk, 3611; embezzlement, 45; gambling, 257; larceny, 82; vagrancy, 297; sexual crimes, 25; unclassified, 727. The felonies follow: Burglary, 47; embezzlement, 9; forgery, 14; larceny, 23; murder, 2; robbery, 12; sexual crime, 21; unclassified, 71. Ordinance violations were as follows: Traffic, 697; liquor, 9; license, 55; unclassified, 636.

The automobile patrol wagons made 54,040 miles and carried 13,190 persons during the year. Licenses amounting to $89,409.85 were collected. Property recovered by the entire department was valued at $126,728.65. The fines and forfeitures amounted to $38,409 in the police courts, the total cash handled amounting to $125,742.

DOCTOR HURLED FROM CAR.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—Dr. Victor Veckl, one of San Francisco's prominent physicians, was painfully bruised tonight when his automobile was struck by a municipal railroad car at Geary and Steiner streets. The doctor was thrown out and his automobile was smashed. Another machine picked him up and took him to the Mt. Zion Hospital, where the bruises and abrasions of the body were treated by Dr. Rosenbren.

"The Story of the Resurrection" from Barabbas, will be read by Mrs. Irz N. Allen, a dramatic reader, this evening at the Twenty-fourth avenue Methodist Episcopal church of this city. Mrs. Allen recently read the story at the Federated Mission classes at Mount Hermon. There will be a interspersed the reading.

'MOVIE' LOVERS RUSH TO LIBRARY

Herald Advance of Big Photo Dramas by Great Demand for Books.

The movies have certainly become a most important feature of our daily life, and the latest proof of this comes from the Oakland library. "Every time a new moving picture show comes to town," said one of the librarians today, "we know what to expect. A mad rush for books. If it is 'The Spiders,' our shelves are bare of Alaskan books for weeks to come, and as for 'Cabiria,' well, histories of Sicily and Carthage have nearly ruined the best seller trade. Even Flaubert's 'Salambo' has been rescued from the oblivion of a classic's grave and has become almost popular."

The war, too, has had a great effect on the taste of the reading public. It commenced with the late struggle in the Balkans and has been steadily increasing, until now the librarians are flooded with demands for Slavic history. "The Rise of Modern Europe" and works on political economy, David Starr Porter's "War and Waste" has reached the rank of a best seller.

From an estimate taken from the Oakland library it is found that the circulation of literature, which includes fiction, is a little over 5 per cent, philosophy 4 per cent, sociology 2 1/2 per cent and religion a fraction over 1 per cent.

PUBLIC TASTE CHANGES.

Among novels the most popular just now are Dailymple's "Diane of the Green Van"; "The Salamander" by Owen Johnson; "The Eyes of the World" by Harold Bell Wright; "Escape" by Jean Straton Porter; and Arnold Bennett's "Price of Love." Then there are a few standard favorites whose popularity seems undisturbed by the momentary successes of less known names, such as Winwood and Luna, Rex Beach, Janet Reed, William Locke and the Williamsons.

BIG RALLY PLANNED BY 'DRY' FEDERATION

Under the auspices of the Young Peoples Branch of the "California Dry Federation," a rally for "California Dry" will be held in the First Congregational Church, Twelfth and Clay streets, on Thursday evening, August 20, at 8 o'clock. Dr. Francis Hays will act as chairman and R. A. M. Browne of Los Angeles, will be the speaker of the evening. The Boys' Band of the First Baptist Bible School will play in front of the church at 7:30. Arrangements are in the hands of the Meetings Committee consisting of P. G. Ruff, chairman; A. H. H. Mohan, and F. G. Weismann.

WAR SITUATION TO BE LECTURE TOPIC

University Extension Division to Give Course of Talks at Church.

The university extension division of the University of California will give a course of lectures on "War and the General European Situation," beginning next Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the First Congregational Church, Clay and Twelfth streets, Oakland. The course will be free to the public and the Emergency Hospital to the subjects in an impartial and scientific manner. The first lecture will be delivered by Professor David P. Burrows, head of the department of political science. Other lectures of the course will be delivered by members of the university faculty who have devoted special attention to the various aspects of the question. Following the first week there will be two lectures a week—Tuesday and Friday evenings—until the course is completed. A complete announcement of the course will be made in a few days.

THREE BOYS HURT BY CAP EXPLOSION

Youngster Experiments and Result is Trio Goes to Hospital.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—The desire of the small boy to discover if possible what every strange substance is made of, was responsible for sending three lads to the Emergency Hospital tonight, one of them being seriously burned. It was little Elmer Thirwell, 9 years of age, of 2171 Twenty-fifth street, who did the experimenting, and when he applied a match to a dynamite cap to see if it would go off, he and his two companions were thrown to the ground by the deafening explosion which followed. When the youngsters had been taken to the Mission Emergency Hospital, the following damage had been recorded: Elmer Thirwell, three fingers of right hand blown off; lacerations of face; Carl Nielsen, 9 years of age, 1028 Treat avenue, punctured lip; lacerated arm; cut on right cheek. Carl Fritz, 8 years of age, 1063 1-2 Treat avenue, punctured wound of right side of face.

The three children had visited a quarry near San Bruno. On having their pick up a box of caps and carried it all the way to a vacant lot at Twenty-fourth and Treat avenue. There it was that they decided to conduct the blow-off, and after matches had been borrowed, the scene was set and the damage done. All of the youngsters save Thirwell will suffer no permanent injury, but he lost his first, second and third fingers of his right hand, the amputations being completed by Dr. Sampson.

PATROLMAN COMMENDED FOR CHASING HOLD-UP

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—Patrolman G. R. Nevada was commended for bravery by a coroner's jury which investigated this afternoon the suicide of O. R. Schultze, a hold-up man, following his robbery of the saloon of Charles Brunz, at Twenty-second and Guerrero streets. Nevada pursued Schultze and despite the fire of the latter's revolver was closing in on him when the bandit put a bullet in his own brain. The jury's verdict follows: "We, the jury, find that Oscar R. Schultze came to his death from a gunshot wound with suicidal intent to escape arrest, and we further commend Policeman George R. Nevada for bravery for pursuing deceased under fire."

FORGERY IS CHARGED.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—Walter J. Cocco, alias McCaleb, was arrested today on a warrant charging him with forgery and booked at the city prison. The complainant is Charles Galling of 361 Hyde street, and the amount involved is $50. Cocco is alleged to have forged the name of Gusenberg and Friedler of Naches, Mississippi.

BOY FATALLY HURT.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—While playing on the roof of a building in course of construction at Sixth and Howard streets, at 6 o'clock tonight, Morris Thomas, 11 years of age, lost his balance and fell 30 feet to the pavement. He was fatally injured. He suffered a fractured skull and was taken to the Central Emergency Hospital.

PROTECT INTERESTS OF U. S. POLICY HOLDERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Acting in the interests of American policy-holders the state insurance department has placed an embargo on the sending of any money by New York agents of foreign fire, marine, casualty and life insurance companies to parent companies abroad during the war. Letters received by the department yesterday indicate that the suggestion will be generally complied with.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—A committee of five noble lords has just decided adversely to the applicant in a claim for a pension for obesity, made under the workmen's compensation act.

CHILD LABOR LAW IS INVOKED IN VISALIA

VISALIA, Aug. 15.—The Visalia branch of the California Fruit Growers' Association has been compelled to turn off a number of child laborers, owing to the child labor laws of California. As a result of many complaints filed with the labor commission of California, the cannery officials made an investigation and found many under the age of 13 who were working over hours, and who misrepresented their ages to the manager of the local plant.

While the management regrets that the employees should be discharged, it cannot adopt any other course. The violations of the law were unintentional and inadvertent, and it is not believed any action will be taken by the labor commission.

PREPARE FOR RUSH TO COAST NEXT YEAR.

It makes no difference whether the war in Europe ends before 1915 or not, there will be no rush of Americans to Europe next year; they are going to "see America first." Not only that, they will see the west first, and California is among the places having the greatest attractions.

The west is the wonderland of America, the wonderland of the world for that matter. The west may not have the "ruins" for which the countries of the Old World are celebrated; no decaying castles surmount the lofty peaks or line the coursing rivers, but notwithstanding this, the areas west of the Mississippi contain many marvels. The great plains, once the home of the bison and the antelope which ran in millions over their grassy surface, now in a state of high cultivation, may be classed among the miracles of the world, for it is scarce a half century since the subjugation of all this territory began and in an incredibly short time this magnificent expanse has been wrested from the red man and made a home for millions. The Rocky Mountains, that great barrier which runs from northern line to southern State, is something to be looked upon with awe, and it requires weeks, ay indescribable works of nature therein found. Yellowstone Park is something to be remembered through life, once one has visited it, the Grand Canyon of the Colorado in Arizona is prodigious in its immensity and sublime in its aspects; there are many things in the inter-mountain region worth weeks of study.

Coming to our own land of California, there is much to be said. The mighty Sierras which divide us from the east are sights once seen never to be forgotten. Their tops are crowned with an eternal glory of alabaster; their feet rest on emerald and topaz of herbage and foliage. Great gorges, through which cold streams rush toward the sea, are so grand in their proportions as to impress even those to whom they are familiar objects; there are canyons of granite and canyons of marble, canyons of porphyry and canyons of gneiss. Alongside the silvery waters which bound over the boulders the grass grows in luxuriant verdure and over all the mighty trees throw their shade, while from base to timber line the wild flowers bloom in one splendid riot of color.

Our own Yosemite is a place every American should see, for in its vastness and its phenomena it is entitled to be classed as one of the great works of Deity when He fashioned this good old world. Its waterfalls have no equals in creation, its great domes and spires of rock are far more sublime than the costliest cathedral erected by puny man, its gigantic El Capitan is something worth a journey around the earth to see, and yet these are not all, for there are a thousand other wonders therein to greet the eye at every turn, no matter how prolonged the delay may be.

Here and there in this State may be seen the greatest trees that have ever grown, the gigantic Sequoias and the supreme redwoods. Old beyond computation, these relics of ages gone by still flourish in the magnificence that marked their progress when the veil of the temple was rent in twain on the day the Nazarene hung in agony on the cross at Calvary, and long before. For this is not a young land, but an old one and here may be seen reminders of ages before the foot of civilization pressed its shores.

There are a million sights to look upon everywhere. Why, California has an active volcano even. Its fruitful fields, its vistas of orchards and vineyards, its growing areas of rice, its tropical climate, its beautiful flowers, its equable climate all are worth ten times more than the time and money expended. For we have here all the fruits that may be found in Europe, the wine that sparkles in the glass is as good as that which ripples from the presses of the countries over the sea, the air is as balmy as the breezes in Southern Italy, the skies are as turquoise, the surroundings as pleasant and above all it is a part of our own dear land of peace—America.

Of course, as stated, we have no ruins. America does not believe in ruins; it believes in progress. When anything is destroyed it is restored, and California's history for restoring ruins needs no repetition.

Americans are beginning to find out they have a land of marvels in the great west with its miles and miles of never-ending changes of scene and are coming here next year. The Panama-Pacific will attract thousands and thousands of visitors and of these Oakland will get its share, and right now is the time to forget there is war abroad, insofar as it is possible, and prepare for their entertainment.

New York bakers advance the price of bread by cutting down the size of the loaves, while Kansas farmers meet to consider why they are not getting better prices for their wheat. Screw loose somewhere in the economy of things.

The latest fashion hint from Paris relates that men are wearing zouave trousers.

Having taken Limberg, the Germans are now trying to capture Roquefort. Oh, cheese it.

How this nature man, Joe Knowles, must appreciate war.

Just to show how serious the situation over the Atlantic is, attention is drawn to the fact that high authorities among the warring powers are accusing their enemies of having been liars. How happy the Colonel would be in that sort of warfare.

Just the same the crowd at THE TRIBUNE'S scoreboard holds its own and the number of base hits continues to divide interest with the number of slain in battle.

The newspapers that are suggesting that the Colonel get a job with some of the belligerent powers over the sea evidently forget that this is war, not a gabfest.

The International Typographical Union will meet in California next year. The printers intend seeing California first.

With the Republicans leading the Progressives in the registration by 258,000, the claim of the Marysville Appeal that partisanship is fast dying out seems to be somewhat far fetched.

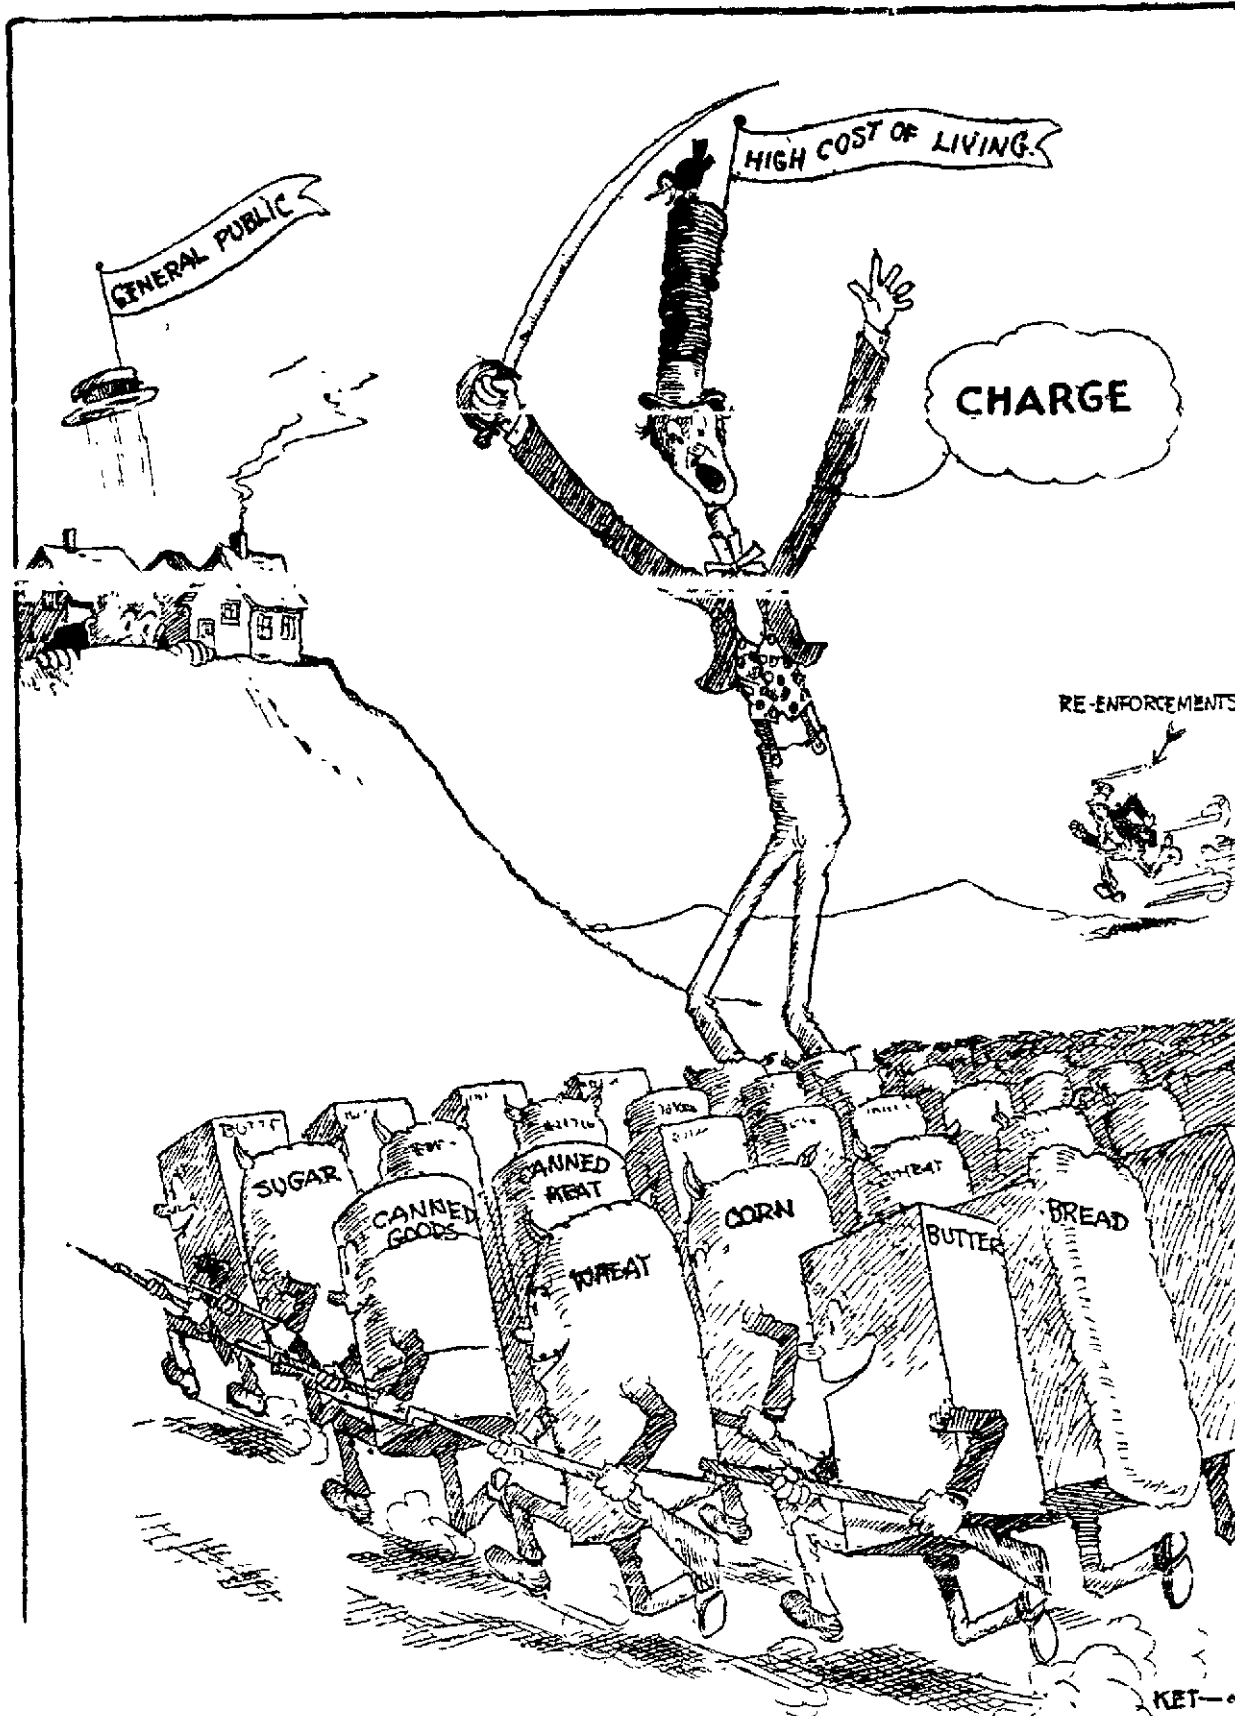

TREE THAT YIELDS BUTTER DISCOVERED.

The American consul at Sierra Leone tells of a tree that furnishes the natives, not only nuts that are highly prized, but also butter, which may become an important export commodity. It is already being exported to Europe, where it is used in the manufacture of artificial butter. The tree is known as the shea tree, producing a nut with a soft covering, the pulp of which is about sixty per cent "butter." The bearing season begins when the tree is about fifteen years old and reaches its full capacity at twenty-five. It is said a plantation will last indefinitely if protected from jungle fires.

In addition to the butter portion of the nut, candles and soap may be made from the residue.

This tree has a versatility that is remarkable. When one considers that in the same vicinity a bread fruit tree flourishes and that nature has provided ready-made bread and butter for the populace, it looks as if the real land of heart's delight has been reached. Who would not live in a land where he could knock a loaf of bread from a tree and by cracking a nut get the butter for it? If only remains to discover a sugar tree to make everyone happy, for Sierra Leone raises very good coffee, and what more would a fellow want?

ANOTHER ADVANCING ARMY

CARRANZA PROVISIONAL PRESIDENT IN MEXICO.

Although Mexico has been off the front page for some time, the condition of affairs there merits mention. Carranza, selected to succeed Huerta, has departed and by agreement between representatives of General Huerta, whom he left in charge, and General Obregon, Carranza has been named provisional president. Federal garrisons are to be displaced by Constitutionalists and disarmed and the federal navy is to be turned over to Carranza, who will hold office pending a federal election.

Let us hope that peace may follow and that the discordant elements will be harmonized, although we have some fears of this person Villa, who is evidently dissatisfied with the trend of affairs. Although our own William Randolph Hearst wants Villa made president of Mexico, most of us would hesitate a long time before selecting him for that important position. For the sake of Mexico it is desirable that something be done to placate him, however, and perhaps Carranza has plans of his own in that direction. Semi-privately, we think the only real method would be to placate him with a bullet or a bayonet, and yet we do not want to see any more blood shed in Mexico, even Villa's.

Carranza appears to be a man of parts and education. He has schemes for the restoration of his country that have been mentioned in THE TRIBUNE, one of which is a "back-to-the-soil" movement for the soldiers of the warring forces and the other a public school system. Both are excellent, but it will take two centuries of training to educate the "cussedness" out of many of the inhabitants, still the experiment is worth trying, as only through enlightenment is material prosperity attained.

The new president has a man's job ahead of him. He finds the business of the nation paralyzed, its credit strained and matters generally in confusion. But by assembling the best minds of the country to aid him, forgetting the animosities of the past and starting from the ground up, there is a prospect that Mexico will regain her former prestige and start on the road to progress with a determination to become one of the leading American powers.

"Where is that muzzling ordinance?" fervently inquires the Hollister Free Lance. Which leads one to believe that the campaign is on in full blast in staid old San Benito county.

Carbajal appears to be a genuine follower of Huerta.

SUGGESTIVE LESSONS FROM VACATION

Vacation over and school open suggests nature and education for a theme. Students return from out of doors, where they learned by observation, to indoors to acquire knowledge from others who have observed longer and better than they. Many Oaklanders went this summer to the mountains and here are some suggestive lessons from Mount Shasta:

MAJESTIC PRESENCE.

Visionary say, although positions vary. Journey from Oakland to Sisson and behold the magnificent scenery of Shasta. Passengers are saying, "Soon we shall catch a view of the mountain," and at last some one says, "See Shasta!" You look, see, but the next moment the car passes behind a close foothill and the sight is hidden. For a time this game of hide and seek goes on, but all know that every revolution of the car wheel brings them to closer, clearer views, and in time to his majestic presence.

For not a few this is the story of securing an education. John Milton at 12 years of age sees a vision of a Shasta called an educated mind. Many obstacles obscured his ideal, but he did not allow the car wheels of his ambition to rest until he reached his mountain—graduation from Oxford.

INFINITE ARCHITECT

The base of a mountain must be commensurate with its height. When the Infinite Architect designed Mt. Shasta he planned a foundation broad enough to sustain a peak 14,000 feet high. How eminent do you wish to become in your business or professional career? Your needed when laying the ground work of education. How lofty a height would you have your family name attain? Consider that great names like great mountains do not leap suddenly from the plain. Six generations of ascending foothill stock prepared a basis for the Shasta called Emerson. Lofty learning and best families depend upon scholarship and character. These are the true bases of our American aristocracy.

HIGH FORCES CONTROL LOW.

High forces control low, but not low forces high ones. This law is seen in the snow on the summit of Shasta saying to pine ridge, "Thus far shalt thou come and no farther." But the pine ridge cannot say to the snow, "Thus far shalt thou come and no farther." The student who sets aside certain books of study to read the latest novel, from which he excludes every pine ridge of social engagement. Sports, chess, cricket, and so on, upon his sacred white hours, but they hear his ultimatum: "Thus far shalt thou come and no farther. As in winter, however, snow sweeps down and mingles every tree in white, so the student carries the white crystals of learning and culture down to the pine ridge of everyday life and beautifies it.

CONSPICUOUS PEOPLE

High and low are intimately related. Conspicuous people are the same flesh and blood as the rest of us. Mountains and foothills are the same at the base. There are only a few towering peaks called Whitney and Shasta and hills of intervening range. There are only a few distinguished leaders called Washington and Lincoln and millions of "common people." But the greatest men love their fellows, witness Lincoln's famous saying about God loving the common folks, and of Jesus, our most famed eminence, it is recorded, "the common people heard Him gladly."

We expect our schools to raise towering citizens to whom we can look up and with whom we can associate.

The highest mountains serve longest and best our valleys: mountain-minded men and women do most for the world.

The Creator ordained rainless summers and snow storage plants for California. What would become of us if there were no Shastas to store snow until the summer sun released the water for our parched valleys? As it is, the foothills flood our low ground in spring and in the winter are brown and dry.

We need people of reserve strength, wisdom and character. When foothill roads are here, mountain minds give relief. The highest sees just and tells others.

SUBLINE PEAKS CATCH RAYS.

It is the sublime peaks which catch the first rays of dawn, and hold longest the light of sunset. Standing on Shasta early one morning I saw the mountain ridges edged with "the rosy finger of dawn." Van Dyke saw a similar scene and writes:

"Above the edge of dark appear the lances of the sun. Along the mountain ridges clear his rosy heralds run, and every morning seems to say, 'There's something happy on the way and God sends love to you.'"

What is a seer? One who sees and announces to those below him in clear seeing, what he sees. Elia Wheeler Wilcox foresees and foretells a "government to be."

"For the school supplants the prison and there are no unemployed." It is a worthy ambition for our school young people to stand erect, tall, sun crowned and with clear eye denouncing the corse of each new era herald its approach.

U. S. HOSPITAL IN JAPAN A SUCCESS

Plan Erection of New Institution Costing $485,000 in Tokio.

TOKIO, Aug. 15.—Great interest has been caused by the announcement that the American Episcopal Mission Hospital at Tokio, known as St. Luke's, will soon be extended into a modern international institution. Already a large sum of money has been contributed in the United States for this purpose, an American council has been formed, with headquarters at New York and an American Board of Directors will be made to project the project. The latest step is the organization of a Japanese council with Premier Count Okuma as president which promises to furnish land for the hospital.

The institution was founded 14 years ago by Dr. Rudolf B. Tessler, who came to Japan in 1899 as a medical missionary. It is now an institution of 30 beds with a staff of three foreign and 10 Japanese doctors and a large hospital school with 40 pupils and a medical society of about 30 Japanese members. The professors of the medical department of the Imperial University are consultants to the hospital.

Perpetrators throughout Japan as well as members of the embassy and legations avail themselves of the hospital.

The project is to erect a new institution on the previous plan at a total estimated cost of $485,000.

CONDUCTS BILLBOARD CAMPAIGN AGAINST FLY

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 15.—On the billboards of Copenhagen appears the sign: "The most dangerous of all animals is not the lion, the tiger or the reptile but the fly." This is the means Herr Falck uses in waging a campaign against flies.

Herr Falck is the bitterest enemy of the fly in Scandinavia and his one ambition is to see a flyless Denmark. To preach his new crusade, he has organized in Copenhagen the first complete fly extermination in the world. It contains every kind of weapon and method for trapping, poisoning or smashing flies. Most of these contrivances come from the United States.

An old superstition that Herr Falck hopes to rid the people of is that a Christian fly brings good luck. A Christian fly, according to Herr Falck, is the potential mother of 150,312,500,000 descendants in the course of the summer season.

GROUSE SHOOTING BEGINS.
LONDON, Aug. 15.—Grouse shooting season opens in Great Britain, on August 15, but the prospects are for a bumper bag this year owing to two factors.

"The cold spell of last spring wiped out the early broods in certain areas and destroyed the hatching of eggs in exposed places. In the northern and western Scotland, a mysterious disease, believed to be due to the bad weather and unsuitable food, destroyed many birds. Worst of all was the loss of about half of the breeding stock.

BLOTCHES ON FACE WITH ECZEMA

Kept Awake With Itching and Burning. Face Was Pitted. Affected Different Parts of Body. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed.

Newport, Ore.—"I was troubled with pimples all my life. They were the kind that came under the skin in big red blotches. I was kept awake night after night with the itching and burning. My face was pitted. Eczema also affected different parts of my body and I would scratch till the skin was all raw and sore.

"I took gallons of blood medicine without doing any good. No external treatment did me any good till I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The Ointment relieved the itching the moment it was applied. I used the Soap and Ointment steadily for three months and they healed me." (Signed) Mrs. B. A. Tozer, June 5, 1914.

UNSIGHTLY PIMPLES ON FACE

New Sharon, Iowa.—"Two or three years ago pimples began to come on my face and I had dandruff. The pimples made a very unsightly appearance. They were red and numerous, some came to a head and festered and the itching caused me to scratch them. The dandruff on my head could be plainly seen. I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and they were cured. My face is now clear and healthy." (Signed) Clyde Firebaugh, May 11, 1914.

THEATER TO BE UNIQUE IS TEMPLE OF NEW ART

FRANKLIN THEATER, OAKLAND'S NEWEST PICTURE PLAYHOUSE, WHICH WILL BE OPEN LATTER PART OF NEXT WEEK.

Keeping pace with the rapid advance of the motion picture industry, now said to be fourth in importance in the United States, Oakland has a new playhouse which will be devoted exclusively to this popular form of entertainment. It is the Franklin Theater, which has been in course of construction for the past four months. The building is a masterpiece of modern architecture, and will be ready for opening the latter part of next week.

From the ground up the theater has been built especially for motion picture presentations and every detail has been carefully considered. The auditorium is a masterpiece of modern architecture, and will be ready for opening the latter part of next week.

The ventilation of the auditorium has been taken care of in a manner which should prove decidedly effective. Two large exhaust fans four feet in diameter are stationed at the front end of the building, forcing the air out and replacing it with fresh air from the outside.

POET'S HOME LIKE DARIEN

Fremont Named Golden Gate From 'Hights'

To "The Hights," home of the late California poet, Joaquin Miller, attaches a significant interest in which romance and history are curiously interwoven, according to a compilation made by Frederick De Witt of Oakland.

It was from this spot that the name "Golden Gate" was applied to the entrance to the Pacific ocean, to the Bay of San Francisco, long before the discovery by Marshall of gold at Sutter's Mill and before California was set out as "Fremont's camp," says Joaquin Miller. "At this time was on the high foot of the mountain between the bay and Redwood Peak, near a spring flowing from under a great fortress of rock, the nearest natural water to what is now Oakland."

Continuing, Miller says, "In 1853, I along with Artemus Ward, Fitzhugh Ludlow and others went to the point. Fremont was doing a picture there under commission of Fremont, and was in the act of painting."

This was the famous painting of the "Golden Gate," for which Fremont paid $10,000 and as a fortune slipped away from Fremont's hands it was sold to Commodore Garrison for the same figure.

According to General Fremont, then brevet Captain of the United States Topographical Engineers the name "Golden Gate" was suggested to him by the entrance to the Bay of San Francisco and the advantages it offered to commerce. He so termed it in his geographical memoirs and upon his map that accompanied it. This report was addressed to the Senate of the United States in June, 1848, but was of work which covered his three exploring expeditions to the Pacific Coast in the years 1842, 1843-44, 1845-46, whereas Marshall's discovery of gold was not until January, 1848.

POETICAL LANGUAGE.

That Fremont possessed the soul of a poet as well as the spirit of adventure can readily be seen by his description of the bay in his geographical memoir work in the Valley of the Sacramento had been finished. He traveled south from Lassen's and on the 25th of May his camp was at Bear River. His last observations were taken during his stay at "The Butte," at a spring at the northern end of the bay in latitude 38° 28' north and longitude 122° 15' west, 23 minutes and 41 seconds. Again quoting from his memoirs:

"In closing up the geographical work which was prepared by this exploration I think it well to give a condensed view of the leading features of California as I saw it at the time of which I am writing, and for the reason that the examination of the face of the country and the connection of the interior with the coast country through the barriers of its mountains was one of the chief objects of the exploration."

"While interested in examining into the true position of the coast of California I found it worthy of notice that the position given it on the charts of the old Spanish navigators agrees nearly with that which would be given by the observations of the most eminent naval surveyors of our time. The position which I have adopted for Monterey and the adjacent coast agrees nearly with that in which it has been placed by Malespina in 1791."

Continuing his description Fremont says: "The Bay of San Francisco has been celebrated from the time of its first discovery, as one of the finest in the world, and is justly entitled to that character even under the seaman's view of a mere harbor. But when all the accessory advantages are taken into consideration, and the salubrity of climate; connection with the great interior valley of the Sacramento and San Joaquin; its vast resources for ship timber, grain and cattle—when these advantages are taken into account, with its geographical position on the line with Asia it rises into an importance far above that of a mere harbor, and deserves a particular notice in any maritime account of California. Its latitudinal position is that of Lisbon, its climate that of southern Italy; settlements upon it for more than half a century attest its healthfulness, bold shores and mountains give it grandeur; its extent and the fertility of its dependent country give it great resources for agriculture, commerce and population. With prophetic vision, and enriched by ancient historical lore, the explorer furthered his description.

"The Bay of San Francisco is separated from the sea by low ranges. Looking from the peaks of the Sierra Nevada, a coast mountains present an apparently continuous line, with only a single gap, resembling a mountain pass. This is the entrance to the great bay, and is in only a water communication from the coast to the interior country. The coast presents a bold outline. On the south the bordering mountains come down to a narrow ridge of broken hills, terminating in a precipitous point against which the sea breaks heavily. On the northern side, the mountains present a bold and prominent line, rising in a series of peaks to a height of two or three thousand feet. Between these points is the strait, about a mile broad at its narrowest part, and five miles long from the sea to the bay."

"To this gate," says Fremont, "I gave the name of Chrysopolis, or Golden Gate, for the same reasons that the harbor of Byzantium (Constantinople afterward) was called Chrysopolis, or Golden Horn. The form of the harbor and its advantages for commerce, and that before it became an entrepot for Eastern commerce, suggested the name to the Greek founders of Byzantium. The form of the entrance into the Bay of San Francisco is an advantage for commerce. Asiatic trade, and the name which I gave to this entrance, and which I put upon the map that accompanied a geographical memoir addressed to the Senate of the United States in June, 1848."

Corroborative evidence is furnished by Hittell's History of California, from which the following extracts are taken: "There seems to be no mention of a name to this strait by any of the early navigators—Spanish or otherwise. Cabrillo in 1542 approached it very nearly from the south, and Drake in 1579 from the north, but neither saw it nor had an idea of its existence. Vitellio in 1602 also missed it while in search of the ship San Augustin, which had been lost on the coast of California."

"Jose Gonzalez Cabrera Bueno, a Filipino of great skill and knowledge published in 1784 at Manila a book on navigation, but he described the port of San Francisco as being in latitude 38° and a half (38½) degrees north and 122° and a half (122½) degrees west and the strait between the bay and the bay."

"Strange to say the bay of San Francisco was discovered by an overland expedition and not by a navigator of the sea. In the year 1769 Gaspar de Portola, Captain Moncada, Lieutenant Fages, Engineer Constanse, Fathers Crespi and Gomez, Sergeant Ortega with a company of thirty-four soldiers, muleteers and Indians, sixty-four in all, marched up the coast from the mission of San Diego, in search of Monterey. They missed it somehow, though they had with them a copy of Bueno's book. Continuing on their march, on November 2, 1769 a body of soldiers while hunting for deer saw beyond them to the north an immense body of water—an inland sea, and on the tenth day of the month of great magnitude, connecting with that seen the second day, which being in front of them prevented further progress to the north. Thus what exhausted from sickness and lack of food, they decided to retrace their steps so on the 11th of November the company set about their return, reaching San Diego on the 27th of January, 1770."

THE PADRES COME.

Monterey was shortly afterward settled, June, 1770 by Father Junipero Serra, and in March 22, 1770, Serra directed a new expedition consisting of Fathers Father Crespi, and a company of twelve soldiers, a muleteer and an Indian who proceeded north until they came to the bay (which was that of San Francisco) and continued along its eastern shore to a point opposite the strait (the Golden Gate) and on until their advance was stopped by the strait of Carquinez. They followed the southern shore of this body of water until they were in view of the great interior valley, and not being able to reach Point Reyes, their objective point, they returned to Monterey.

"On November 22, 1774 Father Palou, Captain Moncada with a company of sixteen soldiers and a muleteer, left Monterey for the purpose of making an examination of the San Joaquin River (or San Francisco river as Crespi called it) which however kept on the west side of the bay, and on December 4 reached the outside portal of the southern side of the strait (Golden Gate) and not being able to proceed any further and the rains being very heavy they retraced their steps to Monterey."

"The ship San Carlos under command of Juan de Ayala was the first vessel recorded as entering the bay of San Francisco. It left San Diego, stopped at Monterey and proceeding north reached San Francisco Bay on the night of August 5, 1775. Shifting its position from just inside the strait, he moored his vessel off the then named Nuestra Señora de los Angeles (now Angel Island). The bay and its connections were then immediately surveyed, instructions left at the base of the cross erected to Palou the year previous for an expedition that was to come up from Monterey later. This party headed by Bruno de Hequeta and accompanied by Fathers Francisco Palou and Campa Cota and a party of nine soldiers, three muleteers and a carpenter arrived at the beach just south of Point Lobos, September 22, 1775 at the same time appointed Fathers Francisco Palou and Campa Cota missionaries for San Francisco, and Ayala gathering up his forces then at San Miguel took them (in all about 200) to San Francisco under their new commandante Lieutenant Jose Joaquin Moraga. Father Font also accompanied the expedition. They found the cross at Point Lobos that had been erected by Palou on December 4, but continued eastward over the hills and the south side of the strait and camped at a point near Fort Point, and established a presidio and fort there. They continued on the shore line (or in a southeasterly direction) until they came to the cross named in 1775 by Aguirre "La Ensenada de los Fuertes" afterward known as Mission Bay. Here they found a large lagoon fed by a creek coming down from the hills to the west, and this they named Nuestra Señora de los Dolores. It was at this point the mission to the memory of St. Francis was established on October 8, 1776, and now known as Mission Dolores.

MURDOCK AIMS BLOW AT SWOLLEN FORTUNES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—A resolution to develop information on which to propose a federal inheritance tax was introduced today by Representative Murdock. It declares that 2000 citizens control incomes aggregating more than that of the government.

"Ayala had in the meantime returned to Monterey having remained in the bay forty days or until but a few days before the Hequeta's arrival overland. Hequeta upon returning found the San Carlos at anchor in Monterey Bay."

DREAMS COME TRUE

Have you often imagined a time in the dim future when, sitting in a dental chair, you would be more unpleasantly and painfully than aching tooth, or being shaved? When you dream of it, you can see and hear everything that is going on, but the nerves are not sensitive to pain.

N2O & Oxygen is an air to breathe. It is not like the old-time laughing gas, which puts you to sleep. While taking it, you can see and hear everything that is going on, but the nerves are not sensitive to pain.

N2O & Oxygen is as harmless and pleasant to breathe as pure air. For it is composed of the same elements as air in different proportions. It is not a bit "smothering" and even if you have asthma or a weak heart you need not hesitate about taking N2O & Oxygen, for oxygen is given in hospitals to remedy just such diseases.

If you have any dental work to be done, by all means investigate N2O & Oxygen before submitting to the old-style methods of injections, gas, freezing the gums, etc.

It will cost you nothing to inquire and you save 32¢ time when suffering.

DEMAND FOR OAKLAND HOMES ON INCREASE

BUILDING FOR WEEK TOTALS $107,774

Realty activities in Oakland for the past week have shown a marked increase in the demand for substantial homes. Although the contracts have included nearly every portion of the city the greatest activity has been in the residential property.

The Jersey Milk, Cream and Butter Company of Oakland is to begin work at once on a creamery and cold storage plant to be erected at a cost of $10,000 at Thirty-seventh and Grove streets. This sum includes merely the building, the equipment to be added later, bringing the total up to approximately $20,000.

Architect Alvin J. Stern has just completed plans for a new modern motion picture theatre to be erected at a cost of $20,000 at the corner of Thirty-third street and Telegraph avenue.

Building cost in Oakland for the week ending last Wednesday ran above the $100,000 mark, the exact amount being $107,774. Eighty-four permits were issued. The cost of new construction totaled $95,685.

G. Noschka has exchanged the Elmhurst hotel for the Grand hotel property at Redkey, California, which was formerly owned by R. J. Wigley, Robert F. Clark and W. W. Needham. The properties were valued at $30,000 each. Clark and Needham will take personal charge of the Elmhurst hotel, while Carl Noschka will go to Redkey to manage the property acquired by his father, who will retire from active business. A. T. MacDonald, with the realty firm of McHenry & Kaiser, represented Noschka in the transaction, while Kimball & Summers represented the Redkey parties.

Permit was issued last week to B. S. Hubbard for two-story fifteen-room dwelling on the southwest corner of Santa Rosa and Vernon streets, which will cost $14,750.

Permit was also issued for a new Catholic church on the northwest corner of Sixty-second and Orion streets, to cost $10,000. The detailed list of permits for the week follows:

NEW BUILDINGS ADD TO SECTION

Construction Is Important Part of Richmond Developments for Week.

RICHMOND, Aug. 15.—Construction started this week on two new brick buildings in the business section of Macdonald avenue indicates that the war scare has not affected local business conditions to any extent. Reports current about the bay that the Standard Oil Company was planning to curtail extensively its working force is denied here by the company, which states that it has business as usual to keep the present force busy for 90 days.

The new O'Leary building, which will be erected on the north side of Macdonald avenue, between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets, was commenced this week, and the concrete foundation will be ready within a few days for the brick masons to start on the main building. The two-story brick structure has already been rented. The Herkimer structure, in Macdonald avenue, near Tenth street, is well finished and the brick work will start on Monday morning. This will be one of the handsomest buildings in the business section. The entire structure has

Herbert F. Brown, a prominent member of the Richmond Industrial Commission, has departed for New York City, where he has arranged a conference with one of the largest companies in the country for the location of the western plant of the corporation. Brown declares that if the works is located here that it will be the largest industrial enterprise yet established in Richmond, outside of the Standard Oil. Brown has located some of the largest of local plants and there is great interest among investors in his present mission.

STREET CONTRACTS LET.

Street improvement contracts calling for the expenditure of $34,457 were let by the city council last week and this work will all be completed before the rainy season starts in. The principal items were for cutting, boulevard and Pullman avenues, in the annexed district, and which will furnish direct paved thoroughfares from the business section of the city to San Pablo avenue, the main route to Oakland and other east bay cities.

A new project, which is of great interest in the recommendation of City Engineer H. D. Chapman that the city take over what is known as Ocean boulevard, at present a narrow paved road along the bluffs of the outer harbor from the Los Angeles Pressed Brick Company plant at Pt. Potrero to the plant of the California Wine Association, a distance of about four miles. This boulevard overlooks San Francisco bay, San Quentin, Marin county and the Golden Gate, and would be a great scenic route, in addition to giving splendid service to the large industries in that section of the city.

Elation is felt in all circles over the visit of the engineering board of the harbor committee of Congress. These engineers spent nearly a day in Richmond and looked over the harbor property from all angles and also saw the big industries which are the backbone of the city. While the visitors would make no statements for publication they evinced a feeling of friendship and interest that augurs well for future favors from this powerful body.

OAKLAND CLEARINGS CONTINUE INCREASE

Bank clearings as reported to the California Development Board by the several clearing houses for the week ending August 13, 1914, showing the amount of increase or decrease from the amount reported the corresponding week, 1913, are as follows:

Oakland, $3,492,410; increase, $8,910; Sacramento, $2,204,353; decrease, $38,537; San Diego, $2,237,370; decrease, $174,201.

BLACK DOG RUNS AWAY; BRINGS BIG BEAR BACK

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Aug. 15.—While Frank Lewis was driving on the North mountain today a large black dog jumped from his carriage and ran into the woods. In a few seconds the dog came running and growling to the roadway with a big black bear at his heels. The dog took refuge under the carriage and the bear followed him. The horse finally became excited and ran away, starting down the mountain at full speed. Lewis was unable to manage the horse, but he was able to keep it in the road. The horse ran two miles before it came to a standstill. A few minutes later the dog came down the road, but the bear was nowhere in sight. The dog's heels to cost $1300.

J. Baumhoer secured permission to erect a one-story frame shed at a cost of $200 at the corner of Macdonald and Nevins avenues.

J. C. Shaw will change the front of his store on the east side of Washington avenue between Standard and Cottage avenues. E. W. Redding will do the job.

W. C. Roberts obtained permission to erect a one-story frame building on the east side of Seventh street between the Southern Pacific railroad crossing and Ripley avenue. It will cost $1700.

BERKELEY BOOM RESULT OF WAR

Dealers Declare That Big Activity Has Resulted From Situation.

BERKELEY, Aug. 15.—"It's an ill war that blows nobody good." This is the cry of the Berkeley real estate men, following the biggest boom in Berkeley property in years, which, they declare, is directly due to the war. The boom has resulted in a demand for home properties, many of these demands being in cases where the prospective owners had planned to rent, but have changed their intention and to those buyers who are seeking realty investments instead of securities—a condition traced by the dealers directly to the war conditions.

One of the notable residence plans started this week is that of the new home of A. F. Hockheimer, vice president of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, who has started work on a $25,000 home on "Millonaires' Row" (Arlington avenue), the property to adjoin the Spring estate. Another residence adjoining the Spring home in North Berkeley is that of Mrs. Cora W. Alger, who is to erect a $12,000 residence on a hill overlooking the bay.

FACTORY DEMANDS MANY.

West Berkeley has seen an increase in harbor and factory property demands, this being partly affected by the plans under way for city harbor development and the recent report of Mayor Frank Heywood urging that all steps possible be immediately taken to hurry the work.

The East Berkeley hill district has also seen several home purchases of importance this week. Edward H. Hetherling has purchased a site in Claremont on which he expects soon to erect a concrete residence.

"I believe Berkeley is on the verge of a big realty boom," declared George Friend, a local realty operator, "and I believe that the war is directly responsible. While it is true that this condition is general, and is superinduced by the war conditions, which have at this time discouraged trade in securities, I do not

MOST MODERN SCHOOL IN WEST

Construction work on the new Clawson school, which is to be erected at a cost of $155,000 on the site of the old building of Thirty-second and Macgregor streets, is to begin soon. City Supervising Architect John J. Donovan is now completing the plans and will have Oakland's latest and most modern school building under way in September and completed by March of next year.

In designing the Clawson school Donovan has included many adaptations that are original in the school buildings of Oakland.

Included in the many unique features of the new school building will be a large auditorium which can be converted into a large sized gymnasium. By special arrangement of the structure of the walls and entrances it will be possible in a few minutes to clear the floor space, place gymnasium apparatus in position and throw open adjoining dressing and shower rooms.

The auditorium is also to be fully equipped for dramatic and entertainment, having a large stage, proper acoustic properties, motion picture apparatus and drop curtains.

SHELTERED PLAYGROUND.

In keeping with the open-air scheme of the school construction which is being carried out in the Oakland schools there will be a large sheltered playground on the ground floor for use in inclement weather. Here the walls are to be formed of iron lattice on all sides, with no way for the sides to become closed, thus keeping the pupils always in the open air.

A modern club room, with kitchen arrangements, is also to be a part of the new structure. Here everything has been designed with the idea of accommodating the citizens of the neighborhood who may wish to make the school their headquarters for social gatherings and entertainments.

In view of the fact that considerable stress is to be laid on the study of botany a large plot has been set aside for experimental gardens. Complete drainage and irrigation systems are to be installed and planning and testing equipment supplied.

Manual training and domestic science work in the Oakland schools is growing in importance and several rooms are to be constructed especially for these studies. A main school library, in addition to the separate classroom libraries, is to be included in the new Clawson school and an open air kindergarten, designed to provide the maximum amount of light and air, will be among the more important features.

FIRE PROOF INTERIOR.

For the prevention of fires all boiler rooms are to be encased by walls and ceilings of fireproof material, the doors, frames and window sashes being metal clad. Hose reels and fire songs are to be installed within easy reach every 100 feet.

Other modern features will be an indirect lighting system, intercommunicating telephone system, so arranged that the principal may talk to one or all of the teachers at one time, and the electrical program clocks and time songs.

"With the erection of each successive school building in Oakland the details of construction are brought up to the latest standards in construction," said Donovan, "and when the new Clawson school is completed during the beginning of the 1915 exposition, Oakland will have one of the most up-to-date and efficient schools west of Chicago."

SIGN $20,000 CHECKS YEARLY WITH MACHINE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—J. S. Jones and William Adreon each year sign in the neighborhood of $20,000 checks, of an aggregate face value of $180,000, for the Pension Office and the checks are drawn to the order of pensioners.

Technically this money is disbursed over the signature of Guy O. Taylor, the disbursing clerk of the bureau. In fact, however, it goes out over the signature of J. S. Jones and William Adreon.

A series of machines designed especially for it fills out the blank checks with the name of the pensioner, the amount due him or her and the name of Guy O. Taylor, printed. But the checks cannot be cashed until they are countersigned with the actual signature in ink. This is where Jones and Adreon come in. But even two men could not do this, and so machines are utilized—signatures, as they are called.

Each man goes through the motion of signing his name, using a wooden pen-like arrangement on which there is really no point and no ink. This, however, causes to move ten real fountain pens, which actually inscribe the name on ten checks placed beneath. At each machine an assistant feeds in the blocks of checks, ten to a block.

Instead of actually signing $20,000 separate checks the two men together make only $2,029 signatures—41,010 each.

SNARE SPRINGS SENSATION.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Aug. 15.—Friends of Charles Corbin, who were enjoying a stag party at his home, were led to believe for a moment that they were "seeing things" when a four-foot rattlesnake, attracted by the music within, poked a foot of its length through a knot-hole in the floor and solemnly swayed from side to side, keeping time with the rhythm of the music. Corbin, finally convinced that the snake was real, seized a gun and blew off its head. It carried eleven

MEETING PLANS COLUMBUS FETE

Representatives of Leading Organizations Attend and Offer to Co-operate.

An enthusiastic meeting was held last night at the Commercial Club to discuss plans for the big Columbus Day celebration, which will be held for three days—October 10 to 12. H. C. Capwell presided and the representatives of many of the leading civic, commercial and social organizations were present and offered to co-operate.

The personnel of many of the important committees was decided upon and steps will be taken immediately to arrange details for the festival. G. L. Hutchins, who has had charge of the 1908 festival of Portland, Ore., and is recognized as among the leading carnival experts of the country. Among the committeemen already chosen are L. G. McCarthy, Hugh Hogan, Wilbur Walker, secretary of the Merchants' Exchange, A. Denison, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce; F. N. Belgrave, John W. Stetson, John F. Mullins, J. J. Cox, J. F. Carlisle, L. H. Clay, W. J. Layman, Capt. W. R. Thomas, George E. Dickie, F. E. Reed, Comm. J. F. Fugazi, A. Curran, Donay, John F. Connors, G. W. Russell, Benjamin Ide Wheeler, president of the University of California; M. Martini, P. J. Heeseman, F. L. Bohn and many others.

A meeting will be held at the Commercial Club next Friday night, at which reports will be heard from the various committees. The program for the evening will include a public literary, literary, athletic, queen contest, women's auxiliary and other committees. Dr. K. K. Foster, president of the East Piedmont Heights Improvement Club, attended the meeting last night and said this organization would participate in the celebration.

WATER SUPPLY IS UNFIT; CHARGED

Los Angeles Aqueduct Is Assailed by Noted Bacteriologist.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 15.—Charging that the waters of the Owens river, which will be delivered to Los Angeles through the longest municipal aqueduct, are polluted and unfit for public consumption, Henry A. Hart, former member of the city's aqueduct investigating board, filed suit today in the Superior Court here against the city and the individual member of its water board, asking an injunction prohibiting the delivery of the water to consumers.

Hart's charges were accompanied by an affidavit by Dr. Ethel Leonard, one of the best known bacteriologists in California, which declared that the water is "absolutely impossible from a sanitary standpoint and any domestic use of Owens river as a source of domestic supply must be abandoned." An accompanying affidavit alleges that a report on the condition of the water, made after an examination by the city health officers of Los Angeles and Pasadena, and the Los Angeles city chemist, condemning the water for public use, was suppressed, although Mayor Rose and other city officials knew of its contents.

The bacteriological report accompanying the suit recited that the water is contaminated by slaughter houses on the river and by swamps within 10 miles of the city. It also charged that the town of Bishop is drained into the river.

Judge Works issued an order directing the city to show cause why a temporary injunction prohibiting the use of the water pending the result of the suit should not be issued.

CURATOR TO EXPLAIN ANCIENT EGYPT TODAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—"Life in Ancient Egypt" is the title of the fourth illustrated lecture on Egypt to be given at the Affiliated Colleges Museum tomorrow (Sunday) afternoon at 2 o'clock by Assistant Curator E. W. Clifford.

The veil of mystery that for centuries has enshrouded the history and daily lives of the people who have left behind them the greatest monuments of the earth has been gradually torn during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Because of the lifting of the veil it is now possible to give an illustrated talk on the methods of living and even the thoughts of the nation and of individuals of this most wonderful and much misunderstood race.

The museum of the Affiliated Colleges is a particularly favored place for such a lecture because of the vast collection—the gift of Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst—assembled during six years of excavation in Egypt. The advantage of this array of objects the visitor can actually see the life even models of the houses they lived in were made by the people themselves. To be sure, they were not made for the instruction of future generations, but to afford a habitation for the soul of the dead person they were buried with.

In connection with this lecture a special display of objects used in "Egyptian Magic" will be shown in the museum's weekly exhibit case. The Egyptians developed the black art to a state of perfection never reached in any other culture.

In addition to the lecture Sunday two more on Egypt are scheduled as follows: August 22, "An Egyptian Funeral"; August 29, "Cleopatra."

DENIES SEPARATION OR QUARREL WITH HUSBAND

WOMAN WHO WAS SEEN LAST NIGHT DECLARED THAT SHE BECAME HER HUSBAND'S SUICIDE WAS DUE TO A TEMPORARY ABERRATION. Bulger ended his life yesterday morning by leaping into the ocean opposite the Geary street car line terminal in San Francisco.

SOLDIERS IN HOSPICE. GENEVA, Aug. 15.—Probably for the first time in history men in military uniform recently slept in the Howard Hospice, 8110 feet high. Under the command of an Italian colonel more than 200 future officers in the Italian army arrived at the Hospice. The Hospice has only 125 beds for the public and there are always many soldiers there, but the abbot was not upset by the invasion and welcomed the officers. Room was found for all.

About Our Advertising

We are aiming to make our advertising more than an honest statement of facts about our merchandise. We want to make it a newsy, readable narrative of what we are doing and what we expect to do. We weigh every word used in our advertisements as carefully as though we were speaking to the readers directly. We stand ready to make good every word printed under our signature without an "if" or an "and" or an excuse of any kind. Mistakes creep in occasionally, but we treat them as though they had been incorporated in our ads, and we do exactly what they say, unless it happens to be a ridiculous typographical error.

This kind of advertising is paying—paying us big—and, even more important than that, it is paying our customers, making friends with them.

You can imagine how gratifying it is to see the same people answering our advertisements day after day, month after month, and with them a constantly increasing number of new faces.

OVERLAND AUTO IS IMPROVED FOR 1915

Huge Toledo Plant Has Masterpiece in New Model.

While the 1915 Overland, designated by the manufacturers as Model 80, follows in most of its general features the Overland of 1914, the latest product of the big Toledo plant of John N. Willys embodies a number of improvements and noteworthy changes over last year's model which make the Overland a more attractive proposition than ever—whether it be viewed from the standpoint of the dealer or the purchaser.

This time, the Willys-Overland company has adhered to the practice of former years to vouchsafe detailed information concerning its new lines only when the regular distributors have been furnished demonstrating cars; these are now delivered and ready for inspection.

The points of the new car which receive the first attention of the observer are graceful, strictly up-to-date body designs and improvements that are perhaps less noticeable than the more important but nevertheless of vital importance to him; all these improvements secure greater riding comfort and more quietness and flexibility of operation.

The body conforms to the most modern notions of streamline design, yet it is without the suggestion of exaggeration or frigidities. The radiator with a shell consisting of a single steel stamping, joins its curve admirably to the characteristic slope of the Overland engine hood which gradually leads to the entirely new cowl dash and sweeps, without angles of abrupt curves, to the full-curved top. The frame, running-board brackets and battery box are concealed by mud shields which add materially to the looks of the car by giving it that much desired long and low appearance. Though the wheelbase remains 114 inches, the body offers considerably more leg and elbow room. The rear seat, for instance, is 49 inches wide inside; the front seat is 40 inches wide, while the height is 21 inches high in the rear and 23 inches in the front.

DEEP CUSHIONS.
The seats are twenty inches deep with cushions sloping toward the rear, which permits the passenger to ride in the easiest possible position, least likely to result in fatigue.

In developing the new body design much attention has been given to interior appointments, which may not force themselves into the eye of the motorist, but which, much as they will be appreciated by the seasoned automobilist. An example is the storm curtains which are fastened and unfastened from the inside; in bad weather they are stored in a convenient metal box placed directly behind the front seat and the usual tendency of having to disturb the tonneau passengers when curtains are to be used is done away with.

Heretofore it used to be the practice to hold the folded-down top in position with leather straps. The new Overland has a unique clamp which holds the top so securely as to prevent all rattling. Leather pockets are provided in all doors, which, in addition, have a metal beading for protection from the weather. The doors are hung on concealed hinges with inside-operated latches placed so as to make it possible for them to catch on passenger's garments.

The Overland 35 horsepower motor remains practically unchanged, with the exception of improvements made to the oiling system, which now insures that all cylinders receive an equal amount of oil, both on a level road and when ascending the steepest grade. The pistons have been lightened and the design of the pistons have been changed to improve balance and reduce noise.

For easier assembly and to do away with metallic sounds a union joint has been placed in the main shaft. The ignition is by high-tension magneto, which is driven at crankshaft speed through a leather coupling, which eliminates all the noise. The carburetor is of new design, having a hot air attachment for both primary and auxiliary ports and affording protection to the valves from dirt. The steering column is placed at the left. The speed control gate is amply shown and set forward of the front seat to permit one to get in and out easily.

MECHANICAL FEATURES.
A switch box, shown in the illustration, is attached to the right hand side of the steering column, two inches below the wheel, through which the electric horn, lights and ignition may be controlled without the effort of stepping forward to the instrument board. The transmission gear ratios of the first and second speeds have been reduced. The gears themselves are nickel steel, which has been treated with a special lubricant. The transmission counter-shaft has been made adjustable by the addition of two-adjusting screws, one at either end.

The Overland floating type of rear axle is continued and the brakes are unchanged. A new front axle of the I-beam type is employed which together with the drop frame brings the body of the car closer to the ground. The front springs are semi-elliptic. The rear springs are three-quarter elliptic, 48 inches long, two inches wide, and slung under the axle on supports which swing on the axle housing. The possibility of side-sway is eliminated by the use of well-proportioned eyes and carefully fitted shackles.

Sixty inch tires lessen tire wear and afford easy riding qualities. The equipment includes electric lights, top and boot, windshield, speedometer, demountable rims and an electric starter and generator of the two-unit six-volt type.

The starter shaft meshes directly with the geared fly-wheel rim with no other reduction, and is capable of turning the motor over at 180 to 200 revolutions per minute. The simplicity and reliability of the starting and lighting system. The two separate units over the belt of a common drive power plant, and a separate means each for generating and applying power, each unit giving its entire effort to accomplishing one function.

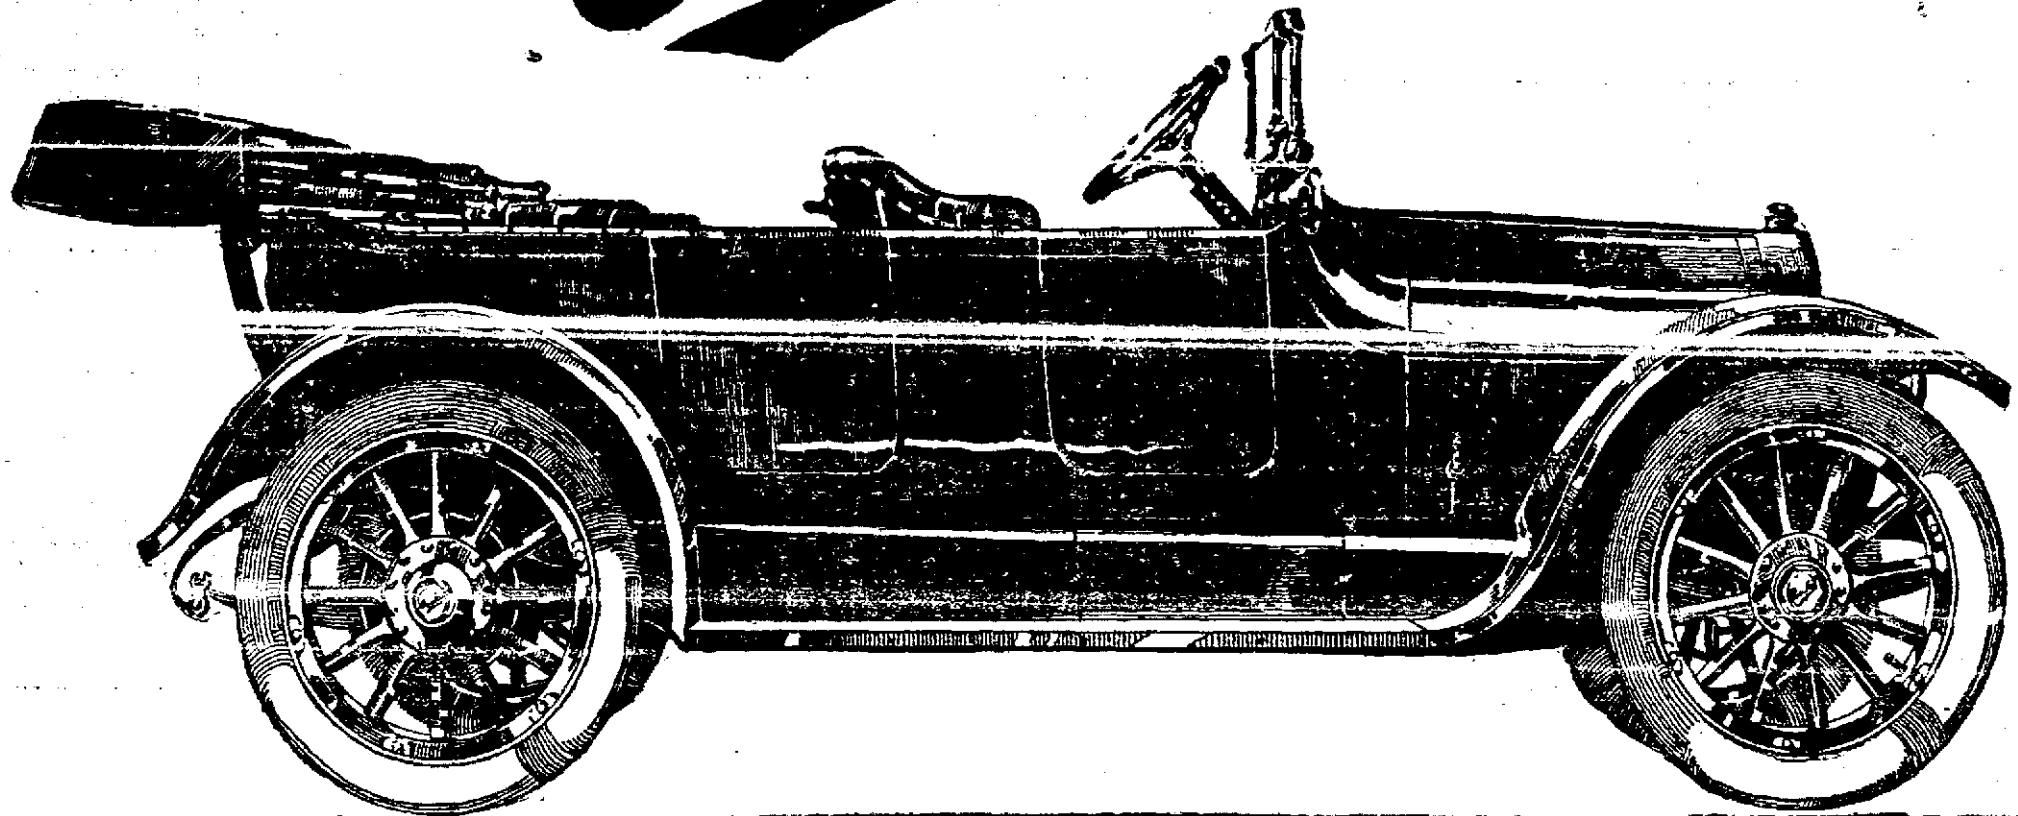

The price of the standard touring car model, seating five passengers, is $1075.00. The two-passenger roadster is offered at $1050.00, while the four passenger coupe, which comes equipped with $524.14 non-slip tires, is listed at $1800.00.

PROTEOUS WATERMELON PATCH.
The watermelon patch has caused the problems for a large of occasion of how to protect the watermelon patch from being eaten by the tourists who have been in the habit of helping themselves to melons. So successful has the speedy two-wheeler been in overhauling the culprits that the number of watermelons has been materially decreased.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Robbins have been in St. Louis, having traveled from St. Louis by motorcycle.

MODEL 80

The Latest and Greatest Overland of All

THE latest Overland—model 80—is now on exhibition at our local dealers. This is, by far, the handsomest and most artistic car we ever produced.

Again we have made expensive improvements, costly enlargements and incorporated numerous, high-priced refinements.

But we have not advanced the price.

This Overland has a beautiful, brand-new stream-line body. Its full sweeping stream-lines blend and harmonize perfectly with the balance of the symmetrical design. All visible lines are absolutely clean, unbroken and uninterrupted.

The new crowned fenders, new rounded radiator, new hood slightly sloped, and flush U doors with disappearing hinges, contribute the additional touches of exterior grace and modishness which distinguish costly imported cars.

The new cushioned upholstery is also considerably deeper and softer.

This model is equipped with the finest and most reliable electric starting and electric lighting system. All switches, in a compact switch box, are conveniently located on the steering column. Thus in the driving position, without stretching forward or bending down, you start the car, drive the car and control the electric horn and all head, side, tail, and dash lights.

Distributors

The Willys-Overland Company, Toledo, Ohio

This new Overland has longer, improved and underslung rear springs which make it one of the easiest riding cars in the world. It rides with remarkable smoothness, taking the ruts and rough spots with the ease of the highest priced cars.

Ignition is high tension magneto, independent of starting and lighting system. It requires no dry cells.

Fundamentally the chassis remains as before. The front axle is larger; the wheels are larger; the frame heavier and stouter; gears are made of nickel steel; there are integral grease cups in spring bolts; and other mechanical refinements which are described in detail in our new catalogue.

There is the famous, powerful, speedy, snappy, economical and quiet 35 horsepower Overland motor; and a long wheelbase of 114 inches.

This car comes complete. Electric starter, electric lights, built-in windshield, mohair top and boot, extra rim, jeweled magnetic speedometer, electric horn, robe rail, foot rest and curtain box.

The latest and greatest Overland is ready for immediate delivery.

WEARS FUR OVERCOAT TO WIN SMALL WAGER

MALDEN, Mass., Aug. 15.—The oddest bet weather bet on record was won when A. B. Stoddard, objecting to the light weight of some clothing shown him in a downtown store, accepted the challenge of the clerk and, with $1 in prospect should he win, paraded through the business section clad in a heavy fur coat.

Stoddard gradually drove the clerk to protest by finding fault with every article of his wardrobe. The clerk, who was taking money, though the thermometer stood 90 degrees in the shade. The exasperated salesman at last ventured a wager that his customer would not dare to wear a heavy suit. Stoddard promptly "called him" and agreed to parade about in the heaviest garment in the store. The winter weight fur coat was selected and Stoddard, preparing but happy, collected a dollar after an hour's march.

CHILD FINDS $1,000; REWARDED FOR HONESTY

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Seven-year-old Willie McVay of Caldwell avenue, Elmhurst, L. I., is honest and his folk are honest, too, and therefore a load of grief was lifted from Mrs. Louise Barbler of Elmhurst after she had lost twenty $50 bills.

She is in poor health and she and her husband had decided recently to take a trip to Italy. She drew $1000 had saved in a small ice business and pinned the roll inside her dress when she went shopping. When she got back she missed the money.

Willie McVay found the package of $50 bills and took it home. When his mother heard of Mrs. Barbler's loss she sent Willie straightaway to the store. Mrs. Barbler insisted on tucking a $50 bill into the back pocket of his dumpy knicker.

MAN MAKES SOFT-SHELL CRABS WITH CHEMICALS

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 15.—During the last year I have succeeded in creating a live soft shell crab and live fish from chemicals," Dr. Charles W. Littlefield of this city said today in all seriousness. "Previous to that I had created reptilian forms of life. The same chemical compounds in the same quantities and grouped in the same manner will always produce the same thing. Different species of organic life are merely certain compounds grouped in a certain way."

"I have learned that the evaporation of water at the natural temperature will produce the life if the mixture and grouping of the chemical compounds are right."

"The things I claim are easily demonstrated. I never have been able to create these organisms except from March 21 to June 21. Scientists as a body are opposed to me because the things I have proved discredit the Darwinian theory of the origin of all life from a single primordial cell."

FLOCK OF PIGEONS FROM ONE SENT BY BLIZZARD

BUCKINGHAM, Col., Aug. 15.—Starting with a pigeon that was buffeted about by the storms last December, and a mate which he bought, John Kilbane, ten years old, of this place, now has a flock of six homing pigeons that he intends to make the foundation of a paying industry.

The pigeon he found was exhausted from flying through the blizzard. Young Kilbane, taking the bird into his home, discovered a band on its leg inscribed "Henry Webb, Fort Wayne, Ind."

Johnny kept it and hopes to become wealthy from the bird that chance threw in his way.

WOMEN TRAVEL IN BOX CAR TO HARVEST FIELDS

BALIMA, Kas., Aug. 15.—Four women arrived in this city during the harvest season in June in a box car, part of a train on which 200 harvest hands were riding. There were ten men in the car where the women were.

The women left the train here and declared that they were given every courtesy possible by the men, and were protected from harm of every kind. They stated that they had suffered from neither hunger nor indignities.

The women were looking for jobs as cooks in the harvest fields. They carried extra clothing and made an entire change upon their arrival here.

A motorcycle now takes the place of the Crosby Department Store of Topeka, Kan. The Crosby company says that this leaves half of their weekly expense for delivery.

GRAVE WITH HORSE IS SUICIDE'S SELECTION

LANSFORD, N. D., Aug. 8.—A desire to be buried beside the body of his faithful horse, Prince, which recently died of old age, was expressed in a note left by Martin Bayfield of Grover township, this county, when he committed suicide.

Bayfield's directions for burial fixed a place "fifteen rods due east of his residence" as the place where he wished to have his body rest. It was ascertained that the spot designated was the burial place of his horse.

DEAD IN CABIN.
SANTA CRUZ, Aug. 11.—James Yates, an elderly woodchopper in the employ of the Loma Prieta Lumber Company, was found dead in his cabin near Loma Prieta, death being from natural causes.

Word was sent to the coroner, L. Wessendorf, who went to the place and an inquest was held.

WAR CLAIMS TOLL OFF THE MAXWELL

Report Sales Manager Redden
Marooned in German Provinces.

Some little anxiety is felt at the Detroit office of the Maxwell Motor Company concerning the whereabouts of several of its representatives, according to dispatches received here by the Peacock Motor Company, Maxwell car dealers in this territory.

Arnold Forster, Maxwell representative in Austria, and captain of a cavalry troop in the Austrian army, has been reported as having joined his troop as a non-commissioned officer and has been several months in the service of his country.

Another foreigner, whose patriotism has called him to his country's aid, is a subject men in the Maxwell's foreign field.

Count Kryszewski was last heard from in Paris on his way to Brussels. He also holds a captaincy in the army of his fatherland, and without doubt has returned to Russia.

Among the thousands of Americans marooned on foreign soil, is Chas. F. Redden, American sales manager of the Maxwell Motor Company. Redden has been abroad for several weeks past in the interest of his company.

The library has included most of the large cities and has taken him into all the countries of Europe. Redden was last heard from on his way to Berlin, and expected to go from there to London. It is the opinion at the Maxwell office, in Detroit, that Redden has been forced to cancel all business engagements and is quietly waiting for the first opportunity to return to this country.

Word has reached the Detroit office of the Maxwell Motor Company that a shipment of 1913 Maxwells, consigned to Tsingtau, China, has been held up in Vancouver from whence they were to be shipped by boat to Tsingtau.

This bit of news has a special significance just now as Tsingtau is a German province, and the German army is concentrating at this point. Great Britain will of course take every precaution to see that no exports leave her province for other countries, and for this reason, has undoubtedly seized the consignment for the German province, as a contraband of war.

The Maxwell cars included in this shipment were new 1913 models, and, with one or two exceptions, were brand new, thus taking them from under the protection of the United States. Two of the cars had been sold to Germans residing at Tsingtau, while others were going to customers farther inland.

The Maxwell Motor Company also has several large consignments in New York ready for shipment to foreign countries, up indefinitely due to the war and its consequent prohibitions on international trade and shipping.

WILL PLACE HERD OF ELK IN BIG PARK

VISALIA, Aug. 15.—If the plans of the local order of Elks and of Warren Everman, director of the California Academy of Science, do not go awry, a herd of elk will be located a few miles south of Visalia, will be the home of a herd of elk from the famous Miller & Lux ranch.

The large herd of elk owned by the Miller & Lux people was recently thinned out and over 500 of the animals were given to the California Academy of Science to be disposed of. They in turn are co-operating with the Order of Elks, with the result that the fine home that is possible for the Elks in Mooney Grove will be made use of and a herd of six elk will be installed in Tulare county's park.

A six-foot fence will be built around the park and the necessary necessary for the keeping of the elk will be installed. The Visalia order of Elks will stand part of the expenses necessary for transportation and maintenance. It is expected that the latter part of September will see the elk in full possession of the Mooney Grove.

The lodge is also to receive another present in the form of a freak deer, which was shot in the hills near Mineral King recently. T. P. Sibley, who shot the animal, will mount the hide and present it to the lodge.

It is said that Bob Crawford broke the half mile motorcycle record at Marquette, Mich., when he recently cycled half mile dirt track in 10 1/2 seconds.

A 3000-mile motorcycle pleasure trip is being made by C. J. Cor and Tully Holloway of Merile, Texas.

HIDE YOUR EARS TO ESCAPE COP

For, Chief Vollmer Believes Auricular Appendages Are

BERKELEY, Aug. 13.—Did you know that the ears are the worst giveaway a criminal can have?

The surest means of identification on earth! That is what Chief of Police Volmer calls them. One little twist to the measurements, and third degree, but now—the ears stand the supreme test. Ears, small, pink, flabby, hairy or fat for him who is versed in this lore there can be no mistake.

Under Vollmer's direction a new system of cataloging and identifying criminals has been evolved which has attracted much attention in the east and is being installed in some of the police stations there.

Then too, the policemen are being educated and trained. Last winter, Pr

Professor A. M. Kidd from the University of California, gave them a course in criminal law and just now shorthand is their chief study. Some study of psychology also expected and every man on the force must be an expert in finger-identification.

TWO MORE OAKLAND CLUBS GET IN LINE FOR MARATHON

Wheelmen's Club and North Oakland Athletic Club to Enter Teams.

The long list of schools and athletic clubs which are already banded together to capture the team prize in the second annual TRIBUNE Modified Marathon to be run on the morning of August 15 is steadily increasing day by day.

Oakland Wheelmen's club and the North Oakland Athletic club, at thirty-second and thirty-fourth streets, respectively, will participate in the race. The members of this enterprising club are keenly alive to the importance of the forthcoming race and the value of the publicity which will accrue to the team which is successful in capturing the handsome silver trophy.

On Saturday, the coach, addressed a meeting of the North Oakland Athletic club, Friday evening, in the interest of the race and received enthusiastic pledges of co-operation. The club has a number of very speedy runners whom it is confident will give a good account of themselves.

Frank I. Telson of the Oakland Wheelmen's club, figures that at least twelve members of that club will participate and possibly more.

The St. Joseph's Athletic club of West Oakland is busy arranging for a very strong team, having amongst its members several runners who finished well up in the last year's race.

Uncle Sam's soldiers and sailors will be represented in the contest this year. Several busy runners from Fort McDowell, Fort Miller, and Fort Baker have announced their intention of participating, while two entries have been received from the cruiser South Dakota.

J. I. Kenna, writing from Sunnyvale, says:

"I am training hard, for I want to be sure of a chance at one of those diamond medals. Many similar letters and notes are coming in daily."

L. J. McNeil of the San Francisco Y. M. C. A., a participant in last year's race, has sent his entry already and is out after one of the fifteen medals.

The Olympic club is sending Fred Sledge McWilliams after the first diamond medal and will have a team and probably as many as fifteen representatives in the struggle.

Henry Delaney has sent in his entry from the Poly high school, San Francisco.

Harry Patton, a St. Mary's college runner was the first to enter in behalf of the Red and Blue, which last year sent four runners to the start.

The first Alameda boy to enter was W. F. Lenz, 340 Santa Clara avenue.

The first Pleasanton boy to enter was Henry Patton, who is a member of the first entrant was Clarence Ashworth.

Joe Souza is the first grammar school lad to send in his entry, Souza representing the Pomona school.

More San Francisco entries have so far been received than from Oakland, which has sent only one entry, and it is expected that some athletic club which prefers to send its entries in one batch later on.

Quinlan Balks at 1915 Sox Contract Federal League Possibilities Figured

TOMMY QUINLAN, WHO REFUSED TO O. K. A DEAL WHEREBY HE WOULD BE SOLD TO THE WHITE SOX FOR 1915.

Tommy Quinlan is listening to the Federal league Lorelei. He has rejected the 1915 contract offered him by the Chicago White Sox, and in consequence, the deal by which the Oakies were to get Scotty Alcock in exchange for their fast little outfielder is temporarily up in the air.

Quinlan balked at the deal as he learned that Frank Leavitt had arranged with Comiskey to sell him to Chicago for full delivery.

"I'm not ready to sign any next year's contract now," said Quinlan, "no matter what the proposition is. I figure that it will be time enough to talk of that when this year's contract expires."

Of course, Quinlan may change his mind. Scotty Alcock wouldn't sign up with Oakland but Comiskey's deal succeeded in convincing him that organized baseball offered more certainties than the outlaws and more certain pay. Alcock finally agreed to come, and now Comiskey's decision was wired out. Leavitt made the deal public, announcing that Alcock had been instructed to join the club in Portland, then, and yesterday, trouble developed from an unexpected source. Quinlan out flat-footed with the declaration that he was not willing to sign a 1915 contract.

It was believed that Tommy, like most Coast players, would be satisfied to accept another chance at the big rush with a 25 per cent increase in salary, but he evidently must rate his ability and service with more than even his admirers figure.

The Oakland club at once wired Comiskey to hold Alcock in Chicago until further notice.

MOY FIGURES HIS SECOND MEETING WITH BURNS AS EASY

"Human Clam" Unbosoms Himself and Tells How He Hopes to Win.

(By THE TIMEKEEPER.)

Eddie Moy, who is as communicative as a spinning top, after the manner of the "Human Clam," finally consented to open his mouth yesterday, as to why he is what he is and how. After a couple of hours, the writer sure he would beat Frankie Burns when they meet on Tuesday next beginning at approximately 9:30 p. m. The length of the meeting is expected to last about 45 minutes with a number of intermissions of one minute each, and judging by past performances, and promises for the future, there will be a number of meetings during the one hour they are in the ring.

Now the import of what Moy said was that he believed that there would be only two important meetings, one when his glove-enclosed hand connected in the vicinity of the other when Frankie meets the mat. Of course there will be numerous instances when the two men will meet, but the only one of importance will be the one when Moy's glove-enclosed hand connects with Burns' head.

Moy also had some other points which he was persuaded to make clear. The fact that Burns is generally supposed to be clever with his left and powerful with his right, might bother some, but to Moy that Burns is a "human clam" is the secret that he does not think Burns will hit him much with that left, neither does he believe the right will trouble him. Now his argument on this point is that he has fought several return matches during his ring career, one of the most notable of which was with Featherweight Champion Johnny Kilbane.

In his first bout with Johnny, the little easterner admits that the marvelous speed and cleverness of the champion baffled him, but on their second meeting Moy claims to have beaten Kilbane. It is enough to say that the verdict was a draw, for it is a well-known fact that one has to beat a champion to receive a draw.

Moy also figures that Burns has a complete analysis of Burns' ability, and thinks he has the correct dope when he says that Burns is a mark for a two-handed fighter, and all that saw their meeting on the fifteenth of last month will agree with him that as far as being able to fire from either port or starboard, Eddie Moy is an ace.

Eddie thinks he is Burns' superior at mugging, and knows what he can take from Burns' celebrated right as often as the latter desires to deliver it. In fact Eddie claims that he deliberately took the full impact of the knockout blow in the final round of their other bout, to see if they could hurt him. Eddie is convinced that if Burns was ever known for a knockout, he has lost the power of persuading his opponent to take a nap.

Although he is not a brilliant conversationalist, Moy has proven himself to be a quick-witted, cool and a cool fighter. The volley of lefts and rights which he is coming out of clinches, were very disconcerting to Frankie, to say the least. In fact, Moy's argument was that he was a "human clam" and there is nothing that fuses a fussy fighter like a volley of punches when he is fighting out of his own head. In fact, he was so solidly on his feet that he was able to put across a level-headedness which was particularly in evidence when he came up just as quickly as Burns' right hand was coming down. He lived the full power of his famous right on Eddie's jaw. The easterner came up and stayed up the rest of the fifteen rounds. In fact he was so solidly on his feet that he was able to put across a level-headedness which was particularly in evidence when he came up just as quickly as Burns' right hand was coming down. He lived the full power of his famous right on Eddie's jaw. The easterner came up and stayed up the rest of the fifteen rounds.

Eddie tells his friends that he will win, and he is convinced that he will win. He is confident that he will win, and he is confident that he will win.

Oakland Bush Catcher Goes to the Sox Baldwin Is Picked Up by Danny Long

EARL BALDWIN, LOCAL SEMI-PRO, WHO HAS BEEN SIGNED BY THE CHICAGO WHITE SOX.

Catcher Earl Baldwin, or "Baldy," as he is known, was the mainstay on the Fremont high school team for the last two years, and he has been the life and pep of the club since he joined it in February.

"Baldy" will be on the Sox team, as he is, without a doubt, one of the best backstops around the bay. He is 19 years old, weighs 180 pounds, and is pegging to the bag as perfect, and he can also hit the ball at a good clip. Baldwin was the mainstay on the Fremont high school team for the last two years, and he has been the life and pep of the club since he joined it in February.

Danny Long, great witnessing two or three games caught by the youngster, decided he was a find, and immediately came to terms, so in a few days "Baldy" will be boarding a train for the big bush.

FAMOUS TENNIS TROPHY CARRIED AWAY BY AUSTRALIANS

McLoughlin Defeats Wilding, But Williams Loses to Brookes.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—The Dwight F. Davis tennis cup is lost, and standing forth from the contest of the century's latest international sporting disaster is the greatest single tennis player in the world, Maurice McLoughlin.

When Norman D. Brookes, captain of the first singles of today's play on the West Side tennis courts at Forest Hills, L. I., he delivered the final blow necessary to win the coveted international trophy from the possession of the United States. Brookes simply outclassed Williams, the Oakland-born player, in the final match, and the sitting of defeat and the loss of the cup were largely removed by the remarkable slugging of Maurice McLoughlin.

IN GLASS BY HIMSELF.

Following the Brookes-Williams match, McLoughlin met Anthony Wilding on the West Side tennis courts. He had already been lost, but McLoughlin covered himself with glory by defeating Wilding, who was ranked as the world's greatest player in the world. White Hope Bubbles Have Blown Up Since Affair at Reno.

Interest in the heavyweight situation on this side of the Atlantic is dwindling, and unless some sensational event occurs, the speculation will be a thing of the past. The fact is that the "white hope" brigade has been blown up since the affair at Reno.

Johnson was forgotten. The "white hope" brigade soon was looked upon as a hopeless conglomeration of beet and brains. The "white hope" brigade soon was looked upon as a hopeless conglomeration of beet and brains.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR UNIVERSITY RUGBY FIFTEEN

With eighteen big "C" men out for jobs, and a world of raw material to work upon, the prospects for the University of California rugby team is exceedingly optimistic over the prospects for the coming season.

In the scrum, the hardest task for Coach Schaefer and Coach Cery will be to pick the best combination from the wealth of material. In the back field the big problem will be to develop men to fill the holes left by Captain Pearl and Furr, and Skinner. The versatile men who will be back are Lane, Glanell, Dills, Hunt, Hazeltine, Canfield, Captain Fleming, Flus, Douglas, Saunders, Lockhart, Hoskins, Abrams, Fawcett, Russell, McCarty, and Crane. Other men who will make a strong bid for a place are Boaz, Montgomery, Hayes, Sharp, Mike Smith, Witter, Shaw, Hardy, Cohen, Meyer and Jack Smith.

The 1914 football season will be officially opened on the 26th of this month, when Coach Jimmy Schaefer calls out the freshmen to their first practice. The big opening rally will take place Monday, the 24th, at which time many of the underdog body to give the new season a big start.

The 1914 schedule includes thirteen games as announced by Graduate Manager John Shroud. The big game will be on Saturday, November 15, a week later.

Saturday, September 5, Olympic Club; Wednesday, September 9 (Admission day); Friday, September 12, Stanford; Saturday, September 13, Stanford; Saturday, September 19, California; Saturday, September 26, Olympic Club; Saturday, October 3, Titans; Saturday, October 10, California; Saturday, October 17, Stanford; Saturday, October 24, Titans; Saturday, October 31, Stanford; Saturday, November 7, Stanford; Saturday, November 14, Stanford; Saturday, November 21, Stanford; Saturday, November 28, Stanford; Saturday, October 17, Stanford.

The finals of the Oakland Tennis Club doubles tournament will be contested on Monday morning on the club's courts in East Oakland, with Paul Dinsmore and Fred C. Burke competing against Stanley James Smith and Reuben Hunt.

The highly prized doubles title, if it is won by the winners, and still there is a likelihood that something may slip, with the result that Dinsmore and Burke will be victorious.

Dinsmore and Burke were instrumental Sunday last in upsetting all hopes by defeating such strong combinations as Gus Stokewer and Edward Klein and Raymond Jones and Ernest Smith, thereby qualifying for today's contest. Their playing was marked by unusual brilliancy.

In glancing over today's formation, we must frankly admit that Hunt and Smith seem to have the upper hand. Their team work is more perfect and their strokes are better timed. Dinsmore and Burke are of the smash-bomb type. In a close and now so open, being a character of the reliable sort, occasionally punctuated with unusual brilliancy.

From this then we are led to believe that the strongest remaining combinations consist of Steele and Howard, Lewis and Steele, and Parr and Welburn.

The latter team is a new one and has never played before in tournament play, therefore we pass them up owing to a lack of intelligence. The team of Steele and Howard were defeated last year by Parr and Welburn, and since the winners have not retrogressed, we would then naturally presume that the contest lies between Lewis and Shepard and Parr and Welburn. The odds slightly favor the latter team.

Of course this is mere supposition, founded upon past play and the present condition of the players. Dark horses would naturally effect this supposition and prognostication materially.

The greatest interest seems to be centered in the men's singles event, and interest no doubt created by the innumerable opportunities for individuality. This event is the most important of the tournament.

In this particular event will be found much capable and qualified players as I. Steele, W. Brachfield, C. Shepard, W. Lewis, R. E. Parr, T. R. W. Kearney, R. Sharp, N. G. Welburn, E. M. Oles, Colonel Howard and Robert and McKee Sherrard.

Anthony F. Wilding, the world famous Australian champion, has paid a glowing tribute to American sportsmen as fair play adherents. Wilding is a sportsman of the highest type, and his remarks come straight from the heart. The following tribute is indeed a splendid example of congenial sportsmanship, worthy of emulation by all.

"American sportsmen are the highest type in the world. I have met sportsmen from all over the world and have played with them. I have never met men who were cleaner in their sport than Americans. Of course, there are rogues all over the world, but I take my hat off to America every time. The postponement of the polo contest this spring was the sportiest thing I ever heard of. I doubt even if an Australian team would do it."

English is principally newspaper talk. I do not think there is any real life feeling. I think Americans and Englishmen are closer together in spirit than any other two nations in the world. I really think there is more friendship between American and English sportsmen than there is between English and their own colonial, the Australians and Canadians.

"We hear sometimes about intense jealousy, but I think that is overdone. Of course, there is intense rivalry, and doubtless the Englishman is more eager to beat the American than he is any one else."

The Lipton Cup room have been formerly roomed until 1915 because of war conditions. The Vanite, Resolute and Shamrock IV will be put out of commission.

Die W. one of the Sallian winners, will place an exhibition mile with the regular Sallian winners. The Sallian winners will be the Sallian winners.

Coach Tony Blanco of the Vallejo football eleven believes that the players are offering merchandise prizes to the players who show the most proficiency in this art.

The entries for the 1915 English Derby were 47 in all. The entries for this year's Derby only numbered 37, and for next season 42. Entries for the Derby are a record for the year, and a record for the Derby.

University of Pittsburgh has established an athletic hall of fame, and will have its pictures permanently in the new $25,000 track-house, erected last year on the university campus. The pictures will be of the athletes, noting the achievements of the teams or men thus honored.

Calvate of Pittsburgh will fit up a novel tent city at Windsor, Pa., for preliminary football practice. The tent city will be a large field on which the athletes will be marked off for the games between varsity and semi-elevens.

and takes more interest in a contest with an American team than he would with a German or Frenchman, for instance. But that is more because of the fact that he is American, and he holds the American flag. He loves the American standard of discrimination for fair play, a standard which has endeared American sportsmen to the world. So as I have said before, my hat goes off to America and her standard of fair play."

Ralph E. Parr is the present single-champion of Alameda, being a title which the writer honestly feels will be again retained by him this year. Candidly speaking, there is only one thing likely to upset this American champion, and that is Parr's inhuman habit of under-estimating his opponent's ability. Overconfidence is a deadly sin, and it is a question whether his playing is superior to that of Shepard and Faulkner.

Without question Parr will be given a good rub, but the present indications point to a 1914 triumph.

It is somewhat difficult at this stage of the proceedings to say who will be the strongest and most dangerous opponent Steele has been frequently mentioned in this connection, but the writer frankly believes that Steele is as hopeless as the rest of the ambitious "hopes."

The junior's singles event carries three strong entries. The persons of Paul Faulkner, Colman Shepard and W. Lewis. Of this class aggregation, Shepard stands as in strongest. He has frequently met Faulkner and usually was successful in this.

Lewis is a new arrival in tennis activities in Alameda, and his playing recently has stamped him as a dangerous man. In a question whether his playing is superior to that of Shepard and Faulkner.

HAVE ENVIABLE RECORDS

Courts Well Known Throughout the West

Working quietly and efficiently from day to day and month to month, without show or display and without ostentation or scandal to bring them to the notice of the public, the two Oakland police courts have established for themselves a record that is known in legal circles throughout the west, however little it may be known to the ordinary citizen. The two local courts are distinctive in that they permit none of the roughness and discourtesy of the ordinary police court, and in that there has never, in over a decade, been any breath of criticism to tarnish their splendid record for even-handed justice and right dealing.

The ordinary citizen knows little of the police courts. He is occasionally arrested for speeding or for some minor infraction of the law, and he hastens away from court as soon as he can pass through the necessary routine. Yet they are an essential part in the life of a modern community. Their administration is essential to the carrying on of the business of the community. With a corrupt or inefficient police court the police department is worthless, and the protection of life and property and of racial life becomes impossible.

DUE TO MAGISTRATES.

The record of the local courts is due in large measure to the character and integrity of the men who have sat upon the bench. Judge Mortimer Smith, who has been a magistrate of the lower court in Oakland for the past fourteen years, is a man who has given generously of his time and ability to the service of the public. To him and his associate, Judge George Samuels, are due to a great extent the clean history of the local bench.

Judge Smith is a candidate for the primary for nomination to succeed himself. The judiciary having been wisely removed from party politics, he appears on all the tickets.

The two local police courts handle some 10,000 cases a year. In this grist of police cases, a stream of men and women who have come into court.

Alone with the laws laid down by society for the protection of society and civilization, offenses ranging from the man who has forgotten to ignite the tail light on his automobile to the murderer who must be given a preliminary examination before being held for trial before the Superior court.

Judge Smith was one of the first judges in the country to realize that by establishing certain rules and customs in the police courts the work of the higher courts could be greatly reduced and the expense to the country reduced to a minimum. He carried out this policy in detail, but two broad instances will indicate its far-reaching effects.

SIMPLIFIED PROCEEDINGS.

It has been the custom in other courts to carry the cases of men charged with failure to provide for their wives or children through the normal course as indicated by the statutes. This course, as the offense is a felony, is to examine the man and the witnesses as to the worth of they should be subjected to trial and then to hold them for trial before the Superior court. Such action means that the men are kept in jail and that the case drags on until it can be brought before the higher court, where there is often considerable congestion in the transaction of business. Ultimately the man is in all probability placed on probation on his promise to do his duty by his family.

Judges Smith and Samuels realized that this method could be considerably simplified and bettered. By the change the man in the case could be more quickly put to work for his family, while the county could be saved money for costly legal procedure and the expense of providing for the man in jail.

The custom was established of granting men charged with failure to provide an indirect probation. Upon their promise to make the necessary provision for their families the cases are continued from month to month on the court calendar for hearing, and so long as the man fulfills his promises he is not dragged into court, thrown into jail, or liable to suffer. Ultimately, if he continues to show a disposition to perform his duties, the case is stricken from the calendar.

JUSTICE AND MERCY.

In both Judge Smith's and Judge Samuels' courts this custom has now become the rule, and failure to provide for the family is no longer a crime only where the defendant refuses absolutely to support his family. "There is no advantage in putting a man in prison," said Judge Smith, "where he is of no use to anybody, if by making him see his duty you can make him take care of his wife and children by working. He cannot support them in jail and he is a charge upon the community."

"Every effort is made to see that men are forced to meet their right responsibilities," said Judge Geo. Samuels. At the same time we inquire carefully into the circumstances in order that the demand made upon the man may not be greater than he is able to perform."

The effort to see that justice is tempered with mercy is a distinction of the two Oakland courts. Judge Smith and Judge Samuels have proven again and again that there is no reason to see that a fair deal is accorded.

No matter how poor a defendant may be he may be assured that his rights will be protected. On many occasions when a prosecuting attorney makes a charge of guilt of the defendant, the judge has introduced evidence to which exception would be interposed by an attorney for the defendant if he had been able to retain one, the judge has refused to admit the evidence, acting for the defendant and protecting his legal rights.

ONLY ONE REVERSAL.

At the same time every effort is made in the courts presided over by Smith and Samuels to bring out all the truth, so that nobody shall be held to answer on half truths. There has been only one reversal of lower court decisions in many years.

To indicate the volume of business transacted by the police court, judges it may be noted that in 1913 the two courts handled cash in bail and forfeitures totaling $125,742. There was a direct revenue to the city in fines and forfeitures of $38,409.

Not a small part of the splendid record of the courts have rested in the hands of those assisting in the conduct of the courts, and both judges have shown their keenness and discernment in choosing their court officials. The records of the two courts are kept up to date and are open at all times to the inspection of the public.

Judge Mortimer Smith appointed Fred Donahue as clerk of his court. Donahue is a brother of Superior Judge Donahue and a man of absolute honesty and efficiency. Judge Samuels appointed Ed Talbot, and as in the case of Donahue, Talbot has been appointed to succeed himself. The basis of honest and honest conduct is that the records shall be kept well and honestly. The records of the local courts are considered models in this line. Two other appointments redound to the credit of the judges. These are the court stenographers, Eugene Van Court and Irwin Magnus.

PIEDMONT SCHOOL HAS VOCATIONAL CLASSES

The Piedmont Civic Club will hold its first meeting for this season in the Piedmont avenue school house on Friday, August 21. Business affairs, beginning at 2 p. m., will occupy the attention of members for one hour, after which a program has been arranged for.

At three o'clock the public are invited to listen to speeches from the speaker for the offices of county superintendent of schools, county assessor and county clerk.

The Piedmont avenue school, of which Mr. Ewing is the new principal, has organized classes for departmental work in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades. Pupils may elect extra work in literature, music, drawing, manual training, copper, cooking or sewing.

The department classes are in charge of the following teachers: Literature, I. E. DuBois.

Pure White—Period of Louis XVI

Of the schools named in honor of the three Louis sovereigns, none is so worthy of reproduction as Louis XVI. It combines grace with simplicity and when correctly interpreted is as suitable in an American home of the Twentieth century as it was in a French palace of the Eighteenth century. This charming suite illustrated above is treated in the refined style so much admired by Marie Antoinette—modernized by the introduction of cane panels. Your inspection is invited.

WHISTLE? OUCH!

IT MURDERS SLEEP

President of Future "Anti-Noise" Society Voices Big Protest.

Signing himself "President of the East Bay Federation for the Suppression of Infernal Noises," which is about to be formed, J. C. Whitnah, living at the Oakland City Club, has addressed a communication to the Oakland city council complaining of the distress occasioned by the fire alarm siren, which disturbs his slumbers. Whitnah designated the fire whistle as a relic of medievalism in his letter.

The matter has been referred to Commissioner of Public Health and Safety F. C. Turner. Turner explained that as part of the Oakland fire department is on the call system, the siren is necessary to notify the men of a fire. Whitnah's letter follows:

"I have been so long and have lost so many hours of sleep that I feel called upon to register an enthusiastic kick against a medieval institution which still obtains in Oakland. I refer to the fire whistle which holds forth somewhere along the water front and which has undoubtedly caused more sleeplessness in this town than all the conflagrations of history.

"I am so constituted that I can worry along on a very small amount of slumber, but when it comes to imitating the late lamented Bonaparte and trying to exist on four hours a night, I must say I am not there at all. "Now, this fire whistle is the most insistent, consistent and persistent destroyer of repose that has yet been conceived. It is always on the job. It works overtime. It makes the nights hideous and ruins the digestions, nerves and dispositions of more men and women than any other one thing that was ever let loose unceremoniously upon this community.

"Suppose you go to bed early in the evening with the intention of getting the amount of sleep the constitution says you are entitled to? Well, you sleep—for a while. Then somewhere in the city a box is pulled and our prize noise-maker raises its awful voice to announce to a couple of hundred thousand souls that there is a fire. You turn over in bed. The whistle continues. You turn over again and begin cursing. Finally you are completely aroused, and by this time you have become aware that you have lost your religion; that you don't like the man who invented steam whistles, and that you don't love your whistle for."

"What is the whistle for? As president of the East Bay Federation for the Suppression of Infernal Noises, which I assure you is about to be formed, I demand to know. What city of equal size is there in the United States that inflicts this suffering of the dark ages upon its residents? Is it intended that this infernal noise shall call out the populace to form a bucket brigade and fight the fire? We used to do things that way, but since Oakland's modern fire department apparatus I thought the world had moved on.

"As I said, I have suffered. I have taken sleeping powders until I have become an abandoned case. I have tried to get to sleep by one of the old-fashioned ways, but none of which I have the pleasure of watching, because they always break out after the cure have stopped running.

"I repeat, I have suffered. Take my case under advisement, and remember I am of the thousands of the city who are suffering. Let me see our city, Oakland, laid down with that fire whistle."

"J. C. WHITNAH"

Here Are Some Snaps
New 5-room bungalow in Claremont district. Corner lot. 5x110; total value of property about $1,500. You can get a deed to this property for $500. Flat mortgage of $1,500 can stand. Telephone about this if you can not call.
Price Cut in Half
I have a $1,200 lot on Benvides ave., near El Centro, in the 4th Ave. Heights tract, that can be had for $800. A flat mortgage of $400 can stand. $200 will give you a deed to the property.
This Pays Over 18%
Pair of modern flats of 5 and 6 rooms. Corner lot. 45x115. Close to car line and schools. Flats rent for $32. A flat mortgage of $2,000 at 6% net can stand. The owner will give a deed to this property for $1,000, subject to the mortgage.
$4000 Bungalow for $2750
In the 4th Ave. Heights tract I have a 5-room bungalow on a lot 40x110 that I can sell for $2,750, and terms can be had also if you wish.
$4000 Clear Trade
House near Lake Merritt, all clear. Owner wants better property and is willing to pay or assume a difference on any desirable property in or near Oakland, improved or unimproved.
$4500—15th Street, Close in
This is a plain house of 3 rooms, all in good condition, and a 50-foot lot that is rapidly becoming business property. The lot alone is worth more than the full price of the property, but the owner is easy and is anxious to sell.
Lindz Vista Home Exchange
Lovely home of 3 rooms and bath, and every modern convenience. Large lot, garage, heater, flowers, shrubbery, etc. Owner would take a small property in exchange for the equity in this property over the loan of $4,000.
Sacrifice
$2,700—A very neat 5-room cottage; 2 rooms finished in basement; all in perfect condition; close to 35th and Market st. House cost $2,500 to build. This is a real snap.
I make loans on real estate. Money on hand at all times for any sized loan.

SUNDAY MORNING,

PANAMA AGAIN DIVIDED BY POLITICS

Election Gives President Majority, but Opponents Dispute Control.

PANAMA, Aug. 15.—The result of the recent election of members of the National Assembly apparently assures President Belisario Porras the support of nineteen out of the thirty-three members.

While this is a rather small working majority for the government faction of the Liberal Party the president and his followers are looking forward to the control of the assembly.

On the other hand the fourteen non-Porras members who are followers of Dr. Carlos A. Mendoza, who styles himself as the real leader of the Liberal party in that he is the duly elected chairman, or president, of the Liberal national committee, believe they will be able to swing the time comes, to swing the votes of enough Porras followers to do as they like in the way of legislation. It is pointed out that there is much dissatisfaction with the Porras administration, even among its closest adherents.

The importance of the control of the national law-making body is apparent when it is remembered that this body elects the five "designados," or vice-presidents, of the republic. They are not elected when the president is chosen by popular ballot, but by the assembly immediately after the presidential election, when it holds its first session under the new administration.

DEEP-LAID PLAN.

It is of still greater importance this year for the reason that the present administration is said to have evolved a plan whereby it may perpetuate itself in power for another term of four years. A president may not succeed himself within six months after leaving the office. The control of the assembly permits him to say who shall be the first vice-president. It is said the scheme is to attempt the election two years hence of Dr. Ramon M. Valdes, a friend of President Porras, to the presidency with the understanding that he shall resign at the end of the first six months in office. In the meantime Dr. Valdes would have been elected first vice-president and thus become president again, he having been out of the presidential office for six months as the law provides.

Such a result, however, is incompatible with the desires of the people of the political leaders of the republic. They have heretofore made it a rule to see that no man shall be president for more than four years and therefore the leaders in his own party are opposing President Porras and attempting to wrest from him the control of the national assembly.

The factional differences date back to the convention of the Liberal party at Chitre in January. It was there decided to place the political destinies of the nation in the hands of a "directorio nacional," or national Liberal committee, with Dr. Mendoza at its head. The plan met the approval of President Porras, but, according to Dr. Mendoza, not for long.

The time came for selecting candidates who should make the race for the National Assembly which was to be elected in July. The committee prepared a list of candidates and obtained their consent to stand for election. As a matter of courtesy—the Mendoza faction makes this quite plain—the list was submitted to President Porras for his approval, not because he was considered the leader, but merely as a prominent member of the party.

ALTERS LIST.

Only a portion of the list met with the unqualified approval of President Porras, according to Dr. Mendoza, who says the president proceeded to substitute a number of what he considered lukewarm friends with candidates whom he felt sure would support him in the assembly. The substitution met with the immediate opposition of the national committee, who proceeded to make it clear to the president that it, and not he, had been given the sole power to make the selection.

This all took place a very few days before the election on July 5 and resulted in the submission of two Liberal party tickets to the voters. There was no Conservative party ticket in the field. Conservatives who voted making use of the opportunity to strike a covert blow at the administration, so its supporters declare.

This is the published reason for the split in the rank and file of the Liberal party and it is the cause that most of the leaders declare to be the only one. On the other hand there are those, and Dr. Mendoza is among them, who openly say that the real reason for the opposition to President Porras is his failure to keep the party faith and his forgetting of political promises once he had attained the highest office in the republic.

The split having occurred only a few days before election day it had not extended much beyond the two large cities, Panama and Colon. Lack of rapid transportation and the fact that the government telegraph and telephone lines are in the control of the administration prevented the workers in the provinces from being informed. In these outlying districts the Liberal party candidates naturally won since they had no opposition.

IMPORTANT ISSUE.

It was only in the two cities and their respective provinces that the fight took place. It was in the list of candidates from these two provinces that the changes were made by President Porras, according to Dr. Mendoza. The control of these members of the assembly is important because it has hitherto been demonstrated that they usually control the assemblymen from the provinces with little exception, they being usually of higher mental attainments and greater political astuteness.

In the struggle for the presidency two years hence there are already two candidates in the field. Dr. Rodolfo Chari, former secretary of government and justice in the Porras cabinet, is the selection of Dr. Mendoza, while Dr. Ramon M. Valdes, a member of the government of Belisario Porras, is declared to have the support of President Porras and his followers.

OAKLAND SCHOOLS MADE SCIENTIFIC

Both Universities to Assist in Research Work and Psychological Study.

University students are to assist the Oakland Department of Education in carrying on the research work which is

Talbert, the director appointed to look after all research work done in the school department. It aims to cover a broad field, but particularly emphasize investigation of the psychological aspect of teaching. The duties of the director have been defined in three general divisions as follows: "First. The conducting of research studies suggested by experience or ordered by the Board of Education or the superintendent. "Second. The encouraging of the research spirit in teachers and principals, and the direction of the studies undertaken by them when such direction is needed. This work is described in an information circular which is sent on application to the bureau. "Third. The protection of the schools of the University of California and Stanford may undertake research studies in the Oakland schools under the supervision of their own instructors and with the assistance of the director of the new bureau. Other properly qualified persons will also be allowed to conduct studies which are worth while upon obtaining the written permission of the director. University of California students are referred to the following professors: For Education, any of the staff, Psychology, Professors C. M. Stratton and Warner Brown; Social Economy, Professor Jessica B. Polk; Hygiene, Dr. J. N. Force; Pathology and Bacteriology, Dr. Karl A. Meyer. Stanford students may consult with the following members of the Stanford faculty: For Education, any of the staff; courses and city reports from the leading cities of the United States. In exchange for work done in the service of the Oakland Department, research work in Oakland schools will be permitted.

WESLEYAN CONFERENCE PLEADS FOR REVIVAL

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Many prominent Methodists made a plea at the annual Wesleyan Conference held at Leeds for a revival in the Methodist church. The need for such an effort it was stated was acknowledged on every side. All the churches reported a falling away in membership and a lack of enthusiasm of those who remained in outward connection with the church.

I cultivated a doleful voice and a heavy manner I should be looked upon as a scholar and rank above an evangelist. "I wonder sometimes if we are not becoming too respectable," said Sir John Barnsley in discussing the matter. "The Methodist church used to be the church of the poor. It has lost that inheritance and has handed over to others the work of redeeming the common people."

'MOVIES' DEMORALIZE SOUTH SEA NATIVES

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Moving picture shows are demoralizing the South Sea natives, breaking up their old peaceful customs and leading them to crime, says a returned traveler from that part of the world.

moan islands, where three natives, on a former policeman, stole revolvers and started out to imitate a hold-up scene. They set upon a European plantation manager and his assistant and shot both dead for resisting. The murders were followed by battles with the natives, who the result that two of the band were killed in action and a third was captured and later hanged.

HIGH BIRTH PREMIUM. LYONS, Aug. 15.—The sum of $20,000 was willed by M. Brunier, who died recently near here, as an annual recompense to any mother of a French family who shall have at least seven children born at a height of 2000 feet. The beneficiaries are to be chosen among the wives of guides in the research students whose problems are unimportant or whose training is inadequate, and the assistance of properly qualified students who wish to investigate important problems in the schools. This last provision also protects the pupils in the schools from becoming the victims of endless experiment. "In accordance with the last named duty," the statement adds, "arrangements have been made whereby advanced students

For this reason a circular has been sent out by the department, defining its plans in this branch of activity and naming instructors to be consulted by interested students at California and Stanford universities. The circular announces that the new bureau, created on July 1, of this year, is to be known as the bureau of information, Statistics, and Research. It is to be under the supervision of Wilford K.

Students at Stanford will be especially able to assist in working out problems that call for comparison with results reached in other localities, as Stanford is equipped with the best professional educational library in the west, and one of the best in the country. This library contains practically complete files of all the "Methodist prayer meetings," said the Rev. S. F. Collier, former president of the conference, "have suffered terribly by getting into routine. What they need today is the note triumphant. While the rest of the world has been raising the standard they of the church have been lowering it. It is bad form to be enthusiastic of those who remain in outward connection with the church."

to crime, says a returned traveler from that part of the world. Although the average islander is lazy, good natured and peace-loving, he is not far removed from the days of savagery. Of an excitable and emotional nature he is carried away by the dramatic films exhibited by promoters. An islander will pawn his last possession, says the traveler, to see a picture show.
